An Enterprising Alderman.

One of the local aldermen has been bothered with rats in his stables. Last Wednesday he saw an advertisement about a rat poison that "petrifies the rat which eats the poison." He sent for a package and is now arranging to sell the petrified rats to the city for "fillers" in the coming street pavements.

Millbrook Man Hurt.

John Clark, an aged resident of Millbrook, accidently fell on the pavement a day or so ago. He was at once removed to his home where, upon the examinations of Dr. A. H. Turner, the injury proved to be a fractured skull. He is delirious at times, but hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Boys Were Fined.

Five lads were yesterday charged with unlawfully removing and breaking a freight car belonging to the C.P.R. The information was laid by special officer Weller. Magistrate Dumble, in fining the boys $5 and costs, amounting to $7.60 each, said he had dealt leniently with the boys on account of their youth, and on account of the car running to a blind switch instead of on to the main track.

Local Hotelman Farming.

Mr. "Dad" Garbutt, Manager of the Snowden House, returned yesterday from a month's visit with his son, proprietor of the Royal Hotel at Milton. When congratulated by a Times reporter on the marked improvement in his health, Mr. Garbutt replied, "Don't ever think I was spending all my time joy riding in my son's auto. I went into the fields, as a labor of love, and forked hay and barley. Just look at the blisters on my hands. You don't get your hands calloused by joy riding."

They have been bad for ten years, but this year eclipse all past records.

Eastwood, of this city, who went to the Toronto General Hospital as a probationer nurse, last May, has certainly accumulated honors, not only for herself, but for her nature city. In the recent examinations Miss Eastwood passed first and was awarded her "stripe" on Aug. 12th.

HE BOUGHT LOCAL FLAGS

The obliging clerk handed him some post cards with local pictures inscribed. "Oh," said the American cousin, "I want the whole —— thing. Haven't you got any local pennants?" He was accommodated with pennants bearing the name of "Peterborough," "Burleigh Falls," "Omemee," etc. The only local pennant he didn't get was one with "East Ward" inscribed.

CHOSE OWN SWIMMING HOLES

John Muir Relates How, by Their Own Method, Bathing Was Made a Delight to Boys.

It appears natural for children to be fond of water, although the Scotch method of making every duty dismal contrived to make necessary bathing for health terrible to us. I well remember among the awful experiences of childhood being taken by the servant to the seashore when I was between two and three years old, stripped at the side of a deep pool in the rocks, plunged into it among crawling crawfish and slippery wriggling snake-like eels, and drawn up gasping and shrieking only to be plunged down again and again. As the time approached for this terrible bathing I used to hide in the darkest corners of the house, and oftentimes a long search was required to find me. But after we were a few years older we enjoyed bathing with other boys as we wandered along the shore, careful however not to get into a pool that had an invisible boy-devouring monster at the bottom of it. Such pools, miniature maelstroms, were called "Bookin-in-goats," and were well known to most of us. Nevertheless we never ventured into any pool on strange parts of the coast before we had thrust a stick into it. If the stick were not pulled out of our hands we boldly entered and enjoyed plashing and ducking long ere we had learned to swim.—John Muir, in Atlantic.

An Ants' Sewing Circle

German naturalists on their return from Ceylon reported the existence of a species of ant that was observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist, Ridley, made in 1890.

They saw a row of insects pulling the edges of leaves together; then others trimming and fitting the edges, and finally the completion of the work by still other ants which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larvae of the same species, the workers carried in the mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread giving larvae like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.

FREE TRADE TO BE NEXT ISSUE IN ENGLISH ELECTIONS

Sir John Simon, Friend of Premier; to Contest Lancashire Seat, If He is Winner He Comes to Front

London, Aug. 15.—Sir John Simon, Solicitor-General, has decided at the next general election to relinquish his safe seat in Walthamstow to contest Northwest Manchester.

He writes that it will be a critical campaign for many causes which Liberals hold dear, and amongst the most important is free trade. This intention, it is alleged in some quarters, is due to the desire of those Radicals devoted to Mr. Asquith to lessen Mr. Lloyd George's influence in the Cabinet. Radicals of the Asquith type know the Premier is much attracted to Sir John's free trade advocacy.

They consequently feel that if Sir John Simon could win a free trade victory in Northwest Manchester at the next election and strengthen the free trade position generally in Lancashire, he would become one of the great prophets of the Radical party and help keep the Chancellor of the Exchequer a trifle more in the back ground.

Commons "Dark" Till Spring.

London, Aug. 15.—The British Parliament was prorogued to-day, and will not reconvene until February next year unless something extraordinary happens.

The King's speech in the House of Lords, was even more colorless than usual. The only reference in it of the slightest interest to the United States was a clause expressing the confident hope that the recent loan of $15,000,000 to the Government of the Soudan, guaranteed by the British Government, would result in "increased sources of supply for the cotton industry of this country."

HUDSON BAY LINE DONE IN TWO YEARS

J. D. McArthur in Ottawa To-day, Says Job is a Big One But the Work is Fast.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—D. McArthur, contractor for the Hudson Bay Railway, who is in the city to-day interviewing the Department of Railways and Canals in regard to the work, states that he does not expect the road can be finished before the latter part of 1915.

"Two hundred miles of the line will be graded by the fall," said Mr. McArthur. "The progress is satisfactory We are having no labor difficulties and no particular construction difficulties. However it is a big undertaking and it is a question whether we can finish before the fall of 1915.

VANCOUVER WOMAN IS KILLED.

Vancouver, B. C. Aug. 15.— Mrs. Charles Milne, wife of a prominent wholesale merchant of this city was fatally injured at Bellingham when a motor car, driven by her husband, skidded and struck against a tree.

NEW C. P. R. STEAMER GREAT ACQUISITION

The appearance of the new C.P.R. steamer, St. George, at St. John and Halifax created quite a stir the other day. It is a new acquisition by the railway corporation, and is now an important link in the new rapid service the C.P.R. is preparing between the two points mentioned. This new service was spoken of sometime ago, and is now a reality. The new vessel has accommodation for eleven hundred people, with triple turbines capable of giving a speed of twenty-four knots an hour, and its appointments are superior to many of the Atlantic steamers plying between Montreal and Liverpool. The vessel attracted considerable attention as she lay at the Furness Withy wharf, and an inspection of her interior increased the favorable impression formed on first appearance. She is the product of Cammel, Laird and Co., and is one of the speediest ever turned out at Birkenhead. She has been running in the Irish sea service since her launch, and her schedule called for doing the fifty-four miles from Fishguard and Rosslare in two hours and twenty-six minutes. This the vessel kept up day in and day out. The vessel is splendidly equipped for the comfort of passengers, with its spacious drawing, dining and smoke rooms, finished in the most up-to-date fashion. The third-class accommodation is in general excellence superior to many of the first cabin of the ocean liners, while on the upper deck there are eight royal state rooms which when the boat was travelling between England and Ireland were occupied by many famous men of title. By the inauguration of this service the C.P.R. will be able to reduce the time between Montreal and Halifax by nearly three hours.

ENGLISH COMMONS CONCLUDE WORDY, FRUITLESS SESSION

London, Aug. 15.—"Parliament after an almost continuous sitting for ten months, rises to-day, wearied and dispirited, with some members physically broken by the long strain, and all jaded beyond measure. Little has been accomplished beyond carrying the Home Rule and Welsh bills through their second stages," the Daily Telegraph declares. "No one now living can remember a session so completely destitute of legitimate political interest and activity.

Austen Chamberlain's recent criticism that he had never known a Parliament so inert and helpless as the present House, is repeated approvingly by men of both parties. The Government has been hampered by an over-weighted program, by cumbersome procedure under the Parliament Act, and by the time absorbed in debating the Marconi scandal. The opposition utterly failed to avail itself of the powerful weapons placed in its hands by Ministerial mistakes and adopted the unsuccessful policy of seeking the snap division to obtain victories, which has made it ridiculous in the eyes of the electorates.

A general demand is arising among politicians for a simplification of Parliamentary procedure. Despite the barrenness of session, the Government is unquestionably in a stronger position than it was six months ago. Lloyd George, wronged by the Marconi scandal, is recovering his fighting power, and will lead the autumn popular campaign for land reform. Sir Edward Grey's conduct in foreign affairs is recognized by all as magnificent. The country at large is tired of political scandal such as the opposition has dealt out in such abundant measure, and still more tired of the machine delays in both houses.

MARTIN'S SLAYER WAS A THUG; BUT WOMAN OF ANOTHER TYPE

It is Up to the New York Police--Few Murderers Have Left More Evidence That Could be Followed

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Professor Lombroso, the Italian savant, and one of the first to advance the theory that there is an "instinctive" or "born" criminal type, would find in the Martin murder evidence supporting his contention.

Certain, it is that young Martin, the stylishly-dressed Carlton street milliner, fell into the hands of a type of criminal well known to the police, whether born criminal or criminal through environment, or predisposition.

The born criminal, says Lombroso has projecting ears, thick hair, and thin beard, enormous jaws, large cheek bones, and frequent gesticulation.

That is about the type of man who murdered Martin.

The woman is another class, and strongly contrasts with the man. It is improbable that she assisted in the actual butchery. In fact she must have been a person of some refinement of speech and appearance, accustomed to meeting cultured people in business; no coarse, or repulsive person could have been successful, if word may be applied to the consummation of such a diabolical plot.

Few murders are committed where the police have more to work on than in this case. They have good descriptions of people who can throw light on the crime, and other evidence that should lead to the trail. The New York police force can now show whether or not they can deliver the goods.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and decidedly warm, but a few local thunderstorms.

NORTH COUNTRY IN GREAT PERIL

Bush Fires Seem to Be Gaining Great Headway in Many Places

(Special to The Times.)

Apsley, August 15. — Apsley is still on the map, though there is no telling how soon it may be wiped out by the bush fires which are raging North-west and west of the village. They are causing a great deal of destruction in the lumber district, and fires have burnt over a number of marshes. Settlers, who have been cutting hay on some of them, have had their stacks destroyed, and unless rain comes soon the loss will be heavy. Timothy hay and other feed will be scarce. In this locality there has been only two, or at the most three, good rain falls since seed time and to make it worse, we had a severe frost one night lately which did a great damage in several places, to corn, potatoes and vines. Mr. Neil Whitmore had the misfortune to loose by fire last week his barn and contents. Only the great exertions of his neighbors, was his and other houses nearly saved, as everything was so dry and water scarce.

Later.—The Times correspondent has just heard from the fire fighter north. Fire is spreading fast, it has burned over a stretch of 10 miles and left the ground clean. At one small lake the dam was burnt and so intense was the heat that fish and frogs were actually cooked. Rabbits and other small animals were found in numbers roasted. Another fire started out East in Methuen, and they are asking for help.

HALIBURTON.

Lindsay, August 15.—Haliburton is threatened with a conflagration caused by the bush fires. The north country was enveloped in a dense of smoke, and it is impossible to see fifty yards from the train.

Large cinders carried by the breeze are dropping into Haliburton village in great quantities, and while there is no great danger of the village bting enveloped by the forest fires, still the villagers fear the cinders might start a conflagration at any time. The fire and smoke is so severe that tourists have been obliged to break up camp at Kushog Lake and return home. Fire is now sweeping through the Donald limits, and yesterday the Chemical plant was closed down in order that the men might fight the flames.

DIGBY.

Lindsay, August 15.—Near Honey Harbor on the big Indian reserve fire has broken out on Beausoleil Island. The beauty of the landscape will be interfered with in many places. In Digby township where the farmers gather much hay from the marshes for winter feed the destroting element has licked it all up and nothin but a stretch of black ground remains.

CHANDOS.

Chandos, August 15.—Bush fires are raging in their vicinity and settlers are in terror of having their homes barns and stock destroyed.

MINDEN.

Minden, August 15.—The whole country side is enveloped in a dense pall of smoke from forest fires. The recent hot weather and continued drought made the underbrush very inflammable, and fires are spreading.

DUMMER.

Warsaw, August 15.—Bush fires are raging throughout the township of Dummer and farmers are badly frightened.

THE LOCAL SITUATION.

The Peterborough Lumber Co. has sent a staff of some 50 men out to fight the bush fires and are sending more to-day. It seems that whilst their limits in Cavendish are threatened, that the fire is confined at present to the "slashes" or places where timber has been cut and the ground covered with recently grown underbrush. The Jackson limits, situated near those of the Peterborough Lumber Co., are also threatened. Still, so far, the fire is confined to the "slashes." The Jackson Co., of Buffalo, own 37,000 acres of hardwood in Cavendish township.

MUST VOTE ON IRISH QUESTION

Home Rule Not Likely Without Vote of People

Toronto, Aug. 15.—The Rev. Dr. Patterson, of Belfast (Ireland), who was pastor of Cooke's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, for fourteen years, and who is on a preaching and lecturing tour in Canada and the United States, declares that the Ulster Protestants were almost unanimously in condemning Home Rule, and would not submit it, whatever the consequences might be.

Asked as to whether he thought Home Rule would be realized, Dr. Patterson replied that he did not.

"I have an idea," said the Doctor, "that before King George gives the Royal Assent, and signs the Act, he will ask that the issue be submitted to the electors of Great Britain and Ireland, and if there is not a general election before this happens I think the question will have to be submitted to the electors.

"If that should not turn out to be the case. I am sure Ulstermen will not submit to it, and it will mean a civil war, and England, Scotland and Ireland will enter upon a great civil war. Sir Edward Carson and the other great leaders are now endeavoring to impress upon English and Scottish people the fact that Ulster is in dead earnest and will not consent to be cut off from the British Empire and turned over to Rome."

NEW CANADIAN CITY TO BE BUILT

Ojibway to Be Created With Population of 75,000 People

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—The following despatch to the New York American is about the strongest justification for Canada's good sense in defeating the reciprocity pact:

"When the heads of the United States Steel Corporation learned a couple of years ago that the reciprocity agreement which the Taft Administration had negotiated with Canada had been defeated by a referendum vote in Canada, they came to Detroit and picked out a spot across the river in Canada, where they could advantageously manufacture and ship steel and bought it.

They have begun work on the construction of a second Gary there.

A Canadian city of some 75,000 population, and named Ojibway, will be built up here within three or four years.

Had the reciprocity pact been ratified that city would have been on the American side of the Detroit River, the labor would have been American. The supplies for this labor would have broadened the market of the American farmers who opposed reciprocity.

The United States Steel Corporation wanted to sell its steel in Canada and was prevented by the Canadian tariff.

It wanted to buy ore and raw materials in Canada and was prevented by the American tariff.

It desired the best facilities for shipping to Canadian ports and all over the world by water.

It has been contemplating building a plant on the Detroit side of the river.

Agents had looked over the ground below the city in the vicinity of the big ship building plants, and had practically decided to buy there.

The Detroit River forms the best harbor on the Great Lakes, completely sheltered, yet large enough and deep enough to permit the free passage, and manoeuvring of the largest steamships.

The steel corporation had its plans already made, when the reciprocity pact went to vote.

When it found there was to be no reciprocity it just moved across the river into Canada."

TEMPTING FATE.

MAN CANNOT TEACH GIRLS "GYM" TRICKS

London, Instead, to Employ Women —Girls, Corsetless and Bloomer Clad.

London, Ont., Aug. 15.—The board of education has decided to dispence with the services of male physical director for the girls at the collegiate institute. A woman will be engaged next week for the new office The contention is that male teachers can not get same results as a woman in teaching physical exercises to girls In connection with the innovation it is expected that the corset will be banished during the class hour and the pupils appear in short skirts or bloomers.

FLEW DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Thomas Davies 131 Hazelton avenue, is in the grace hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull, a broken arm and many cuts and bruises the result of falling down an open elevator shaft yesterday. Davies is employed at the John D. Ivey building, 74 Wellington stree It is believed that he steped into the open shaft thinking that the elevator was opposite the floor.

SHORT CROP OF APPLES.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 15.—The apple crop of Kent will probably be a short one. Sprayed orchards are doing well, but others have only wormy and half-sized fruit.

THE NANAIMO RIOTS WERE RESUMED AS TROOPS LEFT

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 15.—Early reports received here to-day showed that though matters were quiet during yesterday in the Nanaimo strike zone, towards evening there was a recurrence of the previous day's disturbances, though not on quite such an extensive scale.

The arrival of the militia had the effect of bringing the strikers to their senses, but when the regulars had left Nanaimo the crowd again got out of hand and an exciting scene was witnessed when a strikebreaker was sighted. His taking refuge in the police station was the means of saving his life probably.

Part of City in Ruins.

Part of Nanaimo is in ruins. Extension is in a worse plight and many of the strike-breakers are in the hills seeking refuge. Last night between three and four hundred militia left Vancouver, the majority of the men going to the strike region, while a small number proceeded to Victoria to replace regulars who are at the extension.

No definite steps have been taken towards a settlement, though there are rumors to the effect that efforts are bting made in that direction

CANADIAN HELD AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., Aug. 15.—At the request of Canadian authorities the federal court to-day held Richard D. Isaacs under bonds for an extradition hearing to-morrow. Isaacs is wanted on a charge of signing land certificates in Alberta. He was arrested by the Boston police in New York on May 9, charged with forgery. This charge was placed on file.

INDEMNITY PAID JAPANESE TO SETTLE LAND TROUBLES

California Crisis Will Probably Be Met in a Diplomatic Manner by the United States and Japan

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 15.—It is announced here that the United States has intimated her readiness to favor in principle the payment of an indemnity to Japanese subjects who have been affected by the California Alien Land Ownership Legislation, and has also recognized the right of Japan to adopt a measure similar to the California bill.

From intimations given in official circles, it appears unlikely that Japan will adopt either, though it is said that she desires friendly relations with the United States, and therefore she seeks a fundamental solution of the difficulty. If the United States has no solution to offer, it is stated, Japan will probably allow the matter to remain as a grievance.

The public feeling of humiliation in this connection continues to be fanned by inflammatory comments in the newspapers. The Hochi-Shimbun, which is often sensational, urges as an object lesson to the United States that expulsion of American missionaries from Korea on the ground that they are undesirable aliens.

MONTREAL'S CHIEF HAS HIS HANDS FULL

Drops Case Against Temperance Official to Proceed on a More Urgent one.

Montreal, Aug. 15.—The number of actions and counter actions which are emanating from the Police Department have been reduced by one. Chief Campeau announces that he had decided not to proceed for the present with his suit against John H. Roberts for defamation of character, and that nothing would be done until the investigation into the charges against the chief through his connection with the Frisco Soda Water Co. was over. Chief Campeau says he desires to let the latter case go ahead on its own merits, and that if he wins as he expects to, he will attend to Mr. Robert's charges afterwards.

It developed to-day that the unearthing of private police graft probe came just a few hours too soon—for if it had only been delayed a half day longer a trap would have been laid for another member of the force. Incidentally, the plan was to catch the man in question with the goods on him, in the form of a marked bill. The bill was in readiness, two private detectives had arranged to be at an appointed rendezvous, where the officer was to take over the graft from a keeper of a house of ill-repute from whom he, a couple of days ago, demanded his toll for "services rendered."

PRESIDENT HUERTA IS SILENT ON CANDIDACY--LIND QUIET

Mexican Affairs Without Incident of Importance in National Capital

Mexico City, Aug. 15.—President Huerta is unwilling either to deny or confirm that he will be a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic. The Mexican newspaper men in a written communication request General Huerta to make a statement on this point, calling his attention to the declaration made by Minister of War Blanquet, Wednesday, that Huerta was his choice for the Presidency.

President Huerta instructed Minister of the Interior Urrutia to reply for him that the present time was too early and that he would make no statement regarding his possible candidacy within ten or fifteen days.

Will Open "Official" Home.

Much interest has been aroused in political and social circles by the announcement that President Huerta expected to re-open the Chapultepec Castle Saturday, inaugurating his residence there with a farewell dinner to Francis William Stronge, the British Minister, who shortly will be succeeded by Sir Lionel Edward Grasley Carden, former British Minister in Central America, who twice has been connected with the legation in Mexico City. The castle has not been open since President Madero was overthrown. It recently has been undergoing repairs. The dinner to Mr. Stronge, it is said, will be the first of a series of brilliant functions planned by President Huerta.

John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, had a conference lasting an hour, late last night with Frederico Gamboa, the Mexican Foreign Minister, at Senor Gamboa's private residence. Mr Lind went and returned unaccompanied.

RURAL MAIL ROUTES OUSTING POST OFFICES

Two Hundred Closed This Summer Now That New Routes Take Their Place.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.— The rapidity with which the Postal Department is establishing rural mail delivery is shown by the fact that during the past four manths two hundred postoffices were closed owing to the location of new routes. The majority of these are in Ontario, as new rural mail routes are being established daily in this Province.

Prince Edward Island will soon have rural mail delivery over the Provincel and no less than twenty-one country postoffices were closed during the four months. There is little attempt as yet to establish rural mail delivery in the west owing to the distances between the settlers the bad roads and difficulties in securing carriers. To establish sufficient postoffices to keep pace with the growth of the country is what the department wants.

TIED GIRL'S BODY IN GUNNY SACK

Conley, on Watch at Office Door, Heard Scream, and Found Child Slain

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15.—James Conley, negro factory sweeper, today testified that he helped Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of 14-year-old Mary Phagan, dispose of the girl's body after she had been killed by Frank.

After three minor witnesses had been examined Conley was led to the witness stand by Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford. The negro held the interest of the spectators, more than 100 of whom were women, from the moment he entered the courtroom.

In his testimony he declared that on several occasions he stood on guard for Frank when the latter was closeted in his office with women.

GIRL IN FRANK'S OFFICE; NEGRO GUARDS DOOR.

Frank, according to the negro's testimony, was accustomed to stamp on the floor when he desired Conley to keep watch.

The negro testified Mary Phagan went to the office of Frank about noon on the day of her disappearance Shortly thereafter, he testified, Frank stamped on the floor, and the negro took his accustomed post.

Only a short time had elapsed, according to the negro, when he heard a muffled scream. A few minutes later he was summoned by Frank, the latter, according to the negro's testimony, being greatly excited. Conley testified that the factory superintendent's face was crimson, his body and legs were trembling and he clutched a cord with both hands.

"I wanted her and she resisted me," Frank exclaimed, according to Conley. "You know I'm not like other men. I hit her too hard."

Conley was asked what he thought Frank meant by his statement that he was "not like other men." The negro described to the court two alleged incidents which led him to the conclusion that Frank was a degenerate. These two incidents, according to the negro, were observed when Conley unexpectedly encountered Frank with a woman.

Conley then told of going at Frank's directions to the metal room where he found the body of Mary Phagan.

NEGRO PUTS BODY IN A GUNNY SACK.

The negro testified that the girl's body was lying on the metal room floor, face up. He said he knew at once that she was dead because she "didn't move and she didn't breathe." The witness stated that he put the body of the girl in a gunny sack and tied the sack "like a washerwoman ties clothes."

Putting the bundle on his shoulder the negro, according to his testimony then started toward the elevator. When about half way across the floor the body slipped from his shoulder and fell to the floor. [illegible] body to the elevator [illegible] where the body was left [illegible]

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

TOBACCO FOR MANITOU

Indians of Manitoba Still Make Peace Offering to Great Spirit

That Indians even yet in passing through the norrows of Lake Manitoba throw pieces of tobacco into the waters to propitiate the spirits of the Great Manitou, was the interesting statement made in Winnipeg by J. J. Wilson, who has resided at the Narrows for a number of years. It is only half a mile ocross the lake at that point and as Manitou Island is situated almost exactly in the centre a number of cross currents are formed. These by the superstitious Indians are called Troubled Waters and are caused, they think, by the anger of the Great Manitou, and the tobacco is in the nature of a peace offering.

The name of the province, according to Mr. Wilson, was secured from this narrow neck of water, Manitoba being a corruption of the Indian word Manitouwapah, which stands for the island and (wapah) narrow waters.

NEED MORE ATHLETICS

A Cornell Professor Presents News on the Subject

Professor C. V. P. Young of Cornell University, who delivered a series of lectures on "Health and Exercise," declared that the danger of athletics was in the misuse of them. He said:

"The most serious danger that threatens the track athlete is the fact that he is very apt, upon graduation, to suddenly let down in the amount of his exercise, or give it up entirely.

"For many years we have regarded athletics as chiefly a matter of muscular development. Our primitive logic in athletic training was that inasmuch as strength lay in every muscle, the way to grow strong was to increase the size of our muscles.

"There is no inherent danger to the heart in athletics. The heart tends to dilate, as a matter of economy, whenever its work is increased gradually and the heart is given opportunity to adjust itself to the changed conditions, no injurious results will follow.

"I believe the only serious injury or lasting harm done by participation in athletics to those whose organs are sound is in the case of young and growing boys held to the stop watch, either too frequently or when not adequately trained.

"The bane of athletic life in United States is that during the years of young manhood it is entered into so intensely and then abruptly discontinued in later life. It is not less athletics that we want, but more—more general participation, and participation continued throughout middle life and old age."

China's Wonderful Rivers

The rivers of China are her glory and there are few countries in the world so well watered, and none with such splendid natural transportation facilities. The three great rivers of the empire are the Yang-tse-Kiang ("Child of the Ocean"), the Hoang Ho (Yellow River), and the Chu Kiang (Pearl River or Canton River.) Of these, the Yang-tse-Kiang is the largest, flowing through extensive and fertile plains, and finally emptying into the Eastern Sea, after travelling a distance of over two thousand miles. Its discharge is estimated at 1,000,000 cubic feet per second. The banks of Yang-tse are crowded with towns and villages, the most famous of which are Nankin and the new treaty port of Hankow.

MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK

Carbolic Soap

Shave and melt a bar of mottled Castile soap. The melting is best done in a water bath so there will be no scorching. Beat into the melted soap, a little at a time, half a pint of carbolic acid solution of fifty per cent strength. Keep on beating, with the soap still in the water both, for at least a quarter of an hour. Mold into smaller cakes or balls and let stand a month in a dry place. Suds made from this soap, or scrubbing with the soap itself, will disinfect glass, pottery and metal. With wooden vessels burning is the thing. Carbolic soap suds, however, will destroy germs in woodwork if they are applied to it boiling hot.

Two Fell From Balloon

A dangling rope from a balloon caught the leg of Lorenzo [illegible], [illegible] years old, as it ascended, manned by H. C. Petty, who was making his first flight at Tuscumbia, Alabama. The boy hung on until 500 feet up, when both fell to their death with an unopened parachute.

One For the Inspector

Before Dr. Macnamara, the Canadian entered the British Parliament he was a schoolmaster, and inspectoral duty sometimes fell his way.

On one such occasion the doctor asked a ten-year-old pupil in an elementary school to define a pilgrim.

"A pilgrim," promptly replied the boy, "is a man who travels from place to place."

"I do that," observed Dr. Macnamara. "Am I a pilgrim?"

"No, sir," responded the lad; "a pilgrim is a good man."

The Sister of a Soldier

Mrs. Despard, the aged suffrage leader, comes of a fighting stock. She is the sister of Sir John French, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who managed his cavalry so splendidly in the Boer War.

A wooden toothpick is more cleanly than the straw from a broom with which to test bread and cake.

LORD WOLSELEY AND CANADIANS

The Famous General's Complimentary Address to the Troops in 1870 Are Recalled

Lord Wolesley was more intimately associated with Canada, perhaps, than any other great British general since the days of Wolfe, and Canadians have always taken the keenest interest in his brilliant career. There is a common idea that Lord Wolseley was born, so to speak, with a field marshal's baton in his hand, but the fact is that he fought his way upward step by step, for he entered the British army as an ensign at the age of 19. His father was a major, but it does not appear that Lord Wolseley had any other advantages to assist his promotion save his natural gifts as a soldier. He was a veteran of the Crimea and at the Siege of Sebastopol received the Legion of Honor, and was severely wounded. Later on he went to China and saw active service, receiving a medal and two clasps. Shortly after the Chinese War he was appointed Deputy Quartermaster-General in Canada.

Training a Canadian Army

The Trent affair gave scope to his remarkable organizing ability, for it devolved upon him to make the arrangements for conveying the British troops overland up the St. John Valley to the Riviere du Loup. He carried out his difficult duties with much success. In 1865 a camp of instruction was formed at La Prairie, and Colonel Wolseley was placed in command of the three battalions. A year later the Fenian Raid occurred, and the training that the 2,500 men had received under the British colonel was noted by military critics. When the Red River Rebellion broke out in 1870 there was a demand from all parts of Canada that Colonel Wolseley should be given charge of the Canadian forces. How successfully he handled this situation need not be dwelt upon, but to show that Wolseley had as high an opinion of the Canadian militia as the volunteers had of him, it is interesting to quote from the farewell address he issued to the troops.

Canadian Fine Troops

"In saying good-bye to you," he said, "I beg that each and all of you will accept my grateful recognition of your valuable services, and my best thanks for the zeal you have displayed in carrying out my orders. I congratulate you upon the success of our expedition, which has secured to this country a peaceable solution of its late troubles. The credit for this success is due to the gallant soldiers I had at my back; upon you fell the labor of carrying the boats and heavy loads, a labor in which officers and men vied with each other as to who should do the most. Nothing but that pluck for which British soldiers, whether born in the colonies or the Mother Country, are celebrated, could have carried you so successfully through the arduous advance upon this place. You had to carry upon your backs a vast amount of supplies over no fewer than 47 portages, making a total distance of seven miles, a feat unparalleled in our military annals. I can say without flattery that, though I have served with many armies in the field, I have never associated with a better set of men."

From Victory Unto Victory

On his way home Colonel Wolseley was tendered a great reception at Montreal, his time not permitting him to receive a greeting at Toronto as the citizens had planned. Shortly after returning to England he was sent in command of the Ashantee campaign, and received the submission of the king at Coomassie. For these services he was voted the thanks of Parliament, the sum of $25,000, and created a K.C.B. As Sir Garnet Wolseley he was commander of the Egyptian expedition in 1882, which ended in the defeat of Arabi Pasha at Tel-el-Kebir. He conducted the operations for the relief of Gordon and Khartoum, and on this occasion sent to Canada for a company of voyageurs, who were of great service to the Nile expedition, and received the public thinks of the commanding general before returning home. Lord Wolseley was a great soldier, and with Roberts and Kitchener, was one of the three greatest British generals since Wellington.

HE WOULDN'T OWN UP

Money help is the last assistance that the person deserving it ordinarily seeks. It is the last assistance, too, that most people can give—for they have remarkably little to spare. But there are hundreds of other troubles, the outcome of failure of various kinds, in which people, from pride and shame at the confession of failure, and doubt as to the willingness of others to help them, don't make the most of others. When just a few words might save them years of misery!

To begin with, they won't own they want assistance. They are something like the man Mark Twain knew, who nearly lost his life through an unwillingness to confess he could not swim. He had read somewhere that swimming formed part of the education of every well-brought-up person, and having digested that, he came to a solemn resolution that no one should know he could not swim. Having fallen into some yater, he did not call out, but wondered how he could extricate himself without betraying his neglected education. He only shouted at last when he rose for the third time. Then, before he could sink for the last time, a man plunged in and pulled him out. When he was asked why he had not shouted before he explained:

"I didn't care for other folk to know I was such a darned fool as not to be able to swim," he said, "and I thought p'r'aps the chap on the bank was probably as big a darned fool as myself an' didn't know either."

That is just it. The belief that a confession of failure makes us contemptible to other people is also accompanied by the belief that other people hide their failures, too, and may be really as defective as ourselves. —Penny Magazine.

AUSTRIA AT TORONTO EXHIBITION.

The introduction of a steamship service between Canada and Austria by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, has already demonstrated its usefulness by bringing the two countries into closer touch with each other and the inauguration of Observation Cars on the Government railRays of that country was the initial step towards cementing the people together. This excellent work has been the means of arousing toe enthusiasm and interest of th? Austrian Government to a greater degree in an industrial direction, the natural and industrial wealth of the Dominion of Canada appealing to this section of Austria. With a view to the future development of important industries in Canada, the Austrian Government got into touch with the promoters of the forthcoming exhibition at Toronto and through these offices one of the principal exhibits at this annual show will be that of the Austrian Government, who will occupy two hundreds yards of space. It will be typical of Rustria in every detail and over fifty firms employing an aggregate of nearly one hundred thousand people, will be showing their various manufactures, which is further evidence of the desire of the Austrian Government to get into closer relationship with this great country of ours.

CAN THE MILITANTS SUCCEED?

Writing in a London magazine, Mr. Lloyd George says the difficulty facing those who attempt to pass a woman suffrage measure through Parliament is the existence amongst the people of the country of a strong antipathy to the triumph of those who have earned their undying hatred by lawless actions—the militant suffragettes. The people have obtained the impression, he says, that the militant leaders desire the triumph of their cause rather as a personal triumph rather than as a victory for the women of the nation. He traces the actions of the militants to show how they have alienated the sympathies of all the parties and elements from which support is needed for the passing of a woman suffrage measure through Parliament.

This opinion from Mr. Lloyd George, himself a supporter of woman suffrage, is worthy the careful consideration of the militant leaders. A study of the progress of the woman suffrage cause in Great Britain in recent years leads to the opinion that the militants have really played an effective part in carrying the cause forRard. Yet one may reasanably question if the same element can accomplish the ultimate triumph. Were the militant leaders to call a halt in their excesses it seems most likely that the momentum they have given the cause would force it forward to a final settlement in legislation while there would be nothing fresh in the public mind to arouse angry feelings which might interfere with an intelligent and patient consideration of a cause which is able to stand on its own merits. Legislators responsible to the people cannot afford to take action which lays them open to the charge that they have been intimidated.

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

THAT PLAYED OUT FEELING WAS QUICKLY REMEDIED AND HEALTH RESTORED

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced — eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A rubber hot water bottle filled with ice chipped so small that it can be put into the mouth of the bottle makes a good substitute for an ice cap.

PUBLIC OPINION.

THE YELLOW READERS OF THE TIMES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Mr. Soucie deserves credit in my opinion for one thing, and that is for having the courage to put his name to his letter of Aug. 14th's issue. He exposes though, his bitterness and want of fair play when he classes some of your readers as "prejudiced and yellow." He says The Times is abnoxious to him because it prints some articles that speak the truth about the church of which he is a member. His own words are; "As I am a Roman Catholic, you will readily understand how obnoxious to me some of your articles are. They no doubt appeal to the majority of your prejudiced yellow readers, though." There he shows his religious training to my mind. He is jealous of any word, however true it may be, that reflects against his church. That is obnoxious to him, but he likes to insult those who do not agree with him. You must not criticise his church, but he may and does insult your readers by calling them "prejudiced and yellow."

I, as you, Mr. Editor, know, have been a subscriber to The Timet for a long time much longer than Mr. Soucie, and I have never seen any unfair or untrue articles in your paper re the Roman Catholic Church. If Mr. Soucie is disgusted with the truth about his Church, in the mild manner in which you have published it, what would his feelings be if you were to print (as you could), some other facts about his Church? He does not attempt to prove that your articles which he dislikes, are untrue, and here he shows his wisdom. If he is such a jealous Catholic why not defend his Church? Why, sir, the organs of his own church criticise one another far more keenly than any article in The Times. What does Mr. Soucie think of this, taken from an American Roman Catholic paper, "The Catholic Temperance Advocate" in its June issue. I give it exactly as the Catholic Temperance Advocate printed it:

"The editor of the Western Watchman is known to us all as a vigorous and sometimes wise defender of the church, but he is more universally known as a vehement critic, sometimes as a common scold. There are times when men with a large measure of concience and a considerable sense of propriety, are so aroused to indignation at wrongs they read of that they would swear if their consciences permitted them to do so. THEIR ONLY RECOURSE SEEMD TO BE TO FIND SOME ONE WHO WILL SWEAR FOR THEM, AND ACCORDINGLY THEY SUBSCRIBE FOR THE WESTERN WATCHMAN."

The Western Watchman is a Roman Catholic paper, edited by the Rev. D. S. Phelan, and the above extract is taken from another Roman Catholic paper. Can Mr. Soucie show any article that appeared in The Times to come up to that.

I will tell Mr. Soucie why Protestants appreciate any paper that gives publicity to the truth concerning the aims and teachings of his Church, and I will take as my authority his own church. Mr. Soucie will hardly deny the words of the Pope. The following lines were taken from an address delivered by Pope Pius X., before 250 priests, on the occasion of the 50th anniversaty of the Apostolic Union, and printed in the "Pilot," (a Roman Catholic paper), December, 1912: "No limit is set to the field in which he (the Pope) CAN AND MUST EXERCISE HIS AUTHORITY, and the authority of the Pope is not placed after that of other persons, no matter how learned, who may dissent from the Pope."

Protestants believe this is a British colony, governed by British laws and not governed from Rome by Pius X. We do not believe his authority is above British law. We believe in equal rights to all, and so I say to The Times, print us the truth about the Roman Catholic Church, in the future as you have done in the past and Protestants will stand by you. If men like Mr. Soucie can't stand the truth, let them drop their subscriptions. Let who will worship the Pope, we worship God.

Yours sincerely,
PERCIVAL G. S. WEBB.

THE PLAIN GIRL'S DAY

Beauty is an Asset But Not an Indispensible One

Beauty always has been, and always will be, one of the biggest assets woman possesses.

To-day, however, is the opportunity of the "plain" girl. Beauty is no longer the "open sesame" for woman to the different doors of life, or, indeed, to the marriage market.

Take the stage for instance—where beauty always congregates—good looks alone do not ensure success today. Some of the most famous actresses are far from beautiful. Personality, intelligence, charm of manner, more than compensate for an insipid prettiness which, alone, is apt to pall.

Once you have realised that you are outside the pale of beauty, don't despair and let your prettier sisters take all the plums of life, just reckon up your good points. It cannot be called conceit to take yourself to task in this matter, for every woman owes it to herself to present a pleasing exterior.

The beauty of your teeth, hair, complexion, and hands—four potent points—lies in your own power. A Frenchwoman once remarked, "Give me a good pair of eyes and I will do the rest myself." And it is possible, with a little care and thought, to transform utterly a plain girl into an attractive personality.

Take your clothes, for instance, starting with hats. You can't expect a hat—of the style turned out in thousands—to suit every class of face that comes under it. Bend it or trim it, to suit your own particular type.

Then your dress—think for a moment of the shade most likely to enhance the color of your hair and eyes. It is not wise to follow the fashionable coloring; for a woman of roseleaf complexion and beautiful face it is another matter.

Deep down we all want to be beautiful—it has been woman's desire from the earliest ages, and none can deny its power—but the plain woman of to-day need not despair, personality and charm go farther.

Why Cakes are Often Failures

1. Because inferior ingredients are used, such as damp flour and doubtful eggs.
2. Butter insufficiently beaten with sugar, or eggs not beaten.
3. The mixture is beaten after the flour is added.
4. Mismanagement of oven.
5. Cakes not tested to see if they are cooked.
6. Either left in tin, or put flat on table to cool, whereas they should have air underneath.

Wells a Sprinter

It is not often that a heavyweight in any line of sport figures as a sprinter on the cinder track, and it is suprising that Bombadier Wells, aspirant for the world's title in the ring is a runner of some prominence. Wells competed in the 130 yards' professional handicap sprint at Pontypridd, and finished second in his heat in the good time of 12 3-5 seconds. An account of the race states that Wells would have gone into the final if he had not stumbled in a hole.

PEANUT CANDY

Cook together in the shallow pan of the chafing dish two cupfuls of molasses, one of brown sugar, one cupful of butter, one tablespoon of lemon juice and one-half teaspoonful of salt. While this is simmering in an interesting fashion, the fair cook helps the children to open the peanuts, of which there is a pint when shelled. These nuts, divested of their skins, are laid thickly over buttered pans. The boiling candy is tested in water every few seconds by the eager children, and when it cools and grows hard and crisp it is removed from the lamp instantly and poured over the nuts. Just before it becomes perfectly hardened, so that it breaks crisply and evenly when quite cool, it is cut into small blocks or sticks.

Kramer for La Crosse allowed but three hits, while seven drives were made off he pitching of the new Giant.

Whether the Naps will be able to improve their position in the American League race and continue to crowd Connie Mack for the championship is a question that will be settled with the four-game series between the Somers and Mack clubs which begins very soon. This series will undoubtedly go a long ways towards deciding the pennant, for unless Cleveland can take at least three out of four, Connie will walk home with the championship. It is out of the question to consider Washington dangerous, while Chicago hasn't the class nor Ed Walsh to aid them.

Cleveland is only eight games behind the Athletics at present. Connie Mack is too shrewd a baseball man not to realize his club must win the series or experience a tough battle. If the Mackmen can get away with an even break or better at Nanville the remainder of the Western trip will not be so dangerous, for Eddie Plank has been groomed for the invasion of the "Wild and Wooly as has Chief Bender. Should Connie win the four games, interest in the A. L. race would cease, but interest or no interest, the Collins-Baker-McInnis combination is keen for their share of the world's series split.

The price paid for Covaleski was not made public, but it is reported here that several players are to be shipped to the Lookouts in addition to a cash consideration.

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—Umpire Billy Evans presents the baseball public with a problem which the fans probably will take a great delight in solving. Here's the problem. See if you can answer it:

In the ninth inning of Friday's Nap - Washington game at Washington, Washington had Foster on a second with one man out, the score was a tie, and if Foster crossed the plate on a hit Washington would win the game.

Milan sent a short single to right. Foster attempted to score, but Jackson's throw reached Carisch when Foster was still two yards from the plate. Foster bench. Carisch ran in the infield to keep Milan from going to second.

In the meantime Umpire Bill Evans called Foster safe at home, although both Carisch and Foster were under the impression that Foster had been touched out. Evans admitted after the game that Foster had not touched the plate, but said that as Carisch had not touched him the run counted.

—Never Touched Plate—

That's the problem and it should furnish a lot of amusement for fans who like to straighten out baseball snarls.

The rules say that a run does not count until the baserunner touches all the four bases. Foster left the playing field without touching home, but still, contrary to the rules his run counts and Washington gets credit for a victory over the Naps.

Carisch says he did touch Foster before the Washington player had a chance to get near home and for that reason made no effort to touch him again. He did not figure for a minute that Evans had not seen the play. Had he thought so he would have touched Foster again.

It's a peculiar angle and should be put up to Ban Johnson for solution. If a player may score a run without touching home, the rules should be changed to read to that effect. And if an umpire is permitted to manufacture a run for another team by keeping his mouth shut, he should also be permitted to warn the opposing team that a rule has been violated. It looks as if this would be the square way.

There's no more reason why Foster's run should have counted Friday than there is for Evans not telling Carisch that he had not tagged Foster. Carisch didn't have a chance because he thought he had touched Foster out, while Foster was not even forced to return and touch the plate.

If it was an oversight on Carisch's part it certainly was on Foster's. If Evans was right they were equally guilty, and the run should not have counted.

Manager Birmingham has been advised to ge ta ruling on the play from Ban Johnston.

LARGEST ANIMAL

A Description of the Huge Skeleton Found in East Africa

The Gigantosaurus whose bones were discovered recently in German East Africa, and has been reconstructed in the University of Berlin is believed to be the largest animal that ever trod the earth. It is one hundred and sixty feet long, twenty-five feet high, and weighs one hundred tons. The discovery was made by a German expedition sent out by the University of Berlin, which had been digging for three years in search of the monster skeleton. The discovery of the skeleton was so much a matter of national pride in Germany that a fund of $57,000 was raised by popular subscriptions for a systematic and protracted hunt for the further remains of "Gigantosaurus," the greatest of four-footed creatures. The African "Gigantosaurus" is estimated to have been just double the length of the American Dilodocus (80), whose unearthing was financed several years ago.

Septic pneumonia, caused by abscesses in the sockets of his teeth, was described at a Westminster inquest as the cause of death of Arthur John Cheesman, a butcher. The coroner commented on the danger of neglecting teeth, and said disease of the teeth sockets had been found to account for many hitherto mysterious blood complaints.

Mr. Shiel discovered four men with guns and dogs. He called on them to stop, but they ran off, and he gave chase. Four shots were fired, some of the shot piercing the magistrate's clothes.

THE BALKAN WAR SONGS

Bulgaria and Servia Particularly Have Inspiring National Hymns

Like other patriotic hosts told of in story, Bulgarian soldiers march into battle to the tune and tramp of a national hymn which has the power of stirring up a tremendous enthusiasm among them. It is a simple tune, but one of the sort which has helped to make a great deal of history since the world began. Students of folk-song know little about Bulgarian music; the people in general know nothing. It is not long ago that a Prussian official charged with the duty of keeping all kinds of national music on tap for state functions in Berlin found himself at a loss for the national hymn of Bulgaria and some of its native music with which to show the customary courtesy to King (then Prince) Ferdinand. And when he succeeded in extricating himself from the dilemma at the eleventh hour he made the discovery that the royal representative of the Bulgars was but little interested in the songs and tunes of his political children. Bulgaria's national hymn was first sung in the Russian army in the war with Turkey. It was the tune to which the Shipka Pass was stemmed. It also has the kind of sentiment which fits it for the bayonet charges of which it is said to have been the inspiration, but save that it came into use in the Russo-Turkish War we know nothing of its origin. It may have been created by a popular poet and musician; but it rings as if it had simply grown—like the best of folksongs.

Montenegro has a really stiff national air, "Onward! Onward" (Ohamo, ohamo, sa opga oha), and Servia is as devoted to its national hymn as are the Frenchmen to their "Marseillaise." It is a fine bit of poetry and music, and it words are worth reproducing:

Servia, peaceful land of flow'rs,
Home of vines and leafy bow'rs,
Thou, the Danube's gentle daughter,
Rise; prepare for slaughter!
Foes are near! Will Servia cower?
Rise, and strike for freedom's dower;
Tho' no stately tow'rs have we,
Yet our land is fair and free!
  Servians, quit the plough and tether,
  One and all we'll fight together!
  Foes are near! Will Servia cower?
  Rise, and strike for freedom's dower!
Free are Slav and Duna's waves,
Shall then we be Turkish slaves?
Like Stefan, so famed in story,
We will lead to glory!
Foes are near! Will Servia cower?
Rise, and strike for freedom's dower!
Balkan vales, Moravian land,
Free shall be from tyrant's hand!
  Servians quit the plough and tether,
  One and all we'll fight together!
  Foes are near! Will Servia cower?
  Rise, and strike for freedom's dower!

Clyde's Record Tonnage

The tonnage of the 381 vessels launched on the Clyde during the last business year totalled 642,214—a world's record for a single river. The output included many vessels for the British Navy. THE SPORTING SPIRIT

Leslie's Rules Which He Says Govern Real Sport

According to Dr. R. Murray Leslie in a lecture on winter pastimes at the Institute of Hygiene in England, the rules that govern real sport are:

You must enjoy it.

You must be along with people who enjoy it equally with yourself.

You must leave your worries behind.

You must make up your mind beforehand that you are going to have a really good time.

It was because hunting satisfied all the requirements, he said, that he called it the king of winter sports, with golf a pretty close second.

Worth All His Cost

The owner of Diamond Jubilee, Senor Ignacio Correas, gave the late King Edward $157,000, or 31,500 guineas, for that horse. That it was no extravagant figure was established by sale of stock at Buenos Ayres. Nine Diamond Jubilee colts averaged $8,725, and nine fillies $5,265. This was the fourth lot of Diamond Jubilee's progeny to be sold, and in round figures brought $600,000.

NO OPERATION FOR GALL-STONES

No operation will be necessary for Gall-stones, Kidney-stones, or Gravel—SANOL, the German remedy discovered by a great German scientist, will surely relieve the agony of the sufferer from these complaints. It will also cure with equal certainty and promptness kidney trouble, lumbago, and all other diseases caused by the presence of uric acid in the system. It is also most valuable as a preventive for these diseases and will often prevent a serious illness if taken when the first symptoms appear.

Save the pain, danger and cost of an operation by using

SANOL

Relief will be rapid, the deposits will pass off rapidly and without pain. We have addresses and strong testimonials—some written from residents of Winnipeg, to the number of 300. We have 37 testimonials from one small Alberta town. We have a most convincing testimonial from one Winnipeg lady who passed several large gall-stones, after taking one bottle of SANOL. We are willing and anxious to furnish you with the addresses of these people.

Blind Worker's Fortune

Although he never earned more than a workingman's wage, the late Thomas Schofield, manager of Preston workshops for the blind, left an estate of $30,000. Blind from birth, he once walked from Farnworth to London in search of work, and besides being of frugal habits he was extremely fortunate in his speculations. He bequeathed $5,000 to the Preston Industrial Institution for the Blind and Homes for Blind Children for North and East Lancashire.

Muscle and Brain

Harper's Weekly: Experiments conducted by Mosso of Turin, indicate that physical education and gymnastics serve not only for the development of the muscles, but for that of the brain as well. It is becoming evident, in the opinion of this authority, that as much time should be devoted to muscular exercise as to intellectual exercise and that children should begin reading and writing only after they are nine years old. Muscular fatigue exhibits phenomena identical with intellectual fatigue. Nerve cells show a tendency to rest every ten seconds. It is probable that only part of the brain is active at a time; the various parts relieve one another. The more mobile any animal's extremities are the more intelligent, other things being equal, it is.

Advice for the Minister.

In preaching, the minister had been rather long-winded, when the young bride remembered that she had left the Christmas dinner in the gas range without regulating the flame. She hastily wrote a note and slipped it to her husband, who was an usher. He, thinking it was intended for the minister, calmly walked up and laid it on the pulpit.

The minister paused in the midst of his sermon and took the note with a smile, which changed into a terrible frown as he read:

"Please hurry home and shut off the gas."

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be requ red for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

"Return Trip East," $18.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from all points east of MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton to Winnipeg.

BRITISH COLUMBIA AND ITS HISTORY

A Glance at the Coast Province Since Captain Vancouver's Visit in 1792

Captain Vancouver was really the first man to bring the present British Columbia before the world. In 1792 he sailed along the Pacific coast and made an extensive and important geographical survey. Then, in 1793, Alexander Mackenzie and a party of fur traders belonging to the Northwest Company, which became such a bitter rival of the Hudson's Bay Company, reached the Pacific Ocean after a long journey overland through the mountains. For twenty-eight years the Northwest fur traders and the Hudson's Bay Company competed bitterly with each other, and then amalgamated, establishing a series of Hudson's Bay posts throughout the territory now owned by the Province. At that time the only product of "New Caledonia," as the mountainous section was then called, was furs. All the while the Hudson's Bay Company held New Caledonia under lease from the British Government, and in 1849, largely as a result of the efforts of the company, Vancouver Island was proclaimed a British colony, although the influx of white settlers had been very slow.

Found Gold

One day, in the year 1858, gold was discovered on the mainland, and proved to be the lodestone which first attracted close attention to British Columbia. Thousands of treasure-hunters and settlers rushed in from the southern portions of the Pacific coast, and very soon important changes were made in the national status of old New Caledonia. The territory was created a Crown colony, with responsible government, and called British Columbia. Laws were enacted and enforced in accordance with British precedent; roads and trails were madt to the various "diggings"; civic, educational and religious institutions were estableshed, and British Columbia changed in the eyes of the world from a vast hyperborean wilderness inhabited by wild beasts and savage men to a veritable army of sturdy pilgrims from all parts of the world. Thus, British Columbia's present premier industry—that of mining—was started, and with it the first big step towards developing the natural resources of the Province. At this time the population of British Columbia numbered slightly over ten thousand. In 1866 the colony of Vancouver Island was united with British Columbia, and five years later the entire Province became a part of the Dominion of Canada.

Real Development Begins

The actual development of British Columbia did not begin, however, until the Canadian Pacific Railway reached Vancouver, in 1887, hardly more than a quarter of a century ago. The importance of this medium of transportation to British Columbia an be appreciated when it is known that more has been done in the Province during the past twenty-five years than was done in all the time previous, at least as far back as history records the business affairs of the Province. With the coming of a railway connecting it with the eastern districts of Canada, British Columbia assumed a new character, a sort of identity. The growth of population and the expansion of various industries have resolved British Columbia into three large divisions, which, naturally enough, are described according to the physical formation of the country. First, there is the coast district, including the islands adjacent to the coast; secondly, the great interior plateau, flanked by mountains on the east and west, and forming the southern half of the interior, separated from the plateau by cross-chains of mountains from whence spring the headwaters of the Peace River. This northern part is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific, and is now becoming known as "New British Columbia." Altogether in these three divisions, comprising the entire area of British Columbia, there are some 395,000 square miles. Agriculture was not considered for many years, and even to-day the agricultural resources of British Columbia are not being utilized as they should and yet will be.

THE SUFFRAGETTE

Question-time comes. The speaker deals sympathetically with earnest inquiries and sharply, but lightly, with those of the impertinent order. Then, on her left, a male individual in a crushed felt and a skyscraper collar puts what is meant to be a killing question. "How would the speaker like to be a man?" As if stung by an electric needle the speaker faces round to the questioner. A steely glitter lights her eyes, the muscles of the erstwhile glowing face grow taut as a bent rapier. For a full half-minute she stays her reply, her eyes meanwhile striving to pierce through the outer wrappings of the masculine person. Then, in low, but clear, staccato tones, that ring like pistol-shots across the silence, comes the retort: "How would you?"—London, Eng. Citizen.

Ambulance Cupboards

The ambulance cupboard is a modern invention of the most practical kind. These cupboards are put in convenient centres of possible or probable danger, or where serious accidents have already occurred. It is a matter of difficulty sometimes to get an ambulance, motor or other, and these cupboards are fitted with every appliance necessary for first aid, with printed instructions clearly setting forth what may be done by those who have been through an ambulance course. They contain stretchers, rugs, pillow bandages, etc. On the inside of the cupboard door is posted a list of the members' names, with names and addresses of local doctors and telephones. Access to the cupboard is obtained by smashing a small pane of glass in the front, thus getting the [illegible]

If Breathing is Difficult, If Nostrils Are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy that already has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestions—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarrhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharged a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from Catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action results. The large size costs $1.00, begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Dr. De Boissier Kept Wary Eye.

John A. Pierce was charged with stealing a case of surgical instruments from Dr. De Boissier, a local veterinary surgeon. This is the man whose clever arrest by Detective Newhall was reported in yesterday's issue. He was remanded for one week for sentence, after he promptly pleaded guilty. Pierce is an American who has been round the city for some weeks doing no work. It seems that the prisoner had become acquainted with De Boissier and the former went to the doctor's office on Chambers street. Here he stole a case of instruments. Dr. De Boissier suspected the man of stealing his case. To prevent his skipping, he took Pierce out for a long drive so as to keep a watchful eye on him. He then notified Newhall and identified the man. The doctor had bought the prisoner meals and other refreshments.

TO DISCARD FRECKLES TAN, PIMPLES, WRINKLES

(From Feminine World.)

The use of creams on the face sometimes causes hair to grow. You can avoid the risk of acquiring superfluous hair by avoiding cosmetics and using mercolized wax instead. There is nothing better for any condition of the skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.

The ideal wrinkle eradicator is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results.

All tickets will be valid for return until Wednesday, August 20th, 1913.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

This is the season of hay fever, here at least.

The home of Mr. Timothy McMahon, in Douro, about a mile east of Curtis' brickyard, was destroyed by fire at an early hour on Thursday morning.

If the present drought continues for any length of time, it may be that the cheese factories of the county may be compelled to close down for the remainder of the season.

The committee in charge of the weekly Saturday night dance at Juniper Island, Stoney Lake, threaten to discontinue the dances unless the "tango," "turkey trot" and "fish walk" cease at once.

It is time that Peterborough demands that Umpire Jacobson should look after fire sales instead of baseball games. What that Ump does not know about baseball would fill a fair sized library.

A farmer from Douro, yesterday remarked to a Times reporter: "It beats all how dry the weather keeps. I'll bet those —— canal officials, with their conservation of the water of this district, are to blame for the continued drought!"

The Peterborough Pure Milk Co. on Aylmer street, is where purity, cleanliness and quality is the universal motto. The new manager of the milk room, Mr. Paul H. Walker, is an expert milkman, who has had fourteen years' experience in dairying.

REGARDING INSANITY

A London Physician Makes Observations on the Topic

"Half the great poets were insane. Genius and insanity are closely related," said Dr. F. W. Mott, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., who has charge of 20,000 lunatics in the London hospitals. "The poets were in many cases the sons of erratic, nervous parents. There is not much difference between the highly imaginative thought of the poet or of the genius on one hand, and insanity on the other.

"Heredity plays a great part in insanity, a much larger part than is generally realized," he said. "As pathologist to the London County Asylum I have charge of 20,000 lunatics. Cards show that over 3,000 of them are related. Of this number 730 are brother and sister, or parents and children. Heredity is not all, however. Environment plays a big part. One member of a family by some chance meets with fortune and goes on to success and is respected. Another meets misfortune and goes down to his grave a suicide or dies in a madhouse. Much depends upon environment. Children of insane parents are taken out of the gutter by the Barnardo homes. Left alone they would grow up insane. Under proper care they make a success of life. Of course, some of them are beyond hope. You cannot make good out of bad material, but you can prevent a great deal of good from being spoiled. In cases that I have traced I have found that insanity appears earlier in each succeeding generation until it reaches the stage where the child is born insane or becomes insane so early in youth that there is no marriage. In other cases marriage with strong strains wipes out the insanity in the following generations."

Recovered His Radium

The radium in one of the first bulbs that were received in London had a curious history. A physician in Portland Place was applying the bulb to a patient, when he accidentally let it fall, and a moment after crushed it under his foot. The value of the radium to the physician was very great. He removed his boot from his foot and cut out a square of his valuable carpet. He had boots and carpet burned, and out of the ashes refined the original radium salt. It was placed in a new applicator, and is in use to-day.

MILITANT TACTICS SERVE NO GOOD END

Sir Oliver Lodge Thinks a Reaction Bound to Follow Use of Bomb and Torch

Sir Oliver Lodge, one of England's most noted scientists and writers, is an advocate of woman suffrage, but he greatly questions the wisdom of the militants in resorting to the use of bombs and the torch as a means of obtaining the vote. He looks on this, as on all events and movements, with a practical eye to effect—to the future.

"The eminence to which women have attained in certain fields of work is recognized by all. The advance is likely to continue, for there is still much room for improvement, though the unwisdom of some of its less eminent but specially energetic supporters seems likely to cause a premature reaction.

"Sooner or later, however, a reaction is bound to come, and it behooves all who wish the woman movement well to pause and consider from time to time what it is that they really wish achieved and when and in what direction the movement is becoming lawless and in need of curb.

"By such consideration it may be possible to diminish the tendency which all enthusiastically supported movements exhibit to run into extravagance in certain directions; whereby a protective swing of equal unwisdom and perhaps greater deleteriousness is liable to occur in the opposite direction—of greater deleteriousness, in all probability, because, like all reactionary movements, it is loaded with the inertia of ancestral prejudice.

"Such dangers can only be avoided by wisdom and knowledge and foresight. To rush blindly on without regard to past history and racial experience, and heedless of dangers ahead, is fanatical rather than heroic; it is to imitate the activity of the runaway horse which brings itself and all connected with it to destruction.

"Every one must recognise the splendid work which has been done by women in social and educational fields; and it will, I believe, come more to be recognized that in some respects women are specially fitted for government and for official and municipal life.

"The simpler and freer our arrangements can be, the better, and it is a highly artificial disqualification to disfranchise property because it is owned or occupied by a woman.

"So long as property votes, so long as there is a franchise due to ownership or occupation of land or house, so long the owner or responsible occupier should exercise the right, irrespective of sex, or of whether married or single, or of any other question not recognized by law as disqualifying from full ownership.

"Let us recognise the desirability of doing away with artificial obstacles and giving to every one a clear field and an equal chance—a fair share in education, an open entrance to the professions, and a fair and reasonable opportunity of service in every direction."

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

"NERVOUS DEBILITY"

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

☞ NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

THOUSANDS IN TORONTO SHOUT WELCOME TO THE HOME COMING CHAMPION

Sharpshooter Hawkins Wait-Half an Hour at Leaside for the Civic Reception Committee to Come and Receive Him

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Precisely at 8.10 Saturday evening Private Hawkins stepped from the Montreal train at North Toronto.

Precisely at 8.10 p.m. ten thousand people let out a tumultuous cheer.

Instead of the special civic committee and other hand-shakers being on the spot at Leaside to greet the home-coming hero, Hawkins waited thirty-five minutes for the civic receivers to arrive. His train got in at 7.15. The reception train at 7.50. Twenty-five minutes later they were in North Toronto into the centre of a dense crowd that braved a drizzle and didn't forget to yell.

Jollied His Officers.

"You never thought this when you first told me to fix bayonets," exclaimed Hawkins to Col. Currie, Major Duncan Donald and Major Michie of the 48th. That was his first remark on Toronto soil, that is, if Leaside is Toronto. They laughed, congratulated him and murmured something about "they always knew it." Everyone was happy. Hawkins looked boyish in his modesty. Clearly all the adulations extended in England has made him blase.

Corporals Collins and Oliver of the Highlanders took Hawkins in charge at Leaside and looked after him in real friendly fashion. Staff-Sergt. Henry Kerr, called the "daddy of the regiment," was there and also helped.

Wife Accompanied Him.

The Bisley winner came from Montreal alone with his wife. She wore a gold brooch he won in a tug-of-war on the boat over. He had a rifle presented by the Ross Company of Quebec and wore the clothes he wore at Bisley.

Reception committees of the city and of the 48th Highlanders took a special from the Union Station at 7 o'clock Saturday night to Leaside Junction to meet Private Hawkins, who travelled on the C.P.R. to the city, and to divert him to the North Toronto Station, where the first general welcome awaited him.

Mayor Hawkin was the first to welcome the winner of the King's Prize at Bisley as he alighted at North Toronto station. With Mayor Hocken were the militia, cadets and scouts, while citizens gathered to form the procession to Queen's Park.

Private Hawkins smiled his appreciation of the ovation given him, and exchanged a cordial shake-hands with Mayor Hocken. Others pressed around to shake hands with the man who brought honors to the city, and he made slow progress to the carriage to which he was to ride with Mayor Hocken.

The procession came down Yonge street to College, and went along College to Queen's Park. At the park Mayor Hocken presented Private Hawkins with an engrossed address of welcome, and also the civic grant of $000. Afterwards the amount raised by the 48th Highlanders and the amount subscribed by citizens were presented to Private Hawkins, and after several speeches by officers of the 48th Highlanders, the welcome ended.

PARK STREET CHURCH BIG S. S. EXCURSION

On Saturday afternoon a Times reporter followed the big crowd who attended the Park street Baptist Church Sunday school excursion, per steamer Stoney Lake, to Jubilee Point. The day was hot enough in the city to make sinners think of certain Biblical lessons. However, after the steamer pulled out, a pleasant breeze toned down the excessive heat. The officers of the Stoney Lake from Captain Scollard, Mates Tobin and Ayotte, engineer and deck hands were most courteous. The Otonabee river trip is well known, still, to a reporter whom the exigencies of business forbid outings, the trip was most enjoyable. As this swift little craft ploughed her way along between the tree clad banks, where snake like grape vines made a bosky bower, alternated by fields dotted with heaps of garnered golden grain, and the sight of cows standing deep in the river, presented a refreshing sight to one used to brick and mortar. The big oval leaves of the water lillies dotted every secluded bay, wild rice lined the edges of the river at many turns bayous with their rampant water growths recalled to a sportsman recollections of mallard or teal.

Arrived at Jubilee Point, where mine host Levasseur conducts a modern and well managed temperance hotel, the visitors disembarked and had supper. The Stoney Lake returned home about 9.30.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and about the same temperature.

EUROPEAN POLICE ALSO LIKE GRAFT

Taint of Unscrupulous Money Is Not Peculiar to New York, Says the Rockefeller Investigator.

New York, Aug. 16.—The subject of graft in the police departments of England, Germany and France, as compared with similar so-called dishonesty in the police department of New York City, will be discussed extensively by Raymond B. Fosdick, formerly commissioner of accounts, in his report to the bureau of social hygiene, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is president.

Mr. Fosdick, who has just returned to New York, after having investigated the police systems of 20 European cities, does not believe that the taint of unscrupulous money getting is peculiar to the force in New York City.

"I believe the instinct of honesty is as strong among the policemen here as anywhere in the world," he said. "The subject of promotions is important and will get prominent consideration.

"Some of the schemes for keeping trace of aid capturing criminals in foreign countries might well be copied in the departments in the United States," continued Mr. Fosdick. "I observed certain features in some cities which are superior to those existing in other cities, and these will be carefully sifted to get recommendations for improving the New York force.

"In a majority of European cities fallen women are restricted to a certain district. My reports to the Rockefeller bureau will compare the New York police system with that of Scotland Yard in the main."

AIRMAN TO FLY BRITISH ISLES

Harry G. Hawker Starts on a Fifteen Hundred Mile Tour on Hydro-Aeroplane

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 16.—A hydro-aeroplane tour around the coasts of England and Scotland fo. a prize of $25,000 was started this afternoon from Southampton Water, with only one participant, Harry G Hawker, the winner of the Michelin prize in 1912, accompanied by a passenger.

His water-plane is a double-decker, fitted with 100 horsepower motor, and with the propellor in the front of the machine.

The shore was black with spectators who gave Hawker a great send-off on his 1600 mile flight, which must be completed within 72 hours.

Descents may be effected on the water only at the control stations at Ramsgate, Yarmouth, Scarborough, Aberdeen, Cromarty, Oban, Dublin, Falmouth and the finishing point at Netley.

The fact that there is only a single competitor for the big prize, open to all British machines, is commented on by the newspapers, which say it seems to prove the contention that great Britain is still dependent on foreign engineers for flying motive power.

NEW POSTAL RULES MEAN DOOM OF EXPRESS COMPANIES

Postmaster-General Burleson Issues Orders Cutting Further Into the Revenues of Carriers, Lalger Parcels and Lower Rates Will be Charged by the Parsel Post System

Washington, Aug. 16.—The recent drastic order of Postmaster-General Burleson lowering rates and increasing the unit of weight of packages to be carried by the parcel post is looked upon as the fore-runner of the demise of the express companies

By the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which established zone charges for packages carried by express, the express companies estimated that their revenues would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $350,000,000 a year. Vigorous protests were made at the time and every effort was used in attempting to get the commission to revise their findings.

The order stood, however, and the express companies reluctantly returned to their business, only upon a scale in which efficiency in business methods was fixed as the price of salvation. The railroads helped out by giving them better service in the matter of transporting merchandise.

Cuts were made in many departments of the business and salaries given to presidents of companies that in some cases exceeded $100,000 a year were lopped off to $25,000. Divisional agents, executives, secretaries, and like sinecures were completely abolished and the services greatly improved.

With the small package trade going to the postoffice department through the parcel post, the real express business of the country, estimated to average about thirty pounds to the package began to form the unit of the express business. This has been extended and experts in the employ of the Interstate Commerce Commission estimated that the express companies have more than doubled their business in this respect.

STRONG WORDS

From a Doctor With 40 Years' Experience.

"In my 40 years' experience as a teacher and practitioner along hygienic lines," says a Western physician "I have never found a food to compare with Grape-Nuts for the benefit of the general health of all classes of people.

"I have recommended Grape-Nuts for a number of years to patients with the greatest success and every year's experience makes me more enthusiastic regarding its use.

"I make is a rule to always recommend Grape-Nuts, and Postum in place of coffee, when giving my patients instructions as to diet, for I know both Grape-Nuts and Postum can de digested by anyone.

"As for myself, when engaged in much mental work my diet twice a day consists of Grape-Nuts and rich cream. I find it just the thing to build up and keep the brain in good working order.

"In addition, Grape-Nuts always keeps the digestive organs in a perfect, healthy tone." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Strong endorsements like the above from physicians all over the country have stamped Grape-Nuts the most scientific food in the world.

LEPER SEEKS WIFE AND IS TURNED AWAY

Killona, La., Aug. 16.—For the third time in less than four months Sheriff J. S. Patterson and Deputy Triche, Jr., of St. Charles parish, yesterday arrested a fugitive inmate of the Louisiana Leper Home. The man caught, left the colony with the intention of once more seeking his family. When his wife learned he sought admittance to his own home she spurned him and drove him away.

The leper then proceeded to the home of his father at Lury, where the officers apprehended him and returned him to the colony.

SIXTY-EIGHT CIVIC CLERKS' WAGES SEIZED

Ten Per Cent. of Clerical Staff at Montreal City Hall Had July's Salary Seized for Debt.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—(Special.) The salaries of ten per cent. of the clerical staff at the city hall were seized for debt during the month of July, according to a report laid before the board of control yesterday by the pay master.

The authorities have for long been endeavouring to stamp out this increasing evil among their employes, but seemingly without result. The board has now ruled that if the worst offenders, some of whom have had their salaries seized five times get into trouble of this kind again the loss of their position may be the penalty.

In all a total of 68 seizures of salaries were made at the city hall last month.

DOLLAR WHEAT IN WINNIPEG

Striking Proof That Canada Is Better Without

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—What farmer in the West would have Reciprocity now? Last week there was a spread of fifteen cents in the price of No. 1 Northern wheat between Minneapolis and Winnipeg. Here are the figures quoted from the Winnipeg Free Press:

At Winnipeg, July closed. $1.00
At Minneapolis, July closed .84½

For nearly a year now the Winnipeg price has been ranging higher than the Minneapolis price. The much talked of American wheat market for the western farmer is a myth. These figures prove it and what emphasises it more is the fact that the American farmer last year had millions of bushels of wheat for export.

EXPLANATION COMING.

The Liberal press which tried to impose the reciprocity pact on Canada ought to explain to the western farmer just how many millions of bushels of wheat for export between Winnipeg and Minneapolis saves the producer of grain on this side with a crop in sight which promises to break all records.

The situation in Minneapolis and other American wheat centres today is that the elevators are filled with old wheat for which there is no market at home. The new spring wheat is already pouring into a congested market. In one day last week over 250 cars of spring wheat arrived in Kansas City. With a domestic market already congested this means that grain must ultimately go into the export field and trade figures show that the United States shipped last year some 146,000,000 bushels to Europe. The reciprocity treaty would have opened the Canadian market for this surplus.

TWO MEN WANTED FOR MURDER OF W. G. MARTIN HAVE SLIPPED THRU FINGERS OF N. Y. POLICE

Harry Schaefer and Mike Sorocco Are on Their Way to San Francisco and Chief of Police Circulates Description of Men

New York, Aug. 16.—Suspicion of the murder of William Grieve Martin Toronto milliner, who was killed in a rooming house at No. 453 West 57th street Monday night, have shifted from the actual tenants of the murder room—two men known as Johnson and a woman said to be the wife of one of them. The two men wanted for the crime have slipped through the finely-drawn police net spread by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, and are believed to be on their way to San Francisco. Admitting that his confident hopes of bringing the two murderers to book in short order have failed, Dougherty has caused to be circulated through all the larger cities and towns of this country and Canada an "Information Bulletin" minutely describing the fugitives.

Their names, according to the police, are Harry Schaefer, or Shafer, alias Murray, and Mike Sirocco, alias Sago, alias Santo. Both are described as of a degenerate type, who make a business of gaining the confidence of men for the purpose of robbery. The circular sent out from headquarters to-day describes the two as follows:

"Harry Schafer, or Shafer, or Murray, a native of New York, and raised in the vicinity of 50th street and 10th avenue. He has worked as a painter on ironwork and as a bartender in clubs.

"Age, 20; height, 5 ft. 7½ in.; weight, 145 pounds. Has a pale complexion, is smooth shaven, thin face, but good looking; blue eyes, good size; light hair, combed a la pompadour; good teeth, flat foot; dressed straw hat, mixed suit, with a little red in it, Norfolk jacket, watch and chain, with chain fastened to lapel of coat, necktie pin with monogram "H.S." He is good-looking, clean cut, well dressed, and of the chorus man type.

"Mike Sirocco, alias Sago, alias Santo; barber by trade, but poses as novelty dancer, theatrical performer, etc.

"Italian, 20 years old; height 5 ft. 2 in.; weight 145 pounds; stocky, round face; black hair, inclining to curl, and parted on side; dressed in brown suit, silk shirt with soft collar, black shoes."

DURNAN AGREES TO MEET GREER

Toronto Sculler to Row Bostonian For American Championship on Toronto Bay

Toronto, Aug. 16—Eddie Durnan, champion sculler of Toronto Bay, has at last got Greer of Boston to agree to a match and it will be rowed on Toronto Bay Sept. 27th. The race will be for $1,000 a side, and will be for the championship of America. It is likely that the winner will challenge Barry, the English champion, for the world's title, and if accepted the race will be rowed in England early next year.

Durnan received the following wire from Eugene Buckley, a Boston sporting editor, who is looking after Greer's interests, late Saturday afternoon:

"Greer will row you for championship and $1000 a side on Toronto Bay of Charles River, Boston, Sept. 27th. Give or take $100 expenses. Boston will give $500 purse if race is rowed on Charles river, Oct. 13.
(Signed) Eugene Buckley."

Durnan wired back that he would accept the Toronto Bay proposition and the big race will be held here next month.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO MAKE MAN PERFECT

British Medical Association Discusses the Possibility of a Perfect Race.

London, Aug. 16.—Some most interesting—even fascinating—discussions took place at the British Medical Association's annual conference. Particularly attractive was the debate on the possibility of producing a perfect race.

Dr. Harry Campbell, of London, declared that it was theoretically possible to breed a race of supermen—at present a mere caricature of the ideal—into a being perfect in form and supreme in moral and intellectual endowment.

What, above all, was needed, he added, was that the public standard should be educated in the fundamental principles of evolution. The great truths of science had not yet been incorporated into our religious and ethical codes. We still prayed to be delivered from plague, pestilence, and famine as though they were visitations of Divine wrath, whereas they were in a large measure under our control.

GERMANY AND PANAMA.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—The German Government to-day decided to refuse to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915.

Germany will, however, probably be represented worthily at the opening of the Panama Canal, according to a semi-official announcement.

POLICE KNOW MAN WHO STRUCK DOWN HASSAN IN LONELY VALLEY

Provincial Detectives Have Now Definite Clue to Work on and Are Practically Sure of Circumstances Which Led Up to Old Man's Murder--The Story of the Crime

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Provincial detectives have been at last started to work on the Humber Valley mystery. A definite clue, which promises startling results has been unearthed by Inspector of Provincial Detectives Miller. Exhausting all the pet theories of the various county police and by a process of elimination, discarding the suspicions directed against many of the dead man's friends, the officers have narrowed the point of their investigations to such an extent that they are practically sure as to the circumstances surrounding the brutal attack on Hugh Hassan in the lonely woods on the night of August 4th.

There is a lack of evidence to show that a woman was in the tent with Hugh Hassan on the night of the crime. But there was a woman mixed up in the case, although there is hardly any doubt but that she was a total stranger to Hassan. The aged man at first attempted to throw the blame for his injuries on his horse, evidently wishing to shield someone. It is not unlikely that he knew more of the case than he cared to tell to the authorities, but he evidently thought that these matters were personal and would not help in clearing up the mystery.

"Why did the cur strike you?" "Why did the cur strike me?" Hassan frequently said whilt conscious and also in his delirium. Attempts were made to have him tell of the woman. He did not seem surprised when she was mentioned, as it was not his wife that he was thinking about.

"Who was in the tent with you that night, dad? Who was the woman?" he was asked.

"What woman?" he enquired.

"Do you know any woman?"

"Yes. She is a widow, her husband died about three years ago."

"Was she there when they hit you?" he was asked again.

"No, she had gone home long ago," was the reply.

HAWKES, BRITISH-BORN ON COLONIAL NATIONALITY

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Arthur Hawkes was not at his office on Saturday afternoon. He was located by telephone at his home. If there is anything Mr. Hawkes is stronger on than another, it is domesticity. He is a homemaker by instinct and experience, and perhaps this is why he had such influence with the "British-born" when we had that little discussion about reciprocity a while back.

Mr. Hawkes appears to be about to break out in a new place. Whatever he tackles seems to do what he wants it to do, and this lends a certain amount of importance to whatever he smiles on. Critics may disagree about his relations to winners as to whether he picks 'em or makes 'em. But they don't bet against his judgment. There is the immigration report. The man who neglected that is not a good critic.

So we asked Mr. Hawkes what was the true inwardness of The Sourier letters this week on the navy question. Mr. Hawkes thought he had said enough in his letters to enable the average reader to judge for himself

"Are we to regard your letters as indicating the existence of any active sympathy in Britain with your views on or against centralization?"

"If you mean is there a desire to have, as I put it, a most systematic development of a reasoned public opinion, I would say, yes. But if you mean is there an organized body of such opinion, I can only say, that remains to be seen. Where real ideas present themselves, opinion crystalizes pretty rapidly—and pretty effectively," Mr. Hawkes added as an after thought. "Of course," he continued, "while there is a great deal of interest in the old country on our questions, they don't really understand colonial nationality, and something may have to be done to make this clear to them."

LAKEHURST GIRL WINS THE PRIZE

The premier school in Harvey township for 1913 is that at Lakehurst—Miss Flynn, teacher. The gold watch offered as a prize to the pupil passing highest at the entrance examination was won by Miss Lottie Shearer, daughter of Mr. Andrew Shearer, and was presented to her amid the loud applause of a very large audience of Harvey people at the successful school on Friday evening, by Mr. Burnham, M.P., Mr. David Weir, chairman of the trustee board, accepted the chair, and made a neat address.

Miss Palmer and Miss Smith rendered a fine duet with violin and piano, which was encored. In presenting the watch Mr. Burnham said that education is the training we give ourselves. It is education in agriculture, mechanics, or the general purposes of life that makes us fit for those pursuits. What would we think of a man who would go on a farm without knowing anything about farming? If he is well trained and has brains he could make a living on pretty nearly any sort of a farm and he would be sure to make a good living on a good farm for himself and family but a poor farmer cannot do well anywhere. So it is in all walks of life. And when a man has trained himself and accomplished so much he will turn if he is a well-intentioned right-thinking man to the task to helping others, of helping the community in which he lives and the world in general. When we do that we have completed all duty that Nature require of us. But we must do these and do them well, for it is this effort to do things in a great, a truly manly or a truly womanly way that makes a people great, and we may add, happy. Prowling, cunning, greed, lack of honor can make no one happy, but they can destroy. They are the wolfish tendency in human nature, not the human feature, and we should put it down. If it were not that people at large realize the necessity of doing this, humanity would all have become wolves long ago. We should face this fact promptly and cheerfully. And no where is it capable of being faced better than in our schools where our future men and women are trained. We all know that early training and environment are by all odds the chief agents for good or evil in the future of our people. A good school like a good home is a priceless blessing. A good school is a place of meeting of training and of steady and honorable progress. We cannot do too much to give it our best attention. Nowadays education is so essential that the best educated, that is the best trained, get all the best positions. The ill-trained are not wanted. The standard of efficiency is higher than it used to be and the young must put forth greater efforts than ever before and the old must put forth greater efforts to help them.

Miss Shearer made a suitable reply.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 384 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

FRENCH CANADIANS FORCED TO MARRY

Or Forfeit Their Right to Hunt, to Till Soil, or Revisit France

Maadre Fribourg claims to prove in the Paris "Grand Revue," through the correspondence of Colbert, the great Minister of Louis XIV., that the strength and stamina of French-Canadians are largely due to that statesman. Colbert was particularly interested in Canada, and made its colonization his hobby. He sent out batches of strong and healthy young Frenchwomen, and, in order that there should be no doubt about their getting married on their arrival, he issued a decree rendering marriage compulsory. Every bachelor-colonist was forced to take as his wife one of the female emigrants, under penalties on refusal of forfeiting his right to till the soil, to hunt, or to revisit France. Special privileges were, moreover, granted by Colbert to the parents of numerous children. It was in this way that the magnificent stock of French-Canadian voyageurs and trappers, not to speak of the equally sturdy agriculturists, was created. The question of Canadian virility was the subject of a private discussion by a number of members of the British Parliament and one of the members observed that with the exception of the ordinance respecting marriage, the same thing was practically true of the first settlers in other parts of Canada. They were drawn from the strongest of the race, and it is, of course, a commonplace to say that the present energy of Canada as a nation is the result of this endowment. Surprise is frequently expressed in England that so numerically small a nation as Canada should project and carry to a successful conclusion such huge undertakings; but is not the reason to be found in the fact that the fathers of the Dominion were the fittest of those who survived the Napoleonic and American wars, and before that date those Highlanders, of whom Lord Hobart, the then Colonial Secretary, wrote in such high terms?.

MILLIONS IN FISH

Still the Industry at the Coast is Only in its Infancy

The fisheries of British Columbia are the most valuable in the Dominion. Of the $35,000,000 worth of fish produced from all the Provinces in Canada last season this one contributed fish to the value of $14,000,000. Salmon, halibut and herring are the three chief varieties of fish which inhabit the waters of British Columbia, and of these salmon are the most valuable. The Fraser River, especially that section of it flowing through the lower mainland, contributes most liberally to the fisheries of the Province. The salmon pack in all parts of British Columbia last year amounted to 996,576 cases, of which the lower mainland district, including the Province's largest canneries at New Westminster, contributed 177,921 cases, or almost twenty per cent. of the entire pack. The fishing business on "the coast" is only in its infancy. The rivers of the northern part of the interior are practically unknown, so far as their fertility is concerned, and the fishermen on the coast are only beginning to realize the immense wealth which lurks in the numerous bays and inlets of the Pacific coast.

No one ever thought of patenting it before. It is nothing more than a strip of some light-absorbing material that is to be worn across the eyes and has loops to go around the ears and hold it in place. That is one reason why we can sleep longer in winter than in summer.

Death of Best Sheep Dog

Pink, the greatest sheep-dog of her day, belonging to Mr. Moses, of Brogyntyn Farm, Oswestry, died at the age of seven. Pink was endowed with almost human sagacity, and had won more first prizes than any other sheep-dog in trials in various parts of the country. She always carried off the prizes for the dog under the best-command, and at the Llangollen trials she won the "blue ribbon" of the sheep-dog world twice in succession. "I never petted her," Mr. Moses said. "If I was displeased I told her so, and her ears went down. If others patted her she took no notice of them but looked at me as if to ask if it was right." Pink was a smooth-haired collie, cleanly built after the greyhound style. That was how she got her speed. She was as gentle with a chicken or a pig as with a sheep. She never distressed or irritated sheep, but if one were stubborn she would stand facing it, and at the whistle walk quietly up and seize it by the nose, and the sheep had to go where she wanted.

THE PAS

Something About the Gateway to Hudson's Bay

The Pas, Manitoba, is known as the gateway to Hudson's Bay. In history it will be known as Opasquia, the Indian name under which it was recognized by the pioneer. The Pas can look back as far as 1731, the year that Pierre Verandrye and his sons found the place, then a settlement of hostile Indians, on their search for the "Western Sea." Later on, in 1786, Alexander Mackenzie arrived at Opasquia on his historic journey to the Pacific coast. A valuable relic is to be seen at The Pas to-day of Mackenzie's journey. It is a beautifully-carved pipe, which he used to smoke in a peace conference with the Indians. The pipe is now the valued possession of one of the residents at The Pas. In 1845 a party which started north in search of Sir John Franklin, the explorer who tried to find the northwest passage out of Hudson's Bay, spent the winter at Opasquia. While there the followers of Franklin built a mission church, carving all the pews by hand and inscribing the names of the party on a wooden slab, which adorned the inside of the little building for many years. The present Anglican church at The Pas still contains much of the handiwork of the Franklin party. The main historic landmarks of The Pas still standing are the Hudson's Bay post and the chief factor's house, within their barricade of pickets; the old mission graveyard, and the Indian cemetery, with its many fantastic adornments, situated about two miles up the river from The Pas.

The Dreams Ahead

What would we do in this world of ours,
Were it not for the dreams ahead?
For thorns are mixed with the blooming flowers,
No matter which path we tread.

And each of us has his golden goal,
Stretching far into the years:
And ever he climbs with a hopeful soul,
With alternate smiles and tears.

That dream ahead is what holds him up
Through the storms of a ceaseless fight;
When his lips are pressed to the wormwood's cup,
And clouds shut out the light.

To some it's a dream of a high estate,
To some it's a dream of wealth,
To some it's a dream of a truce with Fate
In a constant search for health.

To some it's a dream of home and wife;
To some it's a crown above;
The dreams ahead are what make each life—
The dreams—and faith—and love!

CANADA

The most stupendous, perhaps, momentous fact in the world to-day is the magic word "Canada." I say "magic" deliberately. Where, in the current history of nations are the gates, standing open wide, receiving millions of human beings as partners to its wealth and opportunity? To the south is the greatest commonwealth of Democracy in the world. The United States has demonstrated the science and nation-making power of human transplantation. But, great as she is, she has ceased to act as a magnet to the over-peopled countries of the Old World. She has entered upon a period of consolidation. Canada is in a stage of absorption. Australia is trying, and bravely trying, to imitate her, but she lies beyond the bounds of convenience. For every thousand men who immigrate to her bushland ten thousand prefer the rarified atmosphere of this prairie to the semi-sub-tropical warmth of Australian States. Stupendous, indeed, is the word, and the significance thereof, of "CANADA!" But Canada, to the majority of Canadians, is still but a geographical expression. It has been given to few, to see her. I wonder how many law-makers at Ottawa, for instance, have ever travelled over the Rockies? The majority, I guess, have only read about her. To the few belongs the glory of having seen her in all her varied garments, and in her changeful, alluring moods.—A. M. Nichol, Regina.

CO-OPERATION OR SEPARATION

The British naval manoeuvres, revealing the dangerously narrow margin of safety on which the Empire relies for defence at its point of greatest vulnerability, has its significance for Canada, just as it has lessons for the British people upon whom the sole burden of Empire defence falls. We are too apt, in our superficial way of reasoning, to assume that these manoeuvres were calculated for the sole purpose of testing the strength of United Kingdom defences. A section of the Liberal press, indeed, would have people believe that the British navy exists, for that purpose only, and that the proposed temporary contribution of $35,000,000 was to help the British taxpayer in the defence of his own little islands. It is a distorted and dishonest presentation of the case.

It is true the manoeuvres had for their initial purpose the demonstration of the safety of home defence but that was not all. The British navy exists not for the defence of the United Kingdom only but for the defence of every Dominion and dependency of the crown, and the manoeuvres which have just been brought to a close, had for their purpose the fitting of the navy for work which, if it should ever have to be done, would be done in behalf of the least significant part of the Empire just as readily as it would be for Great Britain itself, that is the true meaning and significance of these manoeuvres. The commerce, the safety of the shores of every part of the vast Empire is the charge of the British navy.

What then should be Canada's attitude, in all fairness, to the British navy? The burden of maintaining this vast sea power becomes more onerous every year, as the expansion of other sea powers threaten Britain's sea supremacy on which the very existence of the Ampire depends. Shall we, in face of these facts, content ourselves with a navy such as Laurier has provided, that dare not venture beyond the confines of its smooth harbor waters? Shall we not rather, in recognition of our full Canadian manhood, unite in a measure of naval co-operation that shall raise the Gmpire at once and forever above all danger, all apprehension, all doubt) It will not be sufficient answer to these questions to argue that we are reverting to the former state of "centralization" and "control from Downing street." 'Every student of history knows that these policies have long since passed out of the realm of active politics. Neither will it answer to charge that we are entering upon a policy of contribution. The inescapable fact is that we must exist or fall as an Empire. Division would be fatal to our very being. Imperial co-operation in defence has yet to be worked out and syst?matized. It is not a policy that can be developed in a day. But acceptance of the principle by Canada is the first and most necessary. All else may safely be ,eft to the evolutions of time.

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking rough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; a very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarhozone Inhaler rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that hape hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c. sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

TRUE IN MISFORTUNE

Human nature is vilely selfish and rather enjoys the failure of other people. "Don't expect help or sympathy from others," advised a notorious millionaire. "You won't get it if you do. Keep your failures to yourself. If you tell them to other people, don't expect them to enjoy them, that's all. It's human nature, and cannot be altered." It is wonderful how many people accept that miserable view. It does not do them good. I believe it is as false a view as anyone can hold, and one which helps enormously to the failure of those who hold it. The man or woman who believes that human beings are no better than that, won't make the best of them, or of himself or herself either. "Don't expect too much, but don't expect too little of men or women," advised Lord Palmerston. "People are always running to one extreme or the other in too much or too little confidence in them. I have seen a good deal of gratitude and much ingratitude. I think I may assure you of this, that desert inevitably gathers to it some who remain true to it in every misfortune."—The Penny Magazine.

HOW TO OBTAIN A GOOD COMPLEXION

Steam and Massage Treatment for Blackheads—Olive Oil Plays Important Part

There is probably nothing more annoying to the girl who cares in the least about her skin than the appearance of those unpleasant and disfiguring things known by the name of blackheads.

Many girls spend a great deal of time in trying to rid themselves of the blackheads by squeezing them out with their fingers. These same girls go outside, gaily, soon afterwards, and it is painful to watch their surprised faces the following day when they have found, on examining their complexions in the mirror, that the blackheads are as numerous as they were before.

Some women continue indefinitely with this method of removing blackheads and gathering them as quickly again, but each day they find the pores of their skin enlarging, and their complexions becoming coarser and coarser.

The Way to Cure Them

There is only one way of getting rid of blackheads, and that is by steaming the skin. If, however, both blackheads and pimples appear on the face, internal as well as external treatments are wanted. Proper dieting often effects a cure in these cases.

To steam the face, fill a basin with boiling water, and cover your head and face, and basin, too—with a big bath towel, so that none of the steam is allowed to escape. For at least five minutes remain thus; then wipe your skin gently dry with a clean, soft towel, rub a little olive oil all over it, and massage the affected parts thoroughly.

You will find that the blackheads practically confine themselves to the chin, around the nose, and to the neck just below the ears. These are the parts that must have the most careful massage, the skin being made to absorb as much oil as possible. Now take a soft handkerchief, fold it so that it so that it forms a pad under the tip of each finger (the nails must not be allowed to come into direct contact with the skin), and very gently force out the blackheads. Do not try to remove too many at a time, or the skin will become sore and red.

The Final Process

Next douche the skin thoroughly in quite cold water, to which has been added enough simple tincture of benzoin to give the water a slightly milky appearance. Lastly, massage again; this time with cold cream. The cold-water douche is important, because it helps to close up the pores which the steam bath has opened.

The question as to whether complexion steam baths are good may be answered both affirmatively and negatively. They are not good if used often, but for occasional use they are excellent. Use about only once a fortnight.

Heating a lemon before squeezing it results in much more juice being extracted.

Fashion Decrees Pockets

Huge Price for Horse

M. Edmond Blanc bought the race horse The White Knight from W. R. Wyndham for the huge price of [illegible] guineas, the equivalent of [illegible] in our money. Some years back M. Blanc paid [illegible] for Flying Fox at public auction, which, until this later transaction, was the greatest sum ever paid for a thoroughbred. To secure a successor to the dead Flying Fox he set a new price record in paying this extraordinary sum for one of the greatest stayers of modern English turf history. The White Knight is a son of Desmond and Pella, representing the St. Simon line.

"FATHER'S DAY"

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see there is a proposal to set apart a "Father's Day." Why shouldn't we do something for the old man, for he pays the bills and on the cold winter mornings is forced to get up to light the fire. In summer they make him do the work of a horse in mowing the lawn beneath the blazing sun. His lot is not altogether a happy one, and he deserves recognition. This is quite touching but we doubt if father will appreciate it until things are made a little clearer. If the idea is to put a flag in father's hand and march him out to Jackson's Park and allow him to eat ice cream and roll on the grass, I do not think father will like it. I am quite sure he will not. He will kick against going into a procession, and hearing the small boys on the sidewalk sing that beautiful song, "Here Comes My Daddy Now; Oh, Pop, Oh, Pop." As a matter of fact father doesn't want a day set apart for him. He would prefer to have a night when he would be free to sit at a table with a few congenial friends and draw to a pair of tens and a jack.

An Old Boy.

THE POOR, RICH YOUNG MAN

This is the problem that besets young Vincent Astor. He is so rich that he cannot afford to go to college paradoxical as it sounds. The tragic death of his father in the sinking of the Titanic found the boy a freshman at Harvard, and he was compelled to leave school to "take charge" of his enormous estate. Of this estate he is now absolutely head; it runs itself with the aid of a staff of experts, and young Astor is already beginning to wonder how he can dispose of the daily fortune which the farseeing investments of his ancestors assured him.

Whether he wants it or not more money will continue to pile up at his bank. It is an impossibility to spend ten thousand a day and keep it up for any length of time. He cannot hope to keep even with his income unless he turns it into currency and flings it about on the pavement.—Montreal Herald.

SAVED THIRTY-SIX LIVES

Tay Bridge Hero Won Admiration of Mr. Carnegie

The man of whom Andrew Carnegie said "You are the bravest man I have ever met," died at Sunderland, England. Mr. Harry Watt was a fearless diver, and one of the most unassuming of heroes.

Born at Sunderland in 1836, "Harry" took a leading part in diving operations throughout the kingdom for over half a century. He was summoned to Tay Bridge after the great disaster, and his services were frequently requisitioned abroad.

Altogether he saved thirty-six persons from drowning. On eight occasions he was presented with medals—three by the Board of Trade for exceptional gallantry in saving life.

His fellow-townsmen gave "Harry" a gold watch and other gifts at various times. Some three years ago, when Mr. Andrew Carnegie was spending a few days in Sunderland, he specially sent for "Harry," and confessed himself honored at meeting with the hardy old veteran.

Learning that the diver and his wife were in none too prosperous circumstances, Mr. Carnegie, the same day, directed the trustees of the Carnegie Hero Fund to allow Mr. Watt $25 per month for life, and to continue the allowance to his widow until her death.

The late General Booth and Watt were great friends, and "Harry" never tired of talking about the "great general."

Acorns as Human Food

Very little attention has been given to the utilization of acorns. It is well known that they are used as food for cattle, horses, swine, turkeys, and those of several species of white oaks also form the food of man. The acorns of white oaks are mostly large and the trees in general produce fruit very abundantly. The Indians in California always gathered the acorns of the Californian oak and years of great scarcity often caused much misery. Even the early white settlers of California relied on the crop of acorns as a part of their food supply.

Polishing a Table

The surface of a dining table marred by hot dishes will be restored by a brushing with spirits of nitre, followed by a polishing with olive oil.

THE SEASHORE.

The Seashore Express that leaves Bonaventure Station every night at 8.30, with electric lighted buffet Sleeping Car and the day train, leaving Montreal at 8.30 a.m., with Parlor Card and Dining Cars reach the unsurpassed districts of Long Island Sound that are environments of New London, Conn., where the attractions are—warm surf bathing, fishing, sailing, driving or tramping.

Block Island, Watch Hill and Fisher's Island are three charming spots for the summer visitor and are swept constantly by ocean breezes—the temperature rarely rising above 75 degrees. A week at any of these places will do as much good as a sea voyage.

There is splendid Hotel and Boarding House accommodation at prices to suit all pockets.

Ask for Seashore booklet giving full information.

Less than a month ago Owner Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox created a mild and modest furor in baseball circles by the announcement of the purchase of Outfielder Larry Chappelle from Milwaukee at an outlay of $21,000 more or less.

Now cometh the angel of the immaculate hosedings with a cry that he was bumblebeed on the deal.

It develops that the Luxuriant Larry beat it to the bizarre belt with a maimed hock as one of his requisites. Consequently he has been about as valuable to the Callahans in their pennantward flight as a 12-inch buzz fan in a Texas tornado.

But despite the Chappelle bunko, for such it has been to date, the money men of the majors continue to extricate themselves from princely sums for promising minor league talent, which may or may not come up to expectations.

Frank Farrell, millionaire, owner of the New York Yankees, is the latest to qualify for membership to this unique and opulent order. Last week the former turfman enriched the Baltimore strong box to the extent of $17,000, receiving for said enriching Infielder Fred Maisel, the Oriole's star. H

Whether this Maisel will develop into a blossom of rare fragrance or an odiferous bloomer is something that mortal man knoweth not.

HELPS PROSPECTORS

Claims Staked as the Result of Information Given by Indians

There are many successful mining camps in British Columbia which owe their beginnings to the curiosity of Indians who have, during their hunting expeditions, come across some mineral-bearing rock and have brought it to the white man to identify. Others wishing to guard their hunting grounds from the intruding prospector have, discovering any mineral indication, shrewdly kept their find a secret lest by its discovery the privacy of their hunting preserves should be molested by the white man. Not far from Observatory Inlet, B.C., an Indian hunter chanced to come across a fallen tree which had been torn up by the roots, thus uncovering a vein of goodlooking ore. Fearing its discovery would start a mining camp in the best part of his hunting ground and so drive away all the fur-bearing animals from its vicinity, he spent the greater part of a day covering up the lead with moss which he had to pack from some distance. To an old bear hunter of the Naas River is due the credit of calling attention to the mineral deposits of Observatory Inlet. He is one of the first full-blooded Indians to hold in his own name a free miner's certificate in the Coast district of the Skeena Mining Division, in which division the Granby Bay mines are situated.

DEARER THAN GOLD

Many Metals Are Far More Costly—Some Are Peculiar

Gold is generally looked on as the last word in costliness; but, as a matter of fact, there are more metals dearer than gold than there are cheaper. The number of known metals is about seventy.

Iridium, for instance, of which a big find was made recently in Austria, is three times as expensive as gold. Gold is worth nearly $20 an ounce. Iridium is worth some $62, though the price will probably come down now.

Osmium is another metal much dearer than gold. It costs about $50 an ounce. It is by far the heaviest of all known substances, being more than twenty-two times as heavy as water. This metal has the peculiar property of being able to stand without melting the most intense heat known.

Palladium—about $40 an ounce—is just the reverse. It is quite easy to make palladium vanish in steam. Being of a white, silvery color, and untarnishable, it is used for the division marks on scales and delicate scientific instruments.

UNCLE OF EUROPE

Prince Waldemar of Denmark, though still a comparatively young man, fifty-four years of age, is uncle to five rulers of Europe, the Kings of England, Denmark, Norway, Greece, and the Emperor of Russia.

Prince Waldemar, besides being an Admiral in the British navy, is interested in commercial ventures. He is a personal and intimate friend of several East Asiatic rulers, especially the King of Siam, and his friendship may to a great extent be credited to the success the "East Asiatic Company" has achieved in East Asia. The Prince is the only surviving brother of Queen Alexandra, and after the death of his brother King George of Greece he inherited the title "The Uncle of Europe."

Easily adjusted metal shields have been invented to protect a man's hosiery from being soiled as his shoes are being blackened.

WONDERFUL CHARM OF THE FAR NORTH

Hudson Bay Factor Glad to Get Home After a Year Spent in Civilization's Hurly-burly

To spend thirteen years in the far north of Canada, completely isolated from civilization and its wonders, then to be granted a year's furlough and visit the world's largest city, seeing the automobile, the aeroplane, the submarine, wireless telegraph and other creations of science, undreamed of or in their infancy when last he mingled with civilization—such was the unique experience of Christopher Harding, of Fort McPherson, Hudson Bay Co. factor of the Great Slave Lake and Mackenzie River district. Mr. Harding was given a year's holiday as a guest of the big company in recognition of his valuable services.

Fort McPherson is near the mouth of the great Mackenzie river, within the Arctic circle. A journey of more than a thousand miles by canoe and portage, up the Mackenzie river, Great Slave Lake, Slave River, and Athabasca River brought him and his wife, a former Winnipeg girl, to Athabasca Landing, whence they proceeded overland to Edmonton, Alberta. Edmonton was the first city they had seen in thirteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding were accompanied by Fred Gaudet, an employe of the company who had not been "outside" in 28 years. Gaudet travelled only as far as Quebec, his boyhood home.

The March of Science

At Edmonton the experiences of the party began in earnest. Gaudet saw his first locomotive and the Hardings their first automobile. Neither knows which was the more awe-stricken, but perhaps it was Gaudet, who stared wide-eyed at the iron horse. "Well that beats a dog train, doesn't it?" he gasped. The Hardings chartered an automobile and spent a whole day in it. Electric bells, elevators and telephones Gaudet gave a wide berth.

At Winnipeg the two men visited the Hudson Bay offices and drew their savings of years, or what portion they wanted. Money is a useless commodity in the far northern fur country; indeed it is rarely seen there, the Indians being paid in supplies for the furs they turn in. Some Hudson Bay officials have small fortunes awaiting them when they get out where money is useful.

The Hardings then took the train for the east and sailed for England, where they crowded into less than four months the delights of a civilization from which they had been cut off for more than a dozen years. Mr. Harding is of middle age and save for his bronzed face bears more the appearance of a comfortable, contented man of business than one accustomed to Arctic rigors. He was, strangely enough, born in India and reared in England, at the village of Wimbledon, near London. He is well educated and kept in touch with the world's doing through the medium of newspapers six months to a year old when delivered at his post by the northern mail couriers.

Glad to Get Back

"Is it lonesome 'way up there? Well, perhaps you would think so, but the north is home to me now and I am glad to be getting back to it. I have had enough of civilization to satisfy me for many more years. Speaking of loneliness, in all my life I never felt so lonely as when I stood for an hour on London Bridge and watched perhaps hundreds of thousands of people hurrying past. Never in the depths of the wilderness did I feel so much alone as when in that vast throng I realized that there was not a soul who knew or cared about me. That was real loneliness.

"London's millions, its traffic, the 'tubes,' the suffragettes and the aeroplane are wonderful sights to a man from the solitudes of the fur country but the call of the north was always strong within me and I shall not pine for them."

Temperatures in the fur country run to extremes known perhaps nowhere else in the world. Summer is very brief, but 100 degrees of heat in some districts not quite as far north as Fort McPherson is not unknown. Fifty below is quite common during the long winter; 68 below is the lowest Mr. Harding [illegible] recorded.

Mr. Harding and his wife, a few assistants, an aged missionary and some mounted police are the only white people in the district. But the Indian trappers are a peaceful people and return the kindness of their paleface brothers.

MAHER'S ENGLISH HOME

Spends a Good Deal of His Time in the Saddle, Fox-hunting

"Danny" Maher, the jockey, has settled more or less permanently in England. A few years ago he rented a house near his friend, George Williamson, the famous ex-steeplechase jockey, and was so charmed with the district that he bought about a hundred acres of land. He now spends the greater part of the winter season there keeping himself in condition by hunting with the Earl of Harrington's hounds. Maher, whose parents come from Tipperary, did at one time think of buying a place in that county in order to settle down when he retired from riding, but gave up the idea

FUN FOR LITTLE ONES

Some Little Tricks to Amuse the Children Indoors

Amongst all sorts of amusing experiments which can be made with tumblers, sticks, forks, and spoons, perhaps one of the most favorite ones with children is the penny and tumbler trick.

If you fill a tumbler with water—as full as it is possible without overflowing—and observe the line of the water you will find that in the middle of the tumbler the water is slightly concave—that is, forms a depressed line just as if it had been scooped out. This, which is caused by the natural weight of the water, is however, not apparent to the usual uninitiated, and although the water might, on the edge of the glass, be almost on the point of overflowing, any child can challenge a grown-up person to put in it many coppers without spilling a single drop of water.

To perform this little trick the coppers must be put exactly in the centre and dropped very gently, first inserting the edge in the water. Great will be the surprise of all concerned to see that, according to the size of the glass, five or six coppers can thus be put in until the water in the centre becomes level with the sides, when of course, the water will flow over.

A most amusing experiment might be tried with a lighted candle.

Take a tumbler half full of very cold water and, having lighted the candle, hold it sideways over the tumbler. The hot wax will pour in drops into the water, when the coldness of the latter will congeal the melted wax immediately it touches the surface of the water, thus creating a rough-edged little ball strangely like the flower known as the "lily of the valley." After a good many of these flowers are produced in this way they are threaded one at the time on a long thin piece of wire, a small knot preventing the flower from slipping through.

The wires are then twisted lightly over each other to form the spray of lilies, which, when mixed with strips of green paper cut and twisted to imitate the long pointed leaves, makes a most charming and interesting ornament.

Struck a Witness at Assizes

He struck Mary Price a blow on the face after she had given evidence. The man had been concerned in a conspiracy to escape from Usk Prison, where he was serving a term for forgery.

Plea of the Newly-Married

There was much merriment at the New Ross Guardians' meeting on the reading of a letter from a laborer stating that, noting that the Board would only give cottages to married men, he had "married the girl at last," and that, as his having no house was "not conducive to happiness," he hoped the Board would "hurry up" and grant him a cottage.

Carbolic Soap

Shave and melt a bar of mottled Castile soap. The melting is best done in a water bath so there will be no scorching. Beat into the melted soap, a little at a time, half a pint of carbolic acid solution of fifty per cent. strength. Keep on beating, with the soap still in the water bath, for at least a quarter of an hour. Mold into smaller cakes or balls and let stand a month in a dry place. Suds made from this soap, or scrubbing with the soap itself, will disinfect glass, pottery and metal. With wooden vessels burning is the thing. Carbolic soap suds, however, will destroy germs in woodwork if they are applied to it boiling hot.

A MATHEMATICAL TRADITION

An interesting problem in mathematics assumes the form of a tradition connecting itself with the name of Josephus, the Jewish historian. After the Romans had captured Jotopat, so the story runs, Jospehus and forty others sought shelter in a cave. So afraid were they of falling into the hands of the Romans that all of them excepting Josephus and one other man resolved to kill themselves. The wit of the historian began to work, devising a scheme to save himself. He therefore proposed that they all stand in a semicircle, that they put each other to death, killing every third man in regular order, and that the last surviving man should then commit suicide. This agreed upon, he was careful to place his like-minded comrade in the sixteenth place in the line and himself in place thirty-one, with the result that the two were the last that were left, and by this means escaped death. It is a true problem, and the question was to know before the killing begun which number in the line the two friends should assume

Overclad School Children

In his report on the medical inspection of school children in the Renfrewshire district of Scotland, Dr. Henry D. Robb stated that the number of children who were really underclad formed a very small percentage. Cases of children being underclad were more frequently met with among boys than among the girls. A considerable number of the children were found to be overclad.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

"Return Trip East," $18.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from all points east of MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton to Winnipeg.

CURVE PITCHING

A Youth From a Barnyard Surprised the Professionals

Curve pitching was a great innovation in its day and caused almost as great a commotion as the advent of the aeroplane or the wireless telegraph. I think it was back in '80 or thereabouts that I first saw it uncorked, says "Uncle Dud," and experienced the bitter humiliation of being repeatedly whiffed out by a youngster several years my junior and for whom I had heretofore entertained that feeling of contempt with which the haughty captain of a crack team is wont to view a youngster who wears glasses and doesn't approve of slang. I was a battle-scarred backstop, approaching the mature and seasoned age of 17, had been the hero of the local diamond for several seasons, and had, by careful cultivation, acquired swagger and gruffness of voice. My broken and distorted fingers were the admiration of the entire village and a source of no small satisfaction to myself, although I would gladly trade them for straight ones to-day. Catching was no snap in those days, although we stood back for all but the third strike, except when there was a base runner to take care of. It was some time later that the pneumatic protector, the padded mitt and the wire muzzle came into general vogue. Of course, we had heard of curves, but it sounded like a joke to us wise ones and we passed it up—all but Clabby Williams. It had a scientific sound to him and he began to take an interest in baseball and to work out the curve problem all by himself with his father's barn for a backstop. Clabby Williams came to me with the astounding suggestion that I give him a tryout on the mound. There were hoots of derision when little Clabby Williams, pale and nervous, but with a gleam in his eye and a turn to his jaw that we had never seen there before, entered the box and fanned a big, grinning southpaw who had already landed on the pill for two three-baggers and a home run. He didn't use any wind-up and he hadn't much speed, but he fanned every Kenosha that came to bat for five straight innings. And ever since that time when I have met with small persons who are pale and delicate and wear glasses, I remember little Clabby, and say to myself, "Well, you never can tell!"

Louis Cyr's Power

Louis Cyr, who was known as the strong man of Montreal, inherited much of his power from his mother, who was six feet and one inch in height, and weighed 267 pounds. Before he fell ill two years previous to death Cyr weighed 365 pounds. His height was five feet ten inches, and his chest measurement fifty-nine inches. When he was a policeman in St. Cunegonde he once came into the station with three rough-and-tumble prisoners, one under each arm and the third in a vise-like grip in front of him, but all clear of the ground. Cyr had his share of French-Canadian thrift, and retired with a competence after a lengthy career as a public entertainer.

Stomach Always Baulked Had Constant Indigestion

Smell of Cooking Made Him Sick—Bilious Two Days a Week.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Chummons' experience is not unusual. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better if not cured next morning.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Chummons, of Newbridge, P.Q. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

She Built Her Nest.

A few months ago, a George street store offered a number of canaries for sale. The birds were all guaranteed to be cock birds and singers. On Saturday she asked the real estate agent, "Is your canary singing yet?" He replied, "No, the fool of a bird is starting to build her nest in the cage."

Lunge Caught by Propeller.

As Mr. Thomas Palmer, of the National Hotel was out in his gasoline launch, on Saturday morning, he made a strange catch. As the launch was going about ten miles an hour, and the engine merrily purring, the propellor suddenly stopped. An investigation showed that the trolling line had wound in the wheel. Some unhappy fisherman had had his line broken by a big lunge. This fish with the forty feet of line trailing behind, had crossed Mr. Palmer's boat. The line was caught by a blade of the propellor and tangled up. This 15 pound lunge was still alive when taken on board the launch.

Lindsay Bigger Than This City !

Mr. W. Rudkins of this city, who has made a little better than good as Lindsay's Industrial Commissioner, has just issued a dainty pamphlet descriptive of that bustling little burg, which nestles on the banks of the stump fringed Scugog River. The pamphlet gives full description of Lindsay's mercantile, business and manufacturing industries. In the pamphlet is a folded map, showing Lindsay's geographical position and her railway connections. But ! Fi Billy for making Lindsay the size of a new half dollar and your native city the dimensions of a tuberculosis stricken 5 cent piece ! ! ! This pamphlet was gotten up in Toronto. It however, some months ago, caused the Lindsay papers several spasms wordy hemmorages, because they thought the work had been placed with this office.

A CHRISTIANIZED ESKIMO

In Spite of all Persecution He Stuck to New Faith

The whole life of the primitive Eskimo is governed by precedent. Although outwardly the freest and most irresponsible being in the world, he is in reality the slave of public opinion and the numberless customs and superstitions of his ancestors. The ways of his fathers are good enough for him, and the world of the old men and witch-doctors, who treasure up ancient precedent like the Pharisees of old, is the standard he lives and dies by.

For an Eskimo to break one of these unwritten laws is to render himself a social outcast. Although treated with kindness, he is no longer reckoned as a member of the tribe. A brother-in-law of an Eskimo chief had early embraced Christianity, being converted on a trip to Nome by one of the first missionaries. Being a very conscientious man, he soon recognized the incompatibility of retaining his faith and conforming to the worship of his people. The spirit of the Scotch Covenanters was in his veins. He refused to go through the usual rites of his people, and prayed to the God of the white stranger at home. As a result he was forbidden his place in the village kos-ga (or meeting place), where every man has his recognised station, carefully graded according to merit. His son was not allowed to dance with the young men or witness any of the councils or witch-doctorings reserved for the men; his daughters could not take part in the annual dance of the women, nor was any member of the tribe bold enough to ask them in marriage They all married Siberian strangers and left the old man's house desolate, but he stuck to his faith to the last. Always cheerful, always ready to help, living daily the faith that was in him, he was one of the few of his race who was brave enough to withstand the witch-doctor.

Calendar Stone of the Aztecs

The famous Aztec calendar stone, now in the National Museum of Mexico, is a block of basalt weighing 25 tons and having a diameter of 11 feet. Encircling the head of the sun god is a diadem bearing hieroglyphics representing the divisions of time and the Aztec method of numberng the years. The number of days in their year was 365, as in ours. Each year had a different emblem repeated every four years. The first year was called Tochtil, or rabbit; the second, Acatel, or reed; the third, Teeptal, or flint; the fourth, Calli, or house. The years were further arranged by thirteens, four such periods making a Mexican age. When the City of Mexico was taken by Cortes in 1521, and the great temple destroyed, the calendar stone was left in the square. It was buried in 1558, and not recovered again until 1790.

CARE OF WORK HORSES

Some General Rules That Apply Either to City or Country

1. Start at a walk, and let your horse work very easily for the first half hour.

2. A heavy draft horse should never be driven faster than a walk, with or without a load.

3. Look to your harness. Avoid these faults especially: Bridle too long or too short; blinders pressing on the eye or flapping; throat-latch too tight; collar too tight or too loose; traces too long; breeching too low down or too loose; inside reins too long, in the case of pairs.

4. Drive your horse all the time. Feel his mouth gently. Never jerk the reins.

5. Take the horse out of the shafts as much as possible; and if you drive a pair or four, unfasten the outside traces while the horses are standing; they will rest better that way.

6. Teach your horses to go into the collar gradually. When a load is to be started, speak to the horses and take a firm hold of the reins so that they will arch their necks, keep their legs under them, and step on their toes. A loose rein means sprawling and slipping, often with one horse ahead of the other.

7. Water your horse as often as possible. Water in moderate quantities will not hurt him so long as he keeps moving.

8. Blanket your horse carefully when he stands, especially if he is at all hot. Repeated slight chills stiffen and age a horse before his time.

9. Bring your horse in cool and breathing easily. If he comes in hot, he will sweat in the stable, and the sudden stopping of hard work is bad for his feet.

10. In hot weather or in drawing heavy loads, watch your horse's breathing. If he breathes hard, or short and quick, it is time to stop.

11. Remember that the horse is the most nervous of all animals, and that little things annoy and irritate him. Remember that he will be contented or miserable accordingly as you treat him.

LOCKING UP THE TOWER

Quaint Ceremony Carried on Nightly in Old London

Very few people are aware of an ancient custom which is still kept up at the Tower of London. Just before midnight a beef-eater and the chief yeoman porter secure the keys from the governor's house to "lock up." Having received the keys, they proceed to the guard-room.

"Escort for the keys!" calls out the porter, and a sergeant then marches off, and the sentries they pass issue the usual challenge of "Who goes there?" to which the answer is "Keys."

Arriving at the entrance to the Tower grounds, the Lions' Gate, the porter locks the gates, and the party returns to the guard-room, the sentry challenging as before and receiving the same answer. [illegible] guard-room [illegible], the sentry stationed there stamps his foot, at the same time giving the usual challenge.

"Keys," replies the porter.

"Whose keys," the sentry asks.

"King George's keys."

"Advance King George's keys, and all's well."

The porter then says, "God bless King George," and all present respond with "Amen." The keys are then saluted, and returned to the governor's house, where they remain until the next night's ceremony.

MODERN DESPATCHING

Telephones Displacing the Telegraph For the Actual Handling of Trains

The new system of despatching trains by telephone inaugurated by the Grand Trunk Railway between Montreal and Toronto has been in use long enough for a thorough and satisfactory test. It is intended eventually to despatch by telephone over the entire system.

The method followed is slightly different from the ordinary telephone line in that it is always under the direct control of the chief train despatcher so that the wire cannot be used by operators at way stations except through his office. It is a marked improvement on the old telegraph system which was subject to interruption while being used for transmitting train orders. The telephone is exclusively used for handling orders for the movement of trains, ordinary railroad business being still conducted by means of telegraph.

The old rules are still made use of All orders are repeated back to the despatcher by the operator for reference to the oiginal copy before the signal "O.K" is given. The numbers of trains and engines, the stations names of conductors and engineers and other important parts of orders are spelled out in full both in transmission and repetition.

ORIGIN OF GYPSIES

The first official recognition of the presence of Gypsies in England is contained in an act prohibiting their itineracy, dated 1540. Bands of Gypsies appeared in Germany, Italy and France early in the fifteenth century, but it is to be supposed that they did not reach England in considerable numbers until the early part of the sixteenth century. The law referred to commanded Englishmen to refrain from all intercourse with the dark-skinned tourists, and during the reign of Charles I. thirteen persons were executed at one assize for having associated with Gypsies. In both England and America, up to comparatively recent times, Gypsies were treated as vagrants, and often persecuted. There are many theories in regard to the origin of Gypsies, but the one most generally accepted is that they are the descendents of low-caste Hindus expelled by Timour about 1398. Despite their association with other peoples, the manners, customs, superstitions, visage and appearance of the Gypsies remain practically the same as when they made their first appearance in Europe five centuries ago, and they continue to make the same pretense of a knowledge of futurity.

Bagged a Bull Moose

A remarkable feat was accomplished in the woods some twenty miles north of Quebec by Miss Langelier, daughter of the Lieutenant-Governor of the province. The young lady, only eighteen and just out of the convent, shot and killed a magnificent bull moose while on a hunting trip with a party organized by Mr. Gustave Langelier, her cousin.

OLD CONVICT SHIP

The Success Was Built in 1790 and Carried Felons

The ancient British convict ship Success which has been showing herself to the New Englanders is worth looking at from the viewpoint of prison reformers and philanthropists generally. She has been patched up a bit since the days when she transported across seas to the penal colonies of Great Britain hundreds of felons and carried in irons hundreds more who perished on the voyages, still in irons. Originally the Success was an armed East India merchantman with old fashioned ports, from which protruded highly polished brass guns to fight off pirates that had a habit of taking chances with ships bringing luxuries from the Indies. She might have been regarded beautiful in those days, but as compared with modern models or the sleek, high sparred clippers and packets of the '50's she is mighty homely. She was built at Moulmain in 1790 of teak. Her sides are two and a half feet thick at the bilge. She has a square stern, quarter galleries, bluff bows and other peculiarities of the ships of her era. She is 135 feet long, which was big for her day as a merchantman, but vessels of almost her length might be suspended from the davits of the Imperator or the Aquitania. She never made any records as a merchantman, but she created one when she made her last trip across the Atlantic under her own sail, by covering the course in ninety-six days. This is the longest Atlantic trip in modern times. If the human beings who died aboard her should all come back to make a personal inspection of her she would be unable to accommodate them. Some of them, if they brought along their human forms, would be unable to see the old hulk, as they went blind before dying in the "black holes." The Success went out of commission as a convict ship after the exposure in 1857 of the inhuman treatment of prisoners under the hulk system. From 1860 to 1869 she was used as a women's prison and later was a reformatory ship and ammunition store. In 1892 the Success was scuttled by residents of Sydney, N.S.W., after she had been sold. The owners raised her and used her and put her on exhibition. She has been shown five times in London, and her press agent declares that 14,000,000 have since looked her over, including the King of England, the German Emperor and the Prince of Wales.

Servia's Royal Family

Before his accession to the Servian throne, King Peter lived in exile in Paris, in a flat for which he paid the very modest rent of $150 per annum. He was in those days a great athlete and boxer. King Peter has three children, two sons and one daughter. The elder son, Prince George, known as "the Madcap Prince," whose escapades and amours have been the talk of Europe, was relieved of the right of succession to the throne in 1909. The younger son, Prince Alexander, now is heir apparent. Princess Helena, the daughter, married a Russian prince a year or so ago.

CANADA WILL GIVE $2,238,600 FOR 1913 STEAMSHIP SUBSIDY

Tri-Weekly Service by Twelve Vessels Will Be Maintained Instead of Weekly Service by Four Ships--$600,000 Paid Last Year as Against $1,000,000 For New Service

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—In subsidies to steamships the Canadian Government will pay this year $2,238,300. For this sum the mails are carried free, and freight and passenger service maintained on the ocean and coastal routes for the development of foreign and domestic trade.

The principal service is that on the Atlantic between Canada and Great Britain. Under the new contract made this year the Government is paying one million dollars annually for a tri-weekly service performed by twelve steamships, instead of $600,000 a year for a weekly service by four steamships as formerly. The new contract is with four companies The Allans, the C.P.R., the Canadian Northern and the White Star Dominion Line. In former years the contract was with the Allens, who divided up the subsidy and sailings with the Canadian Pacific.

On the Pacific there are several ocean service contracts, chief of which is that between Vancouver and Hong Kong, China, which calls both ways at Yokohama, Japan. The service performed by the Canadian Pacific Company, the yearly subsidy being $225,000 of which Canada pays $125,000 and Great Britain $100,000.

A subsidy of $180,000 yearly is paid for a monthly service between Vancouver and Auckland, New Zealand, 6,366 miles.

HUGHES, MINISTER OF MILITIA LIKES SIR IANS REPORT

Headquarters Chiefs at Ottawa Delighted With its Comprehensiveness--Recommendations a Matter for Study

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—"I am very much pleased with General Sir Ian Hamilton's report," said Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, this morning. "As I did not influence him in any way. I made up my mind I would have him see everything, good, bad and indifferent. As far as his remarks and criticisms of the militia are concerned, his views largely coincide with my own.

"As to General Hamilton's recommendations, such as sixteen days' drill, changing the instructional methods, etc., these are all matters which will have to be given further consideration. I am sure that the public will greatly appreciate such a splendid report."

Members of the headquarters staff all speak high highly of the report and declare it is the most comprehensive and thorough report which has ever been prepared on Canadian forces. The report, written in splendid literary style, is illumined by flashes of humor and shows remarkable powers of observation.

The chief criticism of the report is that while from a military standpoint, General Hamilton has outlined what Canada might need, yet if his proposals were made law it would mean probably a trebling of the Canadian militia expenditure.

BRITISH MONARCHS BESTOW COSTLY PRESENTS ON MANUEL

Marriage of Portugal's Former King to be Attended by Eighty Princes--Prince of Wales to Represent England

London, Aug. 18.—The Prince of Wales will represent the King at the marriage of Manuel of Portugal and Princess Augustine Victoria of Hohenzollern, which is definitely fixed to take place at Sigmaringen, the home of the bride, September 4. Manuel leaves for Sigmaringen to-day. 80 Royal princes and princesses will attend the ceremony.

The wedding presents include a magnificent set of silver for the table from King George and Queen Mary, the largest piece of which bears the inscription, "King Manuel on the occasion of his marriage from his affectionate cousins, King George and Queen Mary, September 4, 1913."

The royal use of the word "cousin" is to be noted, for Manuel's blood relationship with the British reigning house is not particularly close. The late King Carlos of Portugal and George V. were third cousins, their common ancestor being Duke Francis Frederick of Sax-Coburg, grandfather of Queen Victoria's husband.

Another wedding present for King Manuel is a gold wine flagon from Queen Alexandra with the greeting, "For my dear Manuel, King of Portugal, from his affectionate aunt. Alexandra."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fair and about the same temperature.

DAMS ARE BURNED BY FOREST FIRES

As previously intimated in The Times, forest fires are raging in the north country. The worst part of these fires, as said, are in the township of Cavandish and Anstruther.

However, Jumbo Dam on the Burnt river has been destroyed by fire. The Deer Lake dam on the Massassagua River has also been burnt. 15 dams built by lumbermen on creeks leading to the Massassagua have also been burned. These latter named dams are on Stoney, Copper and Cranberry Creeks. They will have to be replaced to enable next season's lumbering operations to begin.

Mr. McClellan, Supt. of the Trent Canal has sent gangs of men to Highwater, Eagle and Gull Lakes to fight the fires. A gang of men has also been sent, for the same purpose to Squaw and Bark Rivers.

SECRET METHODS OF LOCAL POLICE

The Public That is Interested in What Tends Towards Morality Excluded From Court

It seems that the public as represented by the press of this city are regarded as a lot of imbeciles. On several occasions lately the public has been ordered out of the Juvenile Courts. It is admitted that this may obtain in some places, or even be allowed by law. Still the police of this city know that the local reporters, as a rule, when requested, for the attainment of the ends of justice or in the name of morality, leave out certain details or names, they do so. No fault in this respect is found with Chief Thompson. He is simply following the old Star Chamber, Inquisition methods' he succeeded to.

At the Juvenile Court yesterday, as indicated, by the evening papers, was tried an assault on a young girl. The public seems to have no right to know anything about these secret sessions. Mothers of young girls have no right to take warning by the facts. Mothers of girls must according to present police methods, like the ostrich when danger threatens their girls, hide their heads behind the west or south wall of that Star Chamber, called the "Juvenile Court."

As far as the Times is concerned, we can point to several cases where we could have "scooped" the evening papers by publishing police news, which, by request of the police, in the interests of justice and morality, were omitted. It seems time that this Star Chamber system, in Peterborough, should be relegated to the methods of bygone ages.

A few weeks ago the public were shut out of a Police Commissioners' meeting. For what? Simply, as far as the public who pays the bills goes, because two local policemen were "on the carpet." It is understood that the mother of the injured girl was given some straight talk by the magistrate. Surely the mothers of Peterborough have a right to benefit, without personal contact, by a modified account of such cases.

The Toronto Star of last night contains a column long report of the Juvenile Court, held in Toronto yesterday. This report is headed "JUVENILE COURT" Etc. Surely the mothers of Peterborough should rise in their numbers and demand that the present "ostrich sticking its head in the sand when danger comes method" as practised in the local Juvenile Court, be abolished. It would be right that the city owns the police, not the police owning the mothers of Peterborough.

IDEAL FISHING RESORT

Bobcaygeon Beats Record This Year For Big Fish.

Special to The Times.

Bobcaygeon, Aug. 18.—Here is some of the catches of big fish made here this season:

Mr. Gordon & Nickelson 35 lb. lunge
Mr. Perin, Toronto, 20½ lb. lunge.
Mr. Rodgers, Pittsburg, Pa., 18 lb.
Mrs. Simpson, Franklin, Pa. 17 lb.
Mr. Sheehan, Bobcaygeon, 22½ lb.
Mr. Kelly, Bobcaygeon, 21 lb.

The fishing has been splendid, and many large ones have gone over the line to be set up. It is too bad the railway accommodation to Peterborough are not better; it is a long, round about way by rail. Not one accident by drowning this season, thanks to the splendid lot of guides.

LOCAL OFFICERS FIND AN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

At 2 o'clock a few mornings ago, as the night watchman was passing the Examiner office, he discovered in the dimlight, a limp human form, hanging by a rope from an electrolier in the main office. He quickly summoned a passing officer. The watchman has a key and, quickly, the vigilant officers entered the building. With sweat standing on their foreheads, as large as marbles, and eyes straining, they rushed to the pendant figure. With one swift slash of his trusty blade, the watchman severed the rope. The limp and silent figure fell in a crumped heap to the floor. It was a stuffed fancy dress costume belonging to a local Typo. On the breast was pinned a card bearing the legend "F — — — C — — — —, the local Ty Cobb Peterborough's last hope in baseball."

GENERAL CLEAN-UP AT QUEBEC ARSENAL IS NOW UNDER WAY

Minister of Militia Causes Rigid Investigation by Competent Officers and Big Changes are Result

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—A further example of the efficiency and the businesslike methods, which have been introduced into the Department of Militia and Defence, is seen in the investigation with the Quebec arsenal which has been concluded. The result are also known and justify the inquiry ordered by the present Minister of Militia and Defence.

It has been shown that allw as not well in the conduct of the Quebec Arsenal, where the ammunition for the soldiers of the country is made. Under the late regime there was no attempt made to employ men who knew their work. The arsenal was simply a place where party favorites secured jobs.

The Country Loses.

In a position where training and knowledge were above all things required there was a sad deficiency in those qualifications and as a result the country will lose hundreds of thousands of dollars. The present Minister will do all he can under the circumstances to salvage the wreckage left as a heritage to him by his predecessors.

Must Be Qualified

The Minister has announced that he will in future only employ in the arsenal those who are qualified and that race creed or party affiliations will not weigh with him. He has no desire for the sake of party like his predecessor in office to endanger the lives of the soldiers who use the ammunition. He has superannuated the Superintendent of the Arsenal and appointed a new officer in his place.

For several years suspicions had been entertained that conditions were not altogether satisfactory and one of those entertaining these suspicions was Hon. Col. Hughes, Minister of Militia. Last year he looked over the arsenal and made certain suggestions, more especially with regard to the making of small arms ammunition. These do not seem to have been heeded.

Cordite Ran Out.

Attention was more especially drawn to the working of the establishment by a series of events which began in September, 1912. In that month the arsenal, which should have had six months' supply of cordite in advance, ran out of the explosive altogether, and no more was obtained until March, 1913. During this period of about six months the arsenal went on manufacturing the component parts, i.e., the brass cartridge cases and the bullets and enough of these were made for seven million rounds, an amount of ammunition which when complete would represent a money value of some $175,000.

Proved Defective.

When the cordite was at last procured and the cartridges began to be made up this great quantity of component parts, they proved defective, about half of them 'blowing back'; that is, the force of the explosion was exerted backwards around the cap towards the breech instead of forwards towards the muzzle. This defect developed in the ordinary course of examination within the arsenal.

Staff Was Useless.

Thus the Militia Department found itself faced with the fact that this large quantity of ammunition was utterly unsatisfactory. The Minister at this juncture instructed Lieut.-Col. E. B. Morrison, D.S.O., director of artillery, to proceed to Quebec and investigate. This was in March last. Col. Morrison began with the seven millions of components which he found, and which as a matter of fact were cluttering the establishment, as there had been delay in completing and passing them out. Even the wooden boxes to contain them had been completed and further encumbered the arsenal.

Cause—Carelessness

The cause appeared to be carelessness in manufacture, the machines not having been properly kept up; in particular the dies which stamped out the cap chamber had been allowed to get blunt. Colonel Morrison further observed that the examination of the cartridge cases and bullets within the arsenal, which was supposed to be of the strictest description, was exceedingly prefunctory, good articles being neglected and mal-formed bullets and cases being passed 18-lb. Shells Defective.

Simultaneously Col. Morrison made an extraordinary and disturbing discovery with regard to another department of the Arsenal, the making of 18-pounder shells for the new quickfiring field guns. About 7,000 shells had been manufactured in the shell factory: this is "fixed ammunition," the propellant and the shell being made up together, with a brass

POLICE CHIEF RESIGNS

ANOTHER 18 INCH WATER MAIN TO BE LAID THIS YEAR

Water Commissioners Met Council Last Night, and Debentures to Pay For This Work Will be Issued—No Additional Taxes Will Result--Water Works Revenue to Take Care of Cost

The City Fathers met in Committee of the whole last night, Mayor W. H. Bradburn presiding. All the aldermen were present. The Water Commissioners attended with a view to arranging for another 18 inch water main from the pumping station to Auburn, down George to Barnardo avenue and to connect eventually with lighter mains to and down the Monaghan road to South City.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, explained that while the department has sufficient pressure at the pumping station, the existing means cannot take care of it at present, however, the purpose is to lay the 18 inch main to Barnardo avenue only at a cost of from $18,000 to $20,000, which will relieve the present situation. The Commissioners have $23,000 in their reserve fund, against which debentures can be issued. Mr. Matthews assured Council that the cost of laying this new 18 inch main will be taken care of strictly by the revenue from the water works. No additional taxes will be imposed. The laying of an additional but lighter main from Barnardo avenue to the Monaghan road and onward to South City will be undertaken later.

To Ald. Langford, Mr. Matthews replied that the laying of these additional mains will, of course, bar any reduction in water rates for some years.

Both Mr. Matthews and Moore asserted that some citizens are very unreasonable, and much waste in water prevails. The latter contended that some citizens leave their water on all night, and that a huge waste of water is due to bad plumbing.

The cost of this whole new work from the pumping station to and down the western boundary to South City would cost about $60,000 or $70,000.

It was generally offered that West City is suffering the most for want of adequate water service, some asserting that in certain districts the pressure is hardly sufficient to carry water up to bath rooms.

Council as a whole, agreed that our experience of a few weeks ago, amply testified the crying need of a new 18 inch main from the pumping station down to Barnardo avenue to meet present requirements.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Gillespie, the City Solicitor will be instructed to prepare a by-law authorizing the issue of debentures to cover the expense of laying an 18 inch main from the pumping station to Barnardo avenue.

Princess Street Grievance.

Ald. Green took the opportunity of enquiring if Council and the Commissioners could not get closer together and tax only for actual service used by citizens where water mains are laid and not a sewer, as is the case on Princess street.

The Commissioners promised Ald. Green to consider his proposition to give Princess street residents and any other citizens similarly situated an extension of time in which to pay full water rates. That is to say, not to charge rates on bath rooms and sinks until such time as the city can furnish sewer privileges.

Parks and Church Grounds.

To Ald. Johnston, Mr. Matthews replied that had the parks been watered intelligently like the library, collegiate institute grounds and private lawns, they would not be in the condition they are to-day. It is impossible to permit parks and church grounds to be watered in the day time.

SIROCCO'S DESCRIPTION FULLY FITS A CITIZEN OF TORONTO

Man Suspected of Martin Murder May Be a Barber Who Left Toronto for New York a Year Ago

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The description of one of the men who is believed to have been concerned in the murder of William Martin, and who is known as Mike Sirocco, has caused considerable comment in Toronto The description given out by the New York police exactly fits a well known character who formerly made his home here.

About the same age and with practically the same physical measurements, the Toronto man who answers the description was known as "Mike," and employed as a barber in Toronto. He was rather a clever dancer, had a season on the stage with a small company which toured Ontario, and he was in the habit of associating with theatrical people

The Toronto barber left Toronto for New York about one years ago It is believed that he might have known Martin in Toronto, and, meeting him in New York, succeeded in inducing him to accompany him to the house in 57th street.

RAINY RIVER DISTRICT MAY BE IN CORN BELT

An Experiment Near Fort William Shows That Product Grows Very Well.

Fort William, Aug. 18.— The present years crop may prove that this district is in the corn belt.

John Mountstephen, merchant and farmer at Kakabrka Falls, this spring planted as an experiment about an acre and a half of corn seed such as thrives in Minnesota just across the border. The corn to-day is apparently in as good condition, and as well developed as the average fields farther south.

BASEBALL

Quite a large number were present yesterday at Riverside Park when the Petes went up against the London aggregation, and were defeated after a hard fought battle. Tracey in the box for the Petes pitched an excellent game and had the visitors under his control at all times. The boys to a man put up a great exhibition of ball. Heck, the London pill shooter was well pounded, and let the Petes in for a good many hits. In the beginning of the ninth with London at the bat, Tracey seemed to weaken after he had been hit thrice, and as many runs were tallied, when he was replaced by Belting, who finished the game. The score stood at the end of the eighth 4—2 in the Petes favor, and at the end of the ninth 5—4 in London's favor. Only a few errors crept into the game, and altogether the game was fairly fast.

Hilliard played a brilliant game in the field, while it was his day off with the stick. Harry Brant was also up to his usual good form both at the bat and in the field.

Umpire Daly played his usual impartial part in regard to decisions, some of which were not of the best.

Neal of London, in the left garden, brought down a nice line drive yesterday with one hand.

A feature of the game also was the three-base hit yesterday made by Tracey. When Ken. came up to bat he wore his usual broad smile, and it was noticed that he had his eyes on a big open space between rightfielder Stewart's knees, and taking a healthy swat, planted the pill right through Stewart's legs, but anyway, the London gardener couldn't get the pill back in time—and Ken knew it.

The game to-day promises to be a humdinger, and a large attendance is expected.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 381 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

HEARTS THAT SPEAK WITH GOLDEN VOICES

So much of our lives is, and must be, made up of failures that it will not do to be mistaken as to how others will treat us with regard to them. Will people sympathise with us and help us, or will they be rather pleased, and, perhaps, even go out of their way to make things worse?

There was a tragedy in one of the papers the other day. An inquest was held upon a man who had committed suicide, and it was discovered that he had been worried out of his mind by a small debt he had contracted. An old friend of his turned up at the inquest.

"I never knew he was in such trouble," he stated. "I guessed something was worrying him, but he never told me what it was. I would have lent him the money if I had known."

"Perhaps he thought he had no security to offer?" suggested the coroner.

"His word would have been good enough for me," declared the witness.

"The deceased man, unfortunately," said the coroner to the jury, "appears to have been too proud to acquaint anyone with the fact he had failed in business, or too doubtful of the willingness of others to help him."

The millions of money given in charity each year—the sums sent to a police magistrate when a pitiful case is reported in the newspapers—show that there are thousands of hands ready to go to their pockets to help.—The Penny Magazine.

Defence of Rowdyism

Speaking for two men charged at Wexford Sessions with damaging laborers' cottages, Mr. T. B. Moffatt, solicitor, said that when he was at Trinity College, the young men there did things which would put the defendants' action in the shade. He told of an encounter with the police, when the students captured a sergeant and put him up a tree in the college grounds. Captain Crosbie, R.M., said those tricks were performed on people who could afford it, but the defendants had injured poor people's houses.

Edible Insects

Certain insects, resembling the northern June bugs, are found in great quantities in the high plains about Quito, and are toasted by the natives and eaten as a delicacy. They are also sold in the streets, just as peanuts or other nuts would be. A traveller tasted one and found that it was very much like toasted bread with no particular flavor. While this may seem a curious and perhaps repulsive form of food, it is really no worse than soft shell or oyster crab, which last-named is generally eaten while still alive. It is a matter of custom.

Warships to Fight Fires

The big battleships of the United States are to be used to fight fires in cities along the Atlantic coast, according to letters of inquiry received by the fire chiefs of these cities from the Government relative to the sizes of hose and kinds of couplings in use by their respective fire departments. As all the warships are equipped with powerful pumps that can throw large streams of water a long distance, the Government proposes to couple these pumps to the city's fire hose in case any of the vessels should happen to be in port at the time of a fire.

Swiss Women Open "Petticoat Cafe" and Lure is Effective

The women of Piona, a small village in the Canton of St. Gall, Switzerland, have opened a cafe in order to prevent the men visiting neighboring towns.

The men petitioned the local authorities to open a cheap public cafe in Piona, where they could spend their evenings. Their wives and daughters objected, and the petition was refused.

In revenge the men sought entertainment in other villages, and the women thereupon organized a syndicate for the purpose of establishing a cafe of their own. Refreshments are sold at a little over cost, and the women take turns in acting as waitresses.

The "Petticoat Cafe" has proved such a success that the rival resorts were obliged to close.

HAMPSHIRE TIGERS GREAT ATHLETES

Famous Sporting Regiment Whose Officers and Men Compete as Equals on the Field

That the love of sport, acknowledged as a strong characteristic of the British race, is not confined to any one class or calling, is shown in striking fashion by the records of the Hampshire Regiment. Drawn almost entirely from an agricultural population, the men, upon joining the colors, quickly develop a great liking for all kinds of sport, in which outdoor athletics take a prominent part. These are followed up with such zest that they form a by no means unimportant part in the scheme of physical training by which the soldier is brought to and maintained in a state of bodily fitness to enable him to endure with success considerable fatigue and prolonged exertion. It is in running and hurdling that the regiment has won its best victories in the athletic world, both battalions having produced a number of really good men. The 2nd Battalion representatives carried off the championships at the last South African Army Athletic meeting at which they competed before leaving for Mauritius, Corporal Beckett winning the 100 yards and quarter-mile, Color-Sergeant Arnell the half-mile, Private Ashford the hurdles, Lieut. Johnston the obstacles, and Private Thorpe the 100 yards open to privates; while the battalion team won the relay race, did well in the tug-of-war, and Private Simmonds won the shot putting—a by no means bad record in open competition against the rest of the Army in South Africa.

The 1st Battalion representatives also performed with credit at the Army athletic meetings at home, where the competition is most keen and the form required to win of the very highest. Corporal Eldridge, Lieut. Cecil, Lieut. Knocker, Color-Sergeant Gaun, Corporal Dunford, Sergeant Sprake, Private Bowman, and Lieut. Smith, all performing with credit in the sprints and other competitions. Running appears to be followed by the Hampshire men for much longer periods than the average, and several of the veterans have performed with credit at open meetings.

Football and Cricket

Association football brought the regiment renown, for some tip-top teams have been put in the field by both battalions. The 2nd Battalion particularly holds many cups won on the football field.

The regiment has been prolific in producing good cricketers, and many a good game has been put up at home and abroad. Burton, Beadey (who has quite a number of "centuries" to his credit), Major Barlow, Captain Baxter, Bowman, Lyne, Sque, Captain Perry, Colonel Nicholson, and Corporal Stroud are among the best known players, the latter having the remarkable record of twice performing the "hat trick" in a regimental match in South Africa.

The regiment follows very keenly the game of hockey, and some most capable teams have been turned out. Golf, too, has its followers among the officers, the 2nd Battalion winning the championship of South Africa.

In the pursuit of sport the more serious part of the soldier's education has not been lost to view, and in shooting the regiment has gained a very high degree of proficiency. Sergeant Giles twice won the gold jewel, which carries with it the shooting championship of South Africa; while the bronze jewel was won twice by Corporal Lintott and Private Wright. Sergeant Newman has also a fine record as a shot, while the 1st Battalion has figured with credit in the Evelyn Wood competition for marching and shooting. Colonel Nicholson, Captain Earle, and Captain Burton won renown for their skill in clay pigeon shooting.

In the Ring

Boxing is another favorite sport with all ranks, and some really excellent fighters have been turned out by the regimental boxing club. Among the best are Wally Davis, who left the regiment to become an instructor and Corporal Zimmer, who fought his way into the final of the middle-weights at the Army championship meeting. His brother is also a clever boxer, who figured with credit at the Navy and Army championship meeting.

The members of the sergeants' messes have fostered the game of billiards to some purpose, and any clever cueists are to be numbered among them. Sergeant Syer won the billiard championship of the Army in Ireland.

Reverting to the cross-country successes of the regiment, it is interesting to recall that the 2nd Battalion did well in South Africa, several of their runners being selected to represent Pretoria against Johannesburg in the race for the McLaren cup.

The cordial relationship which exists between all ranks is no doubt one of the secrets of the success which has attended the efforts of the "Hampshire Tigers," while another factor is the encouragement given by the officers, who, by precept and example, encourage their men to take a practical interest in manly sport. Captain Baxter may be mentioned as one of the prime movers in this direction, for he gives himself up whole-heartedly to promote the good name of the regiment in military efficiency as well as in sport.

From $200 to $15,000

Rev. W. J. Speers who made a tour of Western Canada spoke of a young Englishman with whom he had talked and who had gone to the west two years ago with $200, and was now worth $15,000. He asked him how he would like to go back to England.

"That would be the worst sentence you could pass on me" he replied.

OIL FUEL FOR THE BRITISH NAVY.

The announcement of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, of the decision to adopt oil as the fuel for the British navy in place of coal, has aroused debate in the Motherland as to the wisdom of the change. Naval experts agree on the superior advantages of oil over coal, but of the wisdom of the change at this time there is want of agreement! To some critics the change has the appearance of biving up a certainty for an uncertainty. The British navy has to-day in the British Isles, which are its chief naval base, a world's supply of coal to draw from. She is able not only to meet her own needs but to supply high grade steam coal to other navies of the world not so fortunately situated. To relinquish this "bird in the hand" for another one "in the bush" is suggested as doubtful wisdom. There are no oil fields in the United Kingdom and few anywhere in the British Empire. Aside from Canada and the island of Trinidad it is pointed out there are no British oil areas on this side of the Atlantic. This would leave the navy almost entirely dependent upon supplies from Russia and the far east mainly Burneo and Burma which, to reach England would have to pass through the Sues and the Mediterranean, where British sea power has been steadily receding, as Austria and Italian naval construction has advanced. Oil from the United States and even from Canada would be exposed to attack from Germany in the event ol hostilities

The advantages of oil fuel on the other hard are attractively set forth by the naval expert of the Pall Mall Gazette. The adoption of oil, it is pointed out, would effectively meet the increasing difficulty of securing stokers in sufficient numbers to feed the boilers of the great modern battleships, and thus make possible a considerable reduction in the ship's complement. Larger and healthier living quarters can be provided for the men, because of the lesser space required for the storage of oil fuel, and the hard and dirty work of coaling ship would become a thing of the past. But of greater consequence than any of these are the strategical advantages which the use of oil would offer —greater speed and secrecy of movement. But important as these advantages are the Pall Mall Gazette is not blind to certain disadvantage that may arise. It is important that adequate sources of supply should be open in all parts of the world at all times, that the navy should be free of foreign monopolistic control. Then there is the question of safe storage, both at home and abroad. Lord Charles Beresford goes so far as to characteize the whole project as a huge "gamble" which may prove disastrous.

Couldn't Breath Through His Nose Stuffed With Catarrh

Catarrhozone Inhaler the One Means of Relief, and It Cured Quickly

The extraordinary efficacy of Catarrhozone is without parallel. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes, a harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system. In case of asthma and bronchitis the relief and certain cure that comes from the healing balsamic extracts in Catarrhozone is simply wonderful.

"For more than twenty years I suffered with a cough, bronchitis, asthma and nasal catarrh," writes J. F. Fenwick, of Staunton, P.O. "Every attack I had seemed to grow worse and I could hardly breathe on account of an accumulation of phlegm in the nose and throat. One day I tried Catarrhozone and in ten minutes was wonderfully relieved. I could breathe freely and naturally through the nose, and blood spitting was stopped—the phlegm was cleared away and my regular breathing restored. No remedy can do more than Catarrhozone."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

white handkerchief so that he will be taken for a member of the other side, and not be killed?"

"Of course."

"And you know what was under it? Something about loving her less if he did not love honor more?"

Helen nodded.

"Well, that's my case, girlie—honest. I can't tell you because I promised not to, and I can't go back on my honor, for if I did I'd not be worthy of you. See?" And there was a strength of purpose in his dark eyes that appealed to her and made her eyes dim, although, woman like, she asked softly:

"Would you rather give me up than go back on your promise?"

Ted swallowed hard. "If you'd want me to, Nell, I don't believe I could care for you as much as I do. You see, I'd feel that something was wrong. Now kiss me, dear, and just wait until tonight, and I'll prove to you that I'm just what I've said I am not so awfully bad after all," and without waiting for permission, he drew her into his arms, kissed her not once but several times, then ran away, leaving her gasping, but happier than she had been for several days.

EFFECT OF MARRIAGE ON LENGTH OF LIFE

Figures Which Prove That Single Men and Women Die Earlier Than Those Who Wed

"Marry if you want to live to a good old age," says Dr. Jacques Bertillon, and he gives reasons, with statistics to back them up.

"A married man or woman has," he says, "thrice as much chance for a good, long run of life as a bachelor or a spinster." He also shows that the average of mortality among widowers is greater than the average among married men; so he recommends that they marry again, provided they are under 60 years of age. To young men Bertillon has this to say:

"Marry and you will do well, even from a selfish standpoint; but watch carefully over your wife's health, as even from this egotistical point of view her loss would be a terrible misfortune; for your life depends in a great measure on her own."

To women his advice is: "And to you I give counsel to marry in your most selfish interest, as mortality among married women is less than among spinsters of the same age—at least, after the age of 20—but the difference is less for women than for men. The mortality among spinsters is much greater than among married women, but it is not twice as great, as in the case of men."

Next comes the widow: "Mortality among widows is distinctly much greater than among married women of the same age. 'The sweet state of widowhood' is particularly fatal to young widows. Their death rate, from 20 to 25 years of age, is twice that of married women at a corresponding age."

Then Bertillon goes on gallantly to say that women have less need of men than the latter have of them. He says the death rate is generally less among women than men of the same age and station. What is the reason? Simply they are steadier. And it is no doubt for the same reason that matrimony conduces to longevity.

"Married people lead a more regular life," he says. "They are more controlled, discreet though this control may be, and it must be discreet, if it is to be useful. Their physical life, like their moral life, is healthier, quieter, and more natural."

Thus does Bertillon point to a moral in French statistics. For one year which he selected, deaths per 1,000 men, among bachelors between 35 and 40, were 19; while those of married men were only 8; between 55 and 60 the figure was 41 for the former and 23 for the latter. With women at the same age the mortality was correspondingly 12 and 8 between 35 and 40, and 24 and 18 between 55 and 60. The death rates among widows and divorcees were, respectively, 12 and 21 per 1,000 women.

NUTMEG LORE

The Good Ones Exude Oil When Pricked With a Pin

The pure food expert at a pure food show took up a nutmeg.

"Watch me jab this pin into the nutmeg here and there," he said. "Do you see how from each pin prick a little oil exudes? Well, that is a proof that the nutmeg is good. When a pin prick draws no oil from it it is a wooden nutmeg, nothing more.

"The nutmeg tree of Asia is seventy feet high. The fruit is like a pear. The flesh of the fruit is like candied citron, and its seeds, our nutmeg proper, are enveloped in a yellow rind that is our mace.

"Nutmegs are dried for two months in a moderate heat. They are then sorted, and the small and broken ones are thrown into the press for the purpose of extracting their oil, the essential oil of nutmeg being a very costly article of commerce.

"The big, fine, choice nutmegs, if they are now put on the market, are all right; but, the oil being so costly, there is a way of extracting it without the use of the press. The fine, choice nutmeg is steeped in hot water and afterwards coated with lime. Then, though all its oil and nearly all its flavor have departed, it looks all right, but it is a worthless wooden nutmeg, and if you grate it over anything you get no flavor, while if you stick a pin in it no oil exudes."

Blueing Steel

A fine and fairly permanent blue is obtained on polished steel goods by immersing in fused black oxide of manganese one part, nitre nine parts. When sufficiently blued, they are partially cooled in water, then entirely in linseed oil.

Removing Rust From Iron

Rust on iron or steel goods may be chiefly removed if the goods are first soaked in a hot caustic soda or hot caustic potash solution. This softens the rust so that it is much more rapidly and effectually removed than by the acid pickle. The method, although old, is generally satisfactory.

GENERAL CLEAN-UP AT QUEBEC ARSENAL

cartridge case, like a huge rifle cartridge. It appeared that not one round of this Quebec-made artillery ammunition had been fired, the batteries, having continued with British-made shells. The Arsenal had not even fired any on its own account to test the accuracy of the projectiles

Numerous Defects.

Looking at this ammunition, Col. Morrison observed numerous imperfections of shape, the gauging appeared to have badly done. He obtained the assistance of a technical officer from the Halifax garison, and on this officer picking out samples from the stock not one would pass the prescribed gauge test. Some had no shoulders at all, some shoulders on one side only, some had the driving band too far back; some had it too far forward, and so on Wouldn't Enter Gun.

As a result of this preliminary examination it was decided to hold a firing test. This took place at St. Joachim, 21 miles below Quebec. The ranges available were restricted to 1,000 and 2,400 yards, which for the new field gun are very short. The test should be made at 5,500 or 6,-000 yards. A certain number of shells made by the Vickers firm in Great Britain were fired, and 75 rounds of the Canadian-made shells. The British-made shells behaved with perfect accuracy. Of the 75 rounds made in Quebec fifteen were so badly made that they would not enter the gun at all. The remaining 60 proved extremely inaccurate in flight. At so close a range as 1,000 yards they exceeded the permitted latitude by from one and one half to five and a half times.

Grave State of Affairs.

The Minister decided to call for the aid of British experts, and as a result of a request to the War Office, Col. Sir. H. W. W. Barlow, Bart., superintendent ol the Royal Laboratory, and Capt. Gordon Ogilvie, R. A., inspector of arms and ammunition, both of Woolwich, were sent to Quebec. They arrived at the end of May, and in company with Col. Morrison were busied with their investigation until June 20. They went into the several phases of the work of the arsenal, and they not only confirmed Col. Morrison's preliminary reports, but discovered a grave state of affairs.

Even Blank Cartridge Bad.

As an incident of the inspection several hundred thousand round of blank ammunition were condemned. This was due to a fresh piece of carelessness, the specifications not having been followed. These directed that the end of the cartridge shell should be crimped over the explosive. Instead the end was tampered down, so as to increase the force of the explosion to an undesirable. Had these cartridges got out to the manoeuvre camps the militia would have learned in an unpleasant manner the wisdom of the rule which forbids opposing forces at manoeuvres to approach each other closer than fifty yards.

WE ALL LOOK ALIKE

Impressions of Missionary Back After Many Years

Mr. Dan Crawford, who returned after twenty-three years' missionary work in Central Africa, found a great change in the dress of Londoners.

"In the old days," he said, "I could distinguish between the different sections of society by the clothes they wore. I could tell at once the mistress, her housmaid, her cook, and her sculleryma id. If all these were seated together in a 'bus to-day I could not distinguish between them. I find that all are hobble-skirted, all wear the same designs in hats, and all the same show of jewellery. Perhaps, if one looked carefully into material, on the quality of the jewels, one might notice a difference. But otherwise they appear to me exactly the same. This applies as well to the modern young man, the shop assistant, the clerk, the office boy, and the young peer. Twenty years ago the clerk could easily be recognized by his modest and sober attire. The office boy was distinct with his abnormally high collar, which added a touch of polish to his rather shabby clothes. I do not know if this is the result of a tendency on the part of tailors to standardise the clothes or of a reduction in prices, or of there being more money to spend among young men of the middle and lower classes."

A FEW DON'TS

Don't be a spoil-sport.

Don't court indigestion.

Don't make too big a splash.

Don't forget your poor relations.

Don't grumble, whatever you do.

Don't leave everything for "mother" to do.

Don't press wine where water or lemonade is preferred.

Don't, if you get up on your wrong side, make everybody else miserable.

Don't let the children sit up too late—they only get tired out and fretful.

Don't be made miserable. Misery loves company but is seldom an agreeable hostess.

Don't, if you give your children a party, keep nagging them as to what they must and must not do.

Don't envy another's happiness and enjoyment. Make the most of what you have, and be grateful for having that much.

SPORTING NEWS

YACHT.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—News comes from Cleveland that the yacht Psammaid II. was shipped from Cleveland by rail yesterday and is expected to arrive here on Saturday, in preparation for the races to be held next Tuesday off the Exhibition park, and for her match race with the Nirwana. The Psammiad II. is a Wm. Gardner production built by Wood Brothers, of City Island, and is the last word in the "R" class, so she should have the advantage of the Nirwana in this respect. Her dimensions are as follows: Length, over all, 38 ft. 3 inches; beam, 7 ft. 9 inches; displacement, 8,600 lbs.; sail area, 617 feet. a rather strange thing to note in this craft is that Gardner has taken excess displacement as she is between 400 and 500 pounds heavier than required in the formua to bring out her rating under 20 feet. This is a departure that is difficult to understand, and it has generally been conceded that unless you have extra sail to drive the displacement it is a disparagement, unless in doing so you get a less wetted service.

BOWLING

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Thomas Rennie, Toronto, captain of the Canadian bowling team which won so much success in the British Isles, returned this morning on the Allan line Tunisian.

Mr. Rennie said that he expected another British bowling team would tour Canada, probably in two years time, as the visit of the Canadians to the old land, and their success, had stirred up the players there to desire another trip to the Domunion, when they could get their "revenge."

ATHLETICS.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18. — To encourage athletics throughout the Russian Empire, the Czat to-day issued a ukase creating a ministry of sport. General Vovekoff was appointed first minister. He began by forming an Olympic Council among leading Russian sportsmen in preparation for the Berlin games in 1916.

It is expected that football will act as an antidote to the revolutionary movemtnt.

RING.

Bacv in the days when John L. Sullivan was triumphantly touring the country, engaged in knocking out all comers in four-round bouts, the Queensberry game received an impetus which started the gloves swinging and jabbing in every town and hamlet where lovers of strenuous sport congregated.

Among others, an innkeeper of pugilistic prochivities near the Chicago stockyards fixed up an arena in the rear of his establishment, where boxing took place every Saturday night and a number of local aspirants made their first bows to the public.

There appeared on the scene a massively built novice by the name of Flaherty, to whom the proprietor took a great fancy. Flaherty earned his living as a butcher at the yards, and when he elected to try his fortune at the fighting game his huge form and tremendous muscle struck awe into the hearts of many ambitious novices. Such of the latter as dared to face him were speedily struck by something else that effectually extinguished all desire to fistic fame in their breasts.

Flaherty's backer was pressed to send his man after bigger game, but while promising to do so after a while that sapient gentleman excused himself by stating that for the present the fighter was too good an asset around his place of business to part with.

CRICKET.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Winnipeg Wanderers had little trouble in making good their pretentions as cup challengers Saturday morning, when they finished their match, the Toronto Cricket Club leading by a margin of one run and seven wickets. As a result of this game, the Ross Robertson Cup travels to Winnipeg, and Varsity lawn will no longer see the cup defended some half dozen times a summer, as has been the case during the past three years.

When play started at 11.15 Saturday morning, the total scores showed Toronto with 217 runs, representing two innings, and Winnipeg with 128 runs for their first time at bat. If Toronto could hold them to less than 90 runs, the cup would remain the property of the club, which has held it since it was donated by John Ross Robertson. Remembering the close finish of the game on Aug. 6 with St. Albans, when Toronto's batting slump in the second innings changed an easy victory into a tie game, the Toronto field were determined that no effort should be spared to retire the side before the visitors' total reached 219

Sanol's
Blood Salt

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion, such as DYSPEPSIA, GASTRIC CATARRH, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, ETC., and as an aid to digestion in wasting and nervous diseases.

This preparation is a mixture compound so as to resemble in essence and effect the salty part of the human blood which through disease or a wrong way of living might have been lost and not regained. In some cases of flatulence, a sense of fullness or pressure over the region of the stomach, the blood salt has no equal, in fact there is no other remedy that can take its place.

The Tramp's Tale

A tramp called upon a pronounced advocate of woman's right. His tale was a very plausible one, but did not seem to meet with much sympathy.

"Why don't you go to work?" asked the lady.

"Please, ma'am," explained the beggar, "I made a solemn vow ten years ago that I would never do another stroke of work till women were paid the same wages as men."

He was taken in. So was she.

MARVELOUS BATTER WAS WEE WILLIE

New He Only Has to Watch His Bank Account Not His Batting Average

Will baseball ever see another Willie Keeler?

"Wee Willie," the batting marvel of the game, one of the few to get into the .400 class and the only batter that ever played an entire season without fanning is now a real estate broker and apartment house owner in Brooklyn, and his heaviest work is collecting his rents and banking the money. Keeler vies with Fielder Jones, Cy Young and Bill Lang as the richest retired ball player. Any of the four can write his check for more than $100,000—and have it honored, too.

Willie Keeler was one of that wonderful Baltimore outfield of 1894, '95 and '96, with Walter Brodie and Kelly. Brilliant fielders, hard hitters and great base runners were they, and

WILLIE KEELER

Keeler was the mightiest of the trio. His last appearance in the big leagues was with the Giants, in 1910, as emergency hitter.

Keeler played 20 years, starting with Binghampton, in the Eastern league, in 1892, and winding up with Toronto in 1911.

Keeler holds the world's record for the greatest number of hits in a season. In 1897 he accumulated 242 singles for an average of .432. He was the most scientific batter that ever played ball. He invented "choking" the bat. Small and light, he realized he could do more effective hitting by merely tapping the ball "where they ain't" than by "swinging his head off" in an effort for long hits.

"Choking the Bat"

Always crowding the plate, Keeler grasped his bat near the middle and hit to any field at will; the fielders never knew where to play for him. Right or left-handed pitchers looked alike, and, no matter how they pitched to him, "Wee Willie" placed the ball where he wanted to.

ALLURING ISLES

Queen Charlotte Islands Have Oil and Coal Possibilities

Neglected, yet alluring, is the Queen Charlotte group of islands, about eighty miles from the mainland of British Columbia. With a mild climate, a rainfall of less than 40 inches, and a fertile soil, Graham Island, the and the reservation of lands by the group, could become an agriculturist's paradise. Fortunately, or unfortunately, the island has large coal measures, and the resevation of lands by the coal-staking companies has greatly retarded settlement. On its west coast several companies are now engaged in boring for oil, a large district having been declared by the Dominion Geological Survey, and by numerous oil experts from California, to be oil lands. One bore, after reaching 1,200 feet depth, and bringing up oil with the cores, had to be abandoned, as, in the haste to find out if they had great riches, the engineers had allowed the bore to get out of plumb, and the work had to be begun over again, if the 1,700-foot level—at which oil is prophesied—is to be reached. The north shore of Graham Island has a great, sandy beach twenty files or more long, two miles broad and as level as a billiard table. Some day the mining millionaires of the north may use it as a race-track for their automobiles.

WESTERN TRAVELLERS

Commercial Men in the West Number a Small Army

The growth of a country is well told in the growth of the commercial travellers within its confines. And the story that the knights of the grip tell in their annual report for the past year is but the story of the great and rapid strides that the northwest has made in the way of progress in this last year. Nearly thirteen hundred new drummers made the prairies their field of operation last year, and the total is now swollen to the high figure of 7,015. Trade continues to progress at a rapid rate, and the travellers say that their numbers will still continue to increase in similar fashion in the years to come. Where are these travellers located. Mostly in Winnipeg, but they have scattered their homes over the face of the west. Here are their locations: Winnipeg, 3,190; Brandon, 190; Regina, 760; Saskatoon, 463; Calgary, 977; Edmonton, 279; Lethbridge, 114; Vancouver, 810; Victoria, 61; Nelson, 106; Fort William, 36.

The Hawk and the Crows

Day after day and week after week as I look through the big, open barn door I see a marsh-hawk beating about low over the fields. He, or rather she (for I see by the greater size and browner color that it is the female), moves very slowly and deliberately on level, flexible wing, now over the meadow, now over the oat or millet field, then above the pasture and the swamp, tacking and turning, her eye bent upon the ground, and no doubt sending fear or panic through the heart of many a nibbling mouse or sitting bird. She occasionally hesitates or stops in her flight and drops upon the ground, as if seeking insects or frogs or snakes. I have never yet seen her swoop or strike after the manner of other hawks. It is a pleasure to watch her through the glass and see her make these circuits of the fields on effortless wing, day after day, and strike no bird or other living thing, as if in quest of something she never finds. I never see the male. She has perhaps assigned him other territory to hunt over. He is smaller, with more blue in his plumage. One day she had a scrap or a game of some kind with three or four crows on the side of a rocky hill. I think the crows teased and annoyed her. I heard their cawing and saw them pursuing the hawk, and then saw her swoop upon them or turn over in the air beneath them, as if to show them what feats she could do on the wing that were beyond their powers. The crows often made a peculiar guttural cawing and cackling as if they enjoyed the sport, but they were clumsy and awkward enough on the wing compared to the hawk. Time after time she came down upon them from a point high in the air, like a thunderbolt, but never seemed to touch them. Twice I saw her swoop upon them as they sat upon the ground and the crows called out in half-sportive, half-protesting tones, as if saying, "That was a little too close; beware, beware!" It was like a skillful swordsman flourishing his weapon about the head of a peasant; but not a feather was touched so far as I could see. It is the only time I ever saw this hawk in a sportive or aggressive mood. I have seen jays tease the sharp-shinned hawk in this way, and escape his retaliating blows by darting into a cedar tree. All the crow tribe, I think, love to badger and mock some of their neighbors.—John Burroughs.

Projectile's Gain of Speed

Experiments with improved instruments for measuring the velocity of projectiles have shown that the speed goes on increasing after the missile has left the mouth of the cannon. Leaving the muzzle with a velocity of 1,474 feet a second, a projectile has been observed to increase its speed to 1,689 feet a second within the first six feet. It is only after having travelled twenty-five yards that the projectile's velocity becomes reduced to the speed it had on leaving the muzzle. This is ascribed to the impulse of the expanding gas being felt for some distance beyond the cannon's mouth.

ILLOGICAL COSTUMES CURSE TO WOMEN

So Says Dr. Mary Walker Who For Over Half a Century Has Worn Male Attire

The physical weakness of nearly all women and the blindness, curvature of the spine, club-feet, tuberculosis, infantile paralysis and other ills from which so many children suffer are all directly traceable to one thing—the unhealthful and ridiculous style of women's dress, according to Dr. Mary Walker, the most famous advocate of dress reform for women.

It is no new theory with her. She's been advocating it for a little matter of 55 years, having donned trousers herself at the age of 18, worn them constantly and preached for male attire for women ever since. Now, at the age of 73, still going about the world in men's trousers, frock coat, silk hat, standing linen collar, cravat and men's shoes, she is more positive than ever that the solution of nine-tenths of the world's troubles is for women to dress like men.

"No man can know the agony of the ordinary costume worn by woman," said Dr. Walker. "Every woman knows, and most of them will admit, that I am right at least as to the unhealthfulness of women's dress. And men are coming to know it, for men find that their wives are weak and sickly, that their children are not strong and robust and that they themselves sometimes suffer from ills due to the tight, cumbersome clothing of their mothers.

"I have spent my life since girlhood preaching women's dress reform, and I am still unalterably convinced that it will have to come.

"I was the only woman surgeon in the army during the American civil war. I talked dress reform while I treated wounded soldiers then. I have been arrested scores of times, but I have never faltered and I never shall."

Dr. Walker was born in Oswego, N. Y., and after a lifetime of activity as a lecturer and physician, returned to her birthplace to spend the rest of her days. Still as vigorous and as keen intellectually as a person 20 years her junior, she spends about half of her time on the lecture platform, having resolved to "die in the harness."

She is a little woman, not over 5 feet 3 inches, and so slender as to weigh probably not over 100 pounds. She is wiry, vigorous, quick and sure in her movements and as straight as a young hickory. Her well poised head is covered with wavy, gray-brown hair, parted on one side and falling just to the edge of her collar.

Yellow Piano Keys

The foundation of a piano key is made from pine wood, which always contains a certain amount of rosin that would yellow the ivories if it were not for the rather modern method of placing a thin layer of basswood between the pine foundation and the ivory. This method accounts for the fact that our modern keys do not discolor so much as the keys of the old-fashioned piano of our grandmother's time.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got the New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn [illegible] a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning [illegible] and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Licking stamps and envelopes is a dangerous practice. There are hundreds of disease germs lurking in the mucilage that is used on these things. The use of a sponge is not always convenient and it is a rather sloppy way to dampen the glue. A better way is to make a moistener. It's an easy thing to make. Any screw top jar, like a fruit jar, will do. Cut a strip of felt that is as wide as the jar is deep. Roll it so that the roll will exactly fit the mouth of the jar. The metal top is then perforated with a number of holes and the jar filled with water. The felt conducts the moisture to the top and it is only necessary to pass the stamp or envelope flap over the perforations to get sufficient moisture on them to make them stick and yet not so much that they will be sloppy.

ORIGIN OF CARDS

Can be Traced Only as Far as Fifteenth Century

The origin of playing cards is lost in a dim and obscure past, and their authentic history can only be traced as far back as the fifteenth century. Various theories have been brought forward as to the source from which European countries obtained them. Some contend that they came from the East; others, that they had an independent origin, like that of the Swastika, the Egyptian charm, which, though discovered in China centuries ago, was known at the same time in Mexico. An idea once prevailed that they were invented to amuse a mad French king, the fact that a French document, dated 1392, shows an entry of a payment made for painting cards for Charles VI. They seem to have been used by the Arabs and Saracens for divination, and even now they are still used to some considerable extent for that purpose. It is also an established fact that in past ages many Eastern peoples, especially those of India and China, possessed cards which differed materially both in use and in design from those known to the Western world at a later date. It is impossible for one to trace the beginnings of card lore, but there is little doubt that the people of the East held playing cards in high esteem as mediums for the partial revelation of the unknown and included them as a part of their mystic lore.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

LOVES GIPSY LIFE

Partially Paralyzed English Girl Lives in Her Donkey Cart

Although so badly paralyzed that she can only crawl on her knees, "the pluckiest young woman in England" travels about the country the greater part of the year in a little donkey cart. Her only companion is "Eve," the donkey.

She is a woman of 27, of good social standing. Her outfit, besides the donkey and cart, consists of rugs, a few pots and pans and a small store of provisions. She sleeps outdoors every night, making her solitary camp in the woods. She lives a life more primitive than a gypsy, making her fires, cooking simple meals, and often for days at the time having no other comrades than the donkey and the birds.

"Miss Frances" and her donkey cart

A year ago she was feeble, discontented with her lot in the world, and thought her days of life were numbered. Now she is the picture of health with her clear, tanned skin and sparkling blue eyes, and expects to live many years.

"You see, both my father and mother are dead and I have no real home. So I have made the whole out-of-doors my home; the sky will be my roof, the stars my candles. The little money I have will pay my expenses. I hope to spend the rest of my life travelling around in my donkey cart," she told a woman with whom she came in contact. This remarkable young woman prefers to be called "Miss Frances" although that is not her right name, and her stationary home—when she had one—was in Withersfield Green, Sussex.

TRADE IN TRACTORS

Some Idea of the Volume of Western Machinery Business

In one week a special freight train consisting of forty-five flat cars loaded with gasoline tractors arrived in Winnipeg from Minneapolis. The total length of the train was 1,800 feet, and was one of the largest shipments of one agricultural implement ever made in Canada. Each of these gasoline tractors will plow, disc and drill 2,000 acres in a season, so that the total acreage covered by the forty-five tractors would amount to 90,000 acres. It is also estimated that each engine will travel 2,000 miles in a season. The tractors are all thirty horsepower and identical in every way. The value of the shipment was $175,000, while the duty amounted to $24,000, and the freight charges $3,150. The train went to Regina, where one-half of the engines were unloaded, the other half going to Saskatoon.

An Auto Accident.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock as a local auto was speeding northward on the Lakefield road, at the Water Works power house, the motor had to pass a south-bound car. He Was Tempted.

On Saturday a gentleman, who a few years ago used to imbibe more frequently than wisely, confided to a Times reporter that the old craving had assailed him on Friday. He said, in part: "A thousand devils have been whispering to me that one glass of whiskey would brighten up my brain cells and give me strength to fight the hot weather. I know my wife would be heart broken if she knew I had broken out again. Those 1000 devils sang of the conviviality, the good fellowship and the sparkling wit produced by a moderate use of alcohol. My mind was the rope used in a mental tug-of-war between the voice of past experience and the lure of the forbidden fruit. I took a drink. I took three drinks of sarsaparilla!"

TO MAKE HAIRS VANISH FROM THE SKIN

(The Modern Beauty)

Superfluous growths of hair or fuzz literally vanish from the skin following an application of a delatone paste. Just enough paste is made with the powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes it is removed and the skin washed to take off the remaining paste. This simple and painless method is far more satisfactory than the electric needle and seldom calls for repeating, excepting where the hair is unusually stubborn.

It is surprising how beautifully long and curly the eyelashes grow when pyroxin is applied at the roots with thumb and forefinger. Rubbing pyroxin on eyebrows makes them come in thick and silky, but be careful and don't get any where no hair is wanted.

CANON DAVIDSON PREACHES IN HISTORIC MINSTER

Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, this city, who is visiting in England, was honored with an invitation to preach in York Minster Sunday, Aug. 3rd. York Minster is one of England's most stupendous sacred edifices, and a religious life was preached by Canon devotion to Protestantism. A Toronto man happened to be in the historic old church and expressed great pleasure in the remarks of Peterborough's divine.

The York Herald of August 4th, thus refers to Canon Davidson's discourse:

A sermon dealing with certain aspects of English national and religious life was preached by Canon Davidson, of Peterborough, Canada, in York Minster, on Sunday. The speaker pointed out the broadness, bigness and richness of religion happily illustrated by the wondrous conceptions, power and devotion whence had sprung the Minster and other colossal monuments of big beliefs and expansive faith. A broadening influence should be thereby exerted on the individual and national life. Individual salvation was something more than an assurance against fire, and implied the being made worth saving—divinely great and noble.

This country was privileged to be in both intellectual and spiritual contact with the intellectual centres of the world. Students from India, China, Japan and Canada walked our streets, come to see and share the rich British inheritance and bringing their own divers contributions. Scientific and religious books and articles were sown broadcast throughout the country, and what was more, were being read. The further educational influence was found in the British Press, the high tone of which could perhaps not be equalled anywhere. With such help and inspirations it ought to be natural to people here to think world-thoughts: to take an intelligent part in world movements.

The preacher believed that Englishmen were responding to these influences, and great results might confidently be looked for in the future. Even now how full of richness and refinement was the national life, though some might fail to see this. The great army of tourists from abroad saw certain national and religious monuments, a few public functions and hurried glimpses of the exquisite country caught from railway trains, and thought they had seen England! But to see the real glory of England visitors must stay in English homes where were reared England's duty-loving sons and her sweet, gentle, and self-sacrificing daughters! These homes were the fountains and preservatives of English life and power.

In distant parts of the empire, they who lived there could not bear to hear suggestions that England's life was in danger of waning. In faith they repudiated such a suggestion, and coming home they were able to see with eyes that in spite of many painful accompaniments of evolution England's national life was full and vigorous and rich, pointing to wider world influence for good than ever before.

HON. ROBERT ROGERS SHOWS COAST LAURIERS CLOSURE BILL

Liberal Guillotine Was Built by Sir Allen Aylesworth Years Ago--Neat Bit of Work Explains Minister

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 19.—Hon. Robert Rogers at a largely-attended meeting here last night produced a copy of closure bill prepared by Sir Allen Aylesworth which the Liberals intended putting into effect. The closure which they proposed to institute was a guillotine of the worst description, being even more arbitrary than that now in force in the British Parliament.

Under the Conservative closure Bill action can only be taken by a member of the Government, and at least twenty-four hours' notice must be given, which permits a continuation of the debate for that period. The Laurier-Aylesworth bill would have permitted any member of Parliament to demand the closure, and if thirty-six members of a house of nearly two hundred and thirty constituted a majority in its favor the debate was at once strangled. No notice was necessary under the proposed Liberal closure bill, thus bearing out Hon. Mr. Fielding's contention that the minority had only such rights as the majority allowed them.

In view of the guillotine proposed by the Liberals their wild outbursts of anger at the Conservative measure Mr. Rogers thought, must have been a carefully prepared effort, relying on the improbability of the discovery of their previous intentions.

Twelve hundred Conservative stalwarts received the Minister of Public Works with ringing cheers as he entered Dominion Hall, the guest of the Conservative Association of Vancouver. It was a gathering representative of the people of British Columbia, who have so eliminated Laurierism from their province that not a supporter of the ex-Premier holds a seat in either the Legislature or the House of Commons.

SCORES OF MEXICAN'S KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE

Car of Iron Pipe Crashed Into Dynamite Car in Crowded Suburb of Mexico--Houses Were Blown to Pieces

Mexico City, Aug. 19.—An explosion on a gondola loaded with dynamite on the tracks of a street car company in a thickly settled portion of Tacubaya, a suburb of the capital killed or injured more than one hundred persons, chiefly women and children, early this morning. Thirty bodies have already been taken from the ruins of the houses. Scores of wounded are lying in the streets.

The disaster is said to have been caused by a car loaded with iron pipe crashing into the dynamite car.

For a radius of five hundred feet from the scene of the explosion not a house was left intact, and not a vestige of many of the buildings remained. Most of the dwellings were of abode construction, and those nearest where the car stood were converted into heaps of clay and dust, under which it is estimated, scores of victims will be found.

The persons killed belonged for the most part to the laboring class.

THAW ARRESTED NEAR COATICOOK AWAITS MANDATE OF THE POWERS

Murderer and Escaped Lunatic Admits Identity Readily, But Says He Will Fight Every Attempt to Extradite Him

Coaticook, Aug. 19.—What is considered as absolute proof that the man under arrest here is Harry K. Thaw is the fact that he is said to have sent a number of telegrams to the Thaw lawyers and the members of his family. A message, it was stated, was sent to Cresson. When searched the pockets were found to be filled with papers addressed to "Harry K. Thaw," thus completely identifying the arrested man as the slayer of Stanford White.

Coaticook, Que., Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw is under arrest here. He will be arraigned at Sherbrooke as a fugitive from justice in the United States. The final disposition of the prisoner, however, rests with the Dominion Government.

The slayer of Stanford White was arrested at Hermenegilde-Harford early to-day, an hour after he had driven across the line from New Hampshire. He admitted his identity and complacently declared that he could not be extradited as he had committed no crime.

Two men who are supposed to have accompanied Thaw in his spectacular flight from the insane asylum last Sunday morning were found in his company and also detained.

They were charged with being under suspicion of having committed an offence in another and friendly nation. These two, one of large built and the other a small man, at once retained counsel and refused to disclose their identity.

The reward for Thaw's arrest belong's to Sheriff B. H. Kelsey, of Colebrook, N.H., who recognized Thaw on a Maine Central Railroad train last night, and after the fugitive had left the train at Herford, pursued him to Hermenegilde-Harford, where, at the request of the Sheriff, a Canadian constable placed the fugitive under arrest.

WIFE'S PRESS AGENTS USE THAW'S ESCAPE

Evelyn Receives a Telegram Signed H.K.T.—Mother Leaves for Summer Home.

New York, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, aged mother of Harry K. Thaw, left the Pennsylvania station to-day for Elmhurst, her summer home at Cresson, Pa., declaring that she knew no more about the whereabouts of her son than she did when she received the letter from him yesterday afternoon.

"I have had no further word from my son," she said. "I have told the public all that I can tell them. I have nothing further to say."

She waited at the station until time to board the train. Mrs. Thaw would say no more.

MRS. THAW SUMMONSED.

Accompanied by her sister and daughter, Mrs. Geo. Carnegie, Mrs. Thaw was served with a summons in John D. Gleason's suit for $53,000 counsel fees as she left the Hotel Gotham. The process server was waiting at the hotel entrance and attempted to hand the papers to Mrs. Thaw. She waved him aside without taking any notice of the summons and stepped into a taxicab. The man threw the papers into the cab and the only notice Mrs. Thaw then took was to sit on the summons where it fell on the seat. The summons was still on the seat of the taxicab when Mrs. Thaw left the vehicle at the station and had not been touched when the chauffeur drove away.

A BIG FIRE AT THE MCDONALD CO MILL

Yesterday morning, about 10 o'clock fire alarm No. 18, corner of George street and the C.P.R. depot brought the fire brigade in quick quick time to the McDonald estate lumber mill. Here huge volumes of smoke poured from the dry kiln, where its complement of dry lumber, stored therein was blazing merrily. The East wind blew opaque and rolling clouds of smoke towards the lumber piles at the West side of George street. Chief Howard, at once, sized up the situation and had several lines of hose playing on the flames. Fortunately the roof on the kiln prevented sparks flying to the dry lumber to the west. After putting water in every open place in the kiln, the north wall of the building, which is a huge door, suspended by chains over pulleys, was raised, men lifting the heavy masses of iron which balanced the weight of this door. A strain of water was played on the lumber within from above for a few minutes. It was there discovered that the heart of the fire was at the bottom of the lumber. The door was again adjusted so that the water could be put on the heart of the blaze. A pile of lumber at the north of this big door, on a platform, was thrown over to enable the fire laddies to work more easily. The brigade did good work in confining the fires at such a spot to the dry kiln. Mr. J. Gipman, the efficient manager was here, there and everywhere. It is thought that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

ENGLAND IS WIDE AWAKE SAYS SENATOR JAFFRAY

Punch Humorously Blames Motor Busses for Causing This Condition—Is Keen on Politics.

London, Aug. 19.—At a recent luncheon here Senator Jaffray, of Toronto, remarked that it was sixteen years since he had last visited England, but he was convinced that England was anything but asleep. To this remark Punch replies. Quite right, Senator, its the darned motor busses that cause insomnia.

In a more serious vein, Canon Davidson, of Peterborough, to-day contributes his views to the discussion on national apathy which is appearing in the Daily Graphic. "The whole tone of the country", he says seems to me to be sweet and healthy There would seem to be moreover more general interest in political developments, particularly among women, than on the other side of the Atlantic, though this disposition possibly is merely to look on and not actively help foward political movements.

WATCH AND GUARD FOR REV. MR. LORD

Popular Rector of St. Stephen's Church, Apsley, Given a Slight Recognition of His Congregation Appreciation

The Times was yesterday in receipt of the following and interesting report of an address and presentation made to Rev. Mr. Lord, the popular rector at Apsley.

—The Address—

Dear Mr. Lord:

We, the congregation of St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, write on this occasion in an endeavor to show our appreciation of the faithful services you have rendered to us during the past years as our pastor. As we take a glance backwards surly you have done much for us, you have ministered to our spiritual necessities, visited our sick, buried our dead married our young folk, sympathized with us in our sorrows, made social calls, prayed in our houses, put your shoulder to the wheel of every forward movement. Added to all this you have imparted by precept and example lessons in sound morals and right living. We realize that great services like these are too often unrecognized and too little appreciated and that we need a more generous sympathy between pastor and people. We ask you to accept this watch and guard, as a token of our love and esteem, and we sincerely hope that success and enjoyment may accompany you in all your undertakings now, and in the years to come.

Signed on behalf of the congregations.

PHILIP TANNER,
CHARLES R. D. BOOTH,
Churchwardens

—Reply—

Mr. Booth and Members of the Congregation:

I thank you very much for this valuable gift and for this manifestation of your goodwill and good feeling towards me, and all the more am I pleased because it was so entirely unlooked for, and unexpected. I assure you I appreciate it very thorough! even more than I may express, or seem to show. I value it but only because it is of so much value in itself, but I only wish I could have done more for you all in the past. I am fully conscious of the fact that you should have had more care and attention and consideration, but there have been other and even greater demands upon me in other places, needs that have demanded more of me in the way of expenture of time and labour. You have been always members of the church and pretty well informed, but there have been newer members coming forward in other places who have been wanting more advice and guidance and direction and more constant oversight with also the super-added call for new church building and work and care. All this has taken me away from you more than I should have been, but it is hard for one man to do the work of two and I have done the best I could under the circumstances. The work done elsewhere in the mission has paid well and the fruit of it is to be seen to this day. None have withdrawn from the church, though some have moved away to be a blessing as we have heard in other places, and two or three that have died and we trust have every reason to believe have been called to join the Church of God at rest. I trust my life may be prolonged in the service of God, and I will always value this watch greatly wherever my work may be and I am thankful to bein possession of this gift from you as a token of your regard, and trust I will ever retain it in my possession. And once more I thank you all very much indeed for it.

Swastika, Aug. 19.—Dr. W. F. George, Provincial District Health Officer, for the north left to-day for Swastika to make an investigation into what are believed to be a couple of cases of smallpox.

The disease is supposed to have broken out among some chinese and they were placed under quarantine by those in charge at the new gold camp. Dr. George was notified

Two who were in the place where the cases are supposed to be, broke quarantine yesterday and boarded a local T. & N. O. passenger train, southbound. Word of their escape was telegraphed to the police at Englehart and they were taken off the train and placed in custody until they could be returned to Swastika.

PRESIDENT HUERTA DENIES ANY WASHINGTON ULTIMATUM

American Official Cables Bryan Reported Bid for War Was Not Made

Washington, Aug. 19.—Charge O'Shaughnessy cabled Secretary Bryan from Mexico City early today that President Huerta, through Foreign Minister Gamboa, emphatically denied there was "any foundation whatever" for the statement that Huerta has issued an ultimatum to the United States demanding recognition with the alternative of handing Mr. O'Shaughnessy his passports.

Called Conference "Cordial."

Mexico City, Aug. 19.—Probisional President Huerta and John Lind the personal representative of President Wilson, were in conference at a late hour during the night following the report that President Huerta would give the United States until midnight to recognize his administration under the threat of severing all relations. The nature of the conference was unrevealed, but it was characterized as cordial.

Senor Urrutia, Minister of the Interior, who on previous occasions has been spokesman for the administration, was the person chosen to make the announcement.

Senor Urrutia refused to give out the text of the correspondence between Mr. Lind and the Mexican Government, but confirmed the fact that an exchange of notes had taken place. Two notes from Mexico have been sent to Washington. The first was a reply to that delivered by Mr. Lind. This note included the demand for recognition of Mexico.

Mexico Hates Humiliation.

The second note was sent direct to Washington and demanded that a reply to the previous note be made before midnight. This is regarded here as an ultimatum.

SOUTH AFRICA'S MILITARY NEEDS DELAYS NAVAL SCHEME

General Botha Plans to Develope Mobile Striking Forces, as the Police Have Been Found Ineffective

London, Aug. 19.—A Capetown cable to the Telegraph says that H.M.S. Australia and Sydney arrived there unexpectedly yesterday afternoon, which completely spoiled the reception which had been arranged for them. The Australian residents has arranged arousing welcome, but the early arrival of the battleships caused a complete upset of the plans. The general opinion in Capetown regards the present time as impropitious for any declaration as to South African willingness to share in an empire naval defence scheme. General Botha has to find £100,000 for land defences. His desire is to have mobile striking forces. The necessity for it being apparent from the recent Rand trouble, when the police scattered all over the country proved totally ineffective to cope with the disturbances.

COUP ENDS NANAIMO STRIKE UNDER ARREST; HOLD CONTROL

Militia Surround Meeting Place--Men Taken in Batches of Four and Five to Court House and There Locked Up --All Agitators Under Lock and Key

Nanaimo, B.C., Aug. 19.—Authorities last night and early to-day brought off a big coup and the Provincial jail is now a home of the leaders in the miners' strike.

The number arrested cannot be ascertained exactly, as the arrests were still going on at an early hour this morning, all being made quietly by special constables, with the aid of the militia. The work started with a couple of arrests in the afternoon on a boat and ended with the wholesale capture of leaders at a meeting the union men held in the Athletic Hall.

The meeting was held to discuss the proposed agreement with the Jingle Pot Mine, but once the men were inside the soldiers surrounded the building on all sides.

Doors were closed and from time to time the soldiers took batches of four or five in number to the court house across the street. Those identified as being participants in the trouble of last Wednesday were put under arrest. The others were searched and if found not carrying firearms were allowed to go.

This went on from ten o'clock last night till well into this moroing. As the soldiers held the court house with an armed guard, no information could be secured as to the number of arrests, but it is believed to be large, as few passed out of the court house after once being arrested.

LOCAL C. P. R. AGENT AND NEPHEW AFISHING

Yesterday, Mr. Dodd, the local C.P.R. representative went fishing. In company with his nephew, Mr. F. W. Dodd, who holds a lucrative position with the Hiawatha S. S. Co., whose boats ply from New York to Panama and South American ports, Mr. Dodd drove to the Indian Village, Hiawatha. Here they secured the services of Howard and Muskrat, two Indian guides Rice Lake was in the hurly-burly of a wind storm. The two fishermen, with their guides made for safety to the delta of the river. On the way there, the New Yorker boasted that he would catch more fish than the local man. Arrived at the river, they passed the almost endless morass of weeds and rushes, when they came to a likely place the canoes were halted and the rods got busy. As far as the bet goes, the local C.P.R. agent captured 16 bass, the largest weighing 5½ pounds. The New Yorker got 2 bass, one log, 17 pounds of weeds and a mud turtle. On the way home alas and alack! the canoes were caught in the waves of Rice Lake. Mr. Dodd and the New Yorker got home with their trousers and southern extremities of their shirts wetter than if said garments nad been through a washing machine.

BASEBALL

The game yesterday at Riverside Park was a grand exhibition of ball and the boys worked hard all through. Bob Sterling was never in trouble with the Londoners and had them under his control at all times. The visitors could not connect with Sterling's offerings. Trout put up a good game behind the bat.

The Petes were there yesterday with the pill pounder and swatted the London boy's goods and swatted them right.

A feature of the game yesterday was the batting and fielding of Toby Thompson, who, though feeling under the weather with a very bad cold, managed to cross the plate for three runs. Joe Byrne also put up a good game, while Foxy did some good hitting. In fact the boys put up excellent ball.

The score stood 9—2 in favor of the Petes.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

CANADIAN SCHOLARS IN UNITED STATES

A Few of the Eminent Men From Canada Who Are Prominent in American Education

Cyrus McMillan, writing in the Canada Monthly, has the following to say of eminent Canadian scholars who have reached great prominence in the United States:

"Canada's population is comparatively small, and her educational history is comparatively brief. Yet Canada has done more than her share in giving to the world a number of eminent scholars whose writings and researches have increased the store of human knowledge. She has contributed largely in brains and service to the greatest American universities, until almost every university of note in the United States numbers one or more Canadians on its staff. The majority of these men are leading authorities in their special fields of study, and the results of their researches are accepted with respect by scholars throughout the world. This latter fact accounts, perhaps, for the eagerness of American colleges to secure their services. That this band of outstanding scholars should be lost to Canada at the time of her growth and critical development is unfortunate. Why they are lost is an unanswered question. It is pointed out in explanation that Canada has no strong graduate school in which students are trained for educational careers; that consequently students seeking graduate instruction must enter the large graduate schools of the United States colleges; that because of liberal inducements they remain in the alien country and are lost to their own land. This explanation is not without force. The graduate school problem is one which the larger Canadian colleges are to-day trying hard to solve.

Recognition in Canada

Another theory is the old one of the prophet without honor in his own country. It is said that Canadians in college work have no recognition in their own land; that, when a vacancy occurs on the staff of a Canadian university, Canadians are ignored and the vacancy is invariably filled by a man from an overseas school or college who is frequently but poorly qualified for his task. "A Canadian university is a good place for a Canadian scholar to avoid, if he wishes promotion," said a noted Canadian-born professor in the United States recently. How well-founded is this theory, the Canadian colleges can answer. The regrettable fact is that a glance at the faculty of the majority of Canadian colleges shows it to be not without truth. Some of the foremost American universities have Canadian-born presidents. President J. G. Schurman, of Cornell, is a native of Prince Edward Island; he received his early college training in Canada. President Hill, of the University of Missouri, is a native of Nova Scotia; he took his first college degree at Dalhousie. The group of Canadian-born professors connected with the teaching forces of American colleges is a very large one. Professor Le Rossignol, the noted economist of the University of Colorado, and Professor MacDougall, the eminent psychologist of New York, are both graduates of McGill, and claim Canada as their home-land.

But of all United States colleges, Harvard University has the largest number of Canadian-born professors on its staff. Of these, the majority are from Ontario. Canadianism at Harvard is illustrated not alone by the number of Canadian students and professors.

Numerous at Harvard

Of the distinguished group of Canadian-born professors at Harvard, the oldest is Dr. S. M. McVane, Emeritus Professor of History. Dr. McVane is a native of Prince Edward Island. He was graduated from Acadia College in Nova Scotia in 1866. Dr. Benjamin Rand, Librarian of the Philosophical Library at Harvard, is well known to Canadians. He was one of the founders of the Harvard Canadian Club, and is still its leading spirit. Dr. Rand is a native of Nova Scotia, and like Professor McVane a graduate of Acadia College. Dr. W. A. Neilson, Professor of English, is a Scotchman by birth, but he has lived long enough in Canada to be called a Canadian. After graduating from Edinburgh University, he came to Ayr, Ontario. For a time he was connected with the staff of Upper Canada College.

Dr. E. C. Jeffrey, Professor of Botany, is a native of St. Catherines, Ontario. He was graduated from Toronto University in 1888. He became a Fellow in Biology in Toronto University in 1889, and two years later lecturer in that subject. Dr. W. H. Schofield, Chairman of the Department of Comparative Literature, was born in Brockville, Ontario. He was graduated from Victoria University, Toronto, in 1889. Dr. W. B. Munro, Professor of Government, is a native of Ontario. He was graduated from Queen's University, and later received his Ph.D. degree in Government from the Harvard Graduate School.

Dr. W. S. Ferguson, Professor of Classical History, is a native of Prince Edward Island. He was graduated from McGill University in 1896.

Dr. K. G. T. Webster, Instructor in English, is a native of Nova Scotia. He was graduated from Dalhousie University in the early nineties. The members of the above group of Canadian scholars at Harvard are more than investigators and authorities; they are sympathetic teachers. To Canadian school-boys they are outstanding and brilliant examples of the results of industry, perseverance, and study

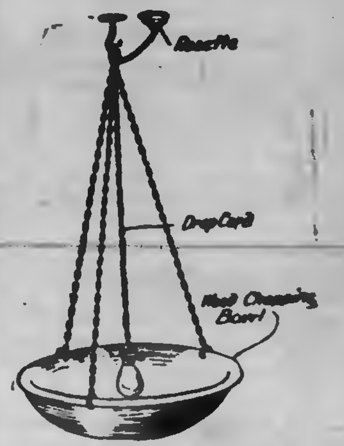
INDIRECT LIGHTING

Chopping Bowl and Brass Chains Make Inexpensive Fixture

Indirect lighting is the proper thing now and while most of the systems of indirect lighting that have been put on the market are expensive, it is possible for anyone possessed of money enough to buy a few wooden chopping bowls and some lengths of brass chain to have indirect lighting fixtures that do all the work with very little trouble or expense.



The inside of the bowl is painted white and then enamelled. It is necessary to get a smooth, glossy finish so that the light will be properly reflected. The outside of the bowl may be gilded or painted to harmonise with the decorations of the room.

The edges of the bowl are pierced in three or four places, whichever scheme suits best, for the attachment of the chains. The other ends of the chains are attached to a metal ring with which to hang the fixture from a hook in the ceiling. The electric light cord is made long enough to reach from the rosette in the ceiling to the bowl, just clearing the bottom, but not touching. With the light turned on the white interior of the bowl will reflect the rays on the ceiling and indirect lighting will be secured.

It is necessary that the ceiling of the room where this light is used should be white or a brilliant yellow. Other colors will absorb the light.

THROUGH HUDSON BAY

What Two Authorities Say Regarding Ice Navigation

"Will there be navigation enough through the Hudson Bay Straits after the railway end of the route is built to justify the existence of the road?" Opinions are all that can be quoted just now. Two of the most worthy the writer could find are given herewith. Mr. G. Halcrow, retired factor of the Hudson's Bay Company at The Pas, who has resided in this district for over forty years, who lived for eight years on Hudson's Bay, and who has several times travelled through the Straits, says that navigation can be kept open through the northern passages for eight months in the year. Mr. J. P. Gordon, assistant to Engineer Armstrong of the Hudson's Bay Railway, who was with Hon. Frank Cochrane on his trip through Hudson's Bay, made the statement that, so far as ice was concerned, no trouble need be anticipated for a considerable period during the year. His party, he said, had found no ice in Hudson's Straits or on the coast of Labrador. The Straits of Belle Isle were the only places where ice had been encountered.

ICE CREAM SODA

Here is the Story of the Origin of This Famous Concoction

Ice cream has been the dominating influence in the progress of the soda-water industry since the advent of pure fruit syrups. The addition of this frozen palate tickler to soda water not only improves the richness and smoothness of the beverage, but at the same time it increased its food value. Statistics as to the consumption of ice cream show an enormous increase since it was first added to soda water, and the soda fountain has not only been the greatest quantity consumer of ice cream, but its advertiser. With the advent of the luscious sundae came still additional increase in the consumption of both soda and ice cream at fountains.

In the Spring of 1874 Robert M. Green of Philadelphia, who at that time was acting agent for John Matthews of New York, at the same time had begun the manufacture of smaller types of fountains of his own. He secured a concession to dispense soda water at an exposition held under the auspices of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and stress of business compelled him to do something to attract the patronage of the public. At all events, such was the inspiration, according to Mr. Green, which prompted him to put ice cream in soda water.

THE CANADIAN NAVY

In time of peace the disposition of a Canadian navy would be comparatively unimportant. In time of war it would necessarily become an integral part of the common forces of defence. It is inconceivable that under such circumstances there could be any kind of dualistic control. Unless public feeling suffered vast change, all of Canada's resources would be at the disposal of Great Britain, and from a single centre would go the commands leading to effective defence. The Liberal arguments are largely superficial, and lacking in any real appeal to the sober sense of Canada.

DOWN BY THE SEA.

The favorite way to reach the attractive beaches of the popular resorts on Long Island Sound in the vicinity of New London, Conn., is via the Grand Trunk Railway System and the Central Vermont Railway, tourists being given the choice of routes, including that magnificent trip through the Thousand Islands and the exciting run through the rapids of the St. Lawrence River to Montreal, which is one of the most delightful of summer trips. A side trip to the capital of the Dominion—Ottawa where the Chateau Laurier, the $2,500,000 Grand Trunk Hotel offers the best accommodation in the Dominion, and Montreal, with its many attractions will also appeal to the patrons of this route.

The seashore express for New London leaves Montreal every night at 8:30 with electric lighted buffet sleeping cars, and the day train at 8:30 in the morning with parlor and dining cars. The main attractions of Long Island resorts are warm surf bathing, deep sea fishing, driving and tramping, and a temperature rarely rising above 75 degrees. A week in this vicinity will do you as much good as a sea voyage. For seashore booklet giving full information apply to B. A. Rose, City Passenger Agent, G. T. R'y, Peterborough.

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Boer War Who Lost Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Good Advice for All who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders

In his home at Waldegrove, N. S., no one is better known than Sergt.-Major Cross, late of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sergt.-Major writes "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sergt.-Major. It was perhaps owing to a continued diet of bully beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. I was in such a state that I could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THESE SECRET SESSIONS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was pleased to see yesterday that The Times had backbone enough to show up the secret sessions of the Juvenile Court in Peterborough. Although not present at the trial of Monday, in which a charge of assault against a young girl was supposed to have been tried, I think your article was correct. If the mothers of this city, are to be treated by the police as though they had no intelligence, and are to be debarred from seeing in the local papers the dangers that surround their daughters, they had better move elsewhere to protect their girls. Women, married women, are presumed to have some knowledge of what is transpiring generally. However, a few concrete and individual cases brought to their attention would be of greater value than a general idea of what may be going on. If, as you say, the Toronto press can give column long reports held in that city, it seems a piece of arrogance for the local Chief of Police to stop mothers of girls here from knowing what is going on.

THE SPIT BALL DOES NOT SPIN

Goes Straight on Pushes Air Cushion Ahead of It Causing Freakish Motion

What do you know about the spit ball?

You may have seen it pitched a thousand times and know how effective it is when the pitcher has control. You have seen catchers stop the elusive ball with their shins and knee cap and have watched batters strike at it in vain. But can you say why the spit ball acts as it does?

The following is part of what Will Irwin says on the subject:

Ed Walsh, greatest spit-baller, doesn't know why the ball acts so queerly. He practices and experiments and repeats the motions, which produce the effect. Princeton university scientists say it is a new phenomenon to them. The spit ball pitcher wets a small spot on the ball with saliva, carefully fitting two fingers over the wet spot. He throws the ball with all speed, straight toward the plate.

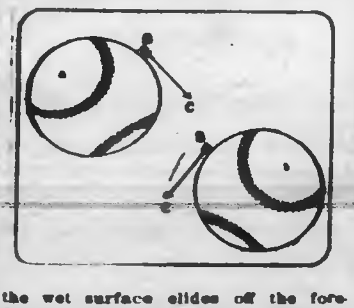
Christy Mathewson, Russell Ford, "Doc" White and other brainy pitchers have a theory, which Irwin believes, after months of investigation, deserves consideration, though it is not accepted by the scientists he consulted.

It is that the ball, because of the wet surface, does not spin.

A spinning ball bores into the air, edging the molecules aside. The spit ball, traveling "dead," accumulates an air-cushion ahead. When it "feels" this pressure it seeks the line of least resistance, jumping into free air, causing that curious break. The momentary pause lets gravitation draw the ball earthward.

The exalt direction of the downward break is determined by the position of the seam at the instant of the break, the ball shooting from the greatest smooth surface it presents to the air cushion. So much for the spit ball of the ordinary pitcher who does not know how the ball will break.

Walsh and Ford are different from the ordinary spit ballers. They control the break, by giving the ball a very slight spin with the thumb, as the wet surface slides off the forefingers. The ball revolves perhaps six times in its course.



The comparatively insignificant spin does not make the ball bore through the air cushion, but it is enough to give it a very slight pressure on one side.

As the ball swerves, it is in a state of very unstable equilibrium. The breese of a butterfly's wing would determine the direction of its slide off the air cushion. That pressure, infinitesimal as it is, controls the direction of the break; hence, by the position of the thumb and the spin, they send the ball to left, right or down and Walsh makes it break upward.

Facing the ball as it breaks. Area A is the greatest smooth surface. The air cushion slides off this surface and the ball breaks toward B-C.

Seven Hundred Pounds of Mud

Calgary and Edmonton, the two principal cities of the Province of Alberta, are 220 miles apart but that fact tells nothing of the difficulty of making the trip in an automobile. H. H. Kerr, of Calgary, states that on his arrival at Edmonton in a car driven from Calgary more than 700 pounds of mud were scraped and washed from the wheels and axles. Mr. Kerr had four heavy men and a quantity of baggage with him but his car pulled through with no trouble in spite of the fact that she was "over her hubs in the soil" a good share of the time.

AUTOMATIC LIGHTER

Press Down Lever and Flame Appears in an Instant

An automatic cigar lighter that is designed for home as well as store use has been patented by a Western man. With it comes an ornamental ash tray with four cigar rests around the edge. The lighter stands in the center of the tray and consists of a reservoir for gasoline, a small tube at the top with a friction cap and a lever that operates the cap. It is said that one filling of gasoline will give over 1,000 lights. The principle on which the gasoline ignites is that of friction. One end of the lever is just below the cap of the lighter tube and when the other end of the lever is pressed down the cap is pushed off and the gasoline lighted from the tiny spark that results. The cap is hung to a small chain so it does not get lost. It is claimed that there is no odor to this device.

FRICTION IGNITES GASOLINE.

The invention of the barometer dates back to the year 1643.

HELD FAMILY PEWS FOR OVER A CENTURY

Interesting Fact About St. James Cathedral, the Fourth Edifice on the Same Site

A hundred years is a long space of time in the life of a modern city. Nevertheless, there are plenty of families in Toronto which have continuously held pews in St. James' Cathedral for more than a century. The magnificent pile to-day, is not, of course, the original building, nor was the latter called a cathedral. The first Anglican church, built between the years 1803 and 1807, was constructed of wood, and was, in fact, little more than a "meeting house." But it stood on almost the same site as the present St. James' Cathedral, though, unlike that edifice, which faces north and south, it faced east and west—a location more conformable with Anglican traditions as to the building of churches. This primitive church was opened for public worship in the year 1807, and in March of that year the pews were sold by public auction, subject to the ground rents of four dollars a year for a double, and two dollars a year for a single, pew. The sum received in pew rents for the first year appears to have amounted to about a hundred and forty-five dollars. Among the earliest pew-holders—none of whom, of course, survive—are many names held in high honor and esteem in Toronto. Some of these good old families are extinct. The members of some of them worship at other churches. But, in spite of all vicissitudes—the first church, after reconstruction, was replaced by a stone building (the first cathedral), which was destroyed by fire, as was also in its turn, its successor the second cathedral)—there are still to-day plenty of Torontonians worshipping in the present fourth church and third cathedral, called St. James, whose ancestors were among the original pew-holders in the original wooden church, and in whose families the pews have remained ever since.

FIRST WESTERN PAPER

Made its Appearance on December 28, 1859

The Nor'-Wester, the pioneer newspaper of Red River, founded by William Buckingham and William Coldwell, made its first appearance on December 28, 1819. It consisted of four pages of five columns. The lengthy prospectus published in the first number took for its text the country watered by the Red, Assiniboine and Saskatchewan Rivers. The declared aim of the Nor'-Wester was to stimulate the industrial life of the Settlement and to assist in the work of Government organization. It is a curious commentary on the state of the country in the late 'fifties that most of the advertisements of the first number of the Nor'-Wester came from St. Paul. The paper constitutes a gold mine of information for the closing decade of the history of the Council of Assiniboia, the first local administrative body of the west. It reports the proceedings of the courts, gives agricultural and commercial intelligence, publishes the regulations of the Red River Post Office, gives in full Bishop Anderson's charge to the clergy of Rupert's Land, prints editorials on the progress of the Settlement, and protests against the Council of Assiniboia as a form of government.

BOTTLE OF PEACHES

Note in Jar of Preserves Brings Lover of Old Back to Sweetheart.

By H. M. EGBERT.

(Copyright, 1912, by W. G. Chapman.)

People said that old Rogers was a miser, but that statement was incorrect. Rogers had been a miser. He had scraped and hoarded during thirty years of labor, so that now, though he was barely fifty years of age, he looked older. But Rogers had retired three months before, thanks to some wisely made investments, and now, with fifteen thousand dollars at his disposal, he was still living on in his little two-room flat on the East Side of New York, and trying to stretch his cramped imagination and plan his life anew.

Bitterly he regretted that he was an old bachelor without a friend or wife, sweetheart or child. His few acquaintances were men whom he had known casually in business, and the district tradesmen and sundry old fellows whom he met twice a week at his chess club over the delicatessen store on Thirteenth street. But Rogers had lived his life exactly as he had planned it, and that is an incredible misfortune which deserves the utmost sympathy.

When Rogers was twenty, a young man newly arrived in the city from the little up-country village, where he had been born, he had made his resolution.

"I shall save every penny I can put by," he said to himself. "I shall save for seven years. And then I shall go home and marry some sweet girl."

But the seven years crept by and found Rogers with the fixed habit of his own creation, which he could not shake off. And long before the seven years were ended Rogers had made a second resolution.

"I shall work seven years longer," he said. "Then I shall go home to Egan. I shall be thirty-four then. That will not be too old to marry. Until I am rich I will not tie any woman down to the hardships of married life on a tiny salary."

The second seven years lengthened into fifteen, twenty, then thirty. And long before they were ended Rogers had forgotten his dream.

But of late, with his fifteen thousand dollars safely stored away in the bank, the dreams had revived. And then something happened—a little, insignificant thing—which brought color and new interest into his life.

It Was Just Such a Place He Would Have Imagined.

Rogers had gone to the delicatessen store of his acquaintance, Holzapfel, to buy something for supper. He cooked his own supper upon a tiny stove in his apartment.

"I think," he said, after he had made his purchases, "that I'll take some preserved fruit."

"Why, Rogers, you're becoming a spendthrift, a regular spendthrift," said Holzapfel jestingly.

Rogers patronized the old German from long habit. Holzapfel had fallen as sadly behind the times as he. His trade had dwindled and dwindled, his stock was incredibly old. Holzapfel nodded for hours in his store while not a single customer entered the dingy little place.

"Well, I've got some preserved peaches," said the old fellow. "But they wasn't put up yesterday, Rogers. I can't say how fresh they was. I'll let you have them for a dime. They're home-grown, and they're worth twenty-five—if they was fresh."

Rogers took the peaches and walked out of the store. The utensil was one of those glass jars with a ring round the stopper, such as are used by countrywomen in preserving. They are not seen so much in large cities in these days of canning factories.

The peaches were bad. But that fact had nothing to do with the case. For inside the jar was a little folded square of oiled paper. And in this, perfectly good, was a folded piece of paper, on which was written:

"Lucy Morrell, Egan, N. Y."

Old Rogers racked his brains. He could not remember anyone in Egan named Morrell. But then he had not known everyone even in Egan.

But that evening the loneliness of his flat, the squalor of his surroundings, to which he had been oblivious before, oppressed his spirit; and the very word Egan, written out on the paper, made him homesick for the little town. In the end he sat down and wrote:

"Lucy Morrell: I found your note in the peaches."

Days passed; old Rogers resumed the tenor of his life. He had not found the courage to break loose from his surroundings. But about a week later the postman left a letter in his box. It was the first he had received for months, except bank notices and bills. It was addressed to him in a delicate, feminine writing, and inside he read:

"Dear Friend: I got your letter, but you didn't say how you liked the peaches."

That was the beginning of a correspondence, and it brought a new happiness into old Rogers' heart. He began to realise what he had missed in the manner merely of human intimacy during all those years. He became confidential, and Lucy answered him in the same spirit. He told her of his life, his plans, his dreams. And promptly with the post came Lucy's answer.

But one thing old Rogers had not found courage to tell. He had not told her that he was fifty. For he knew that the romance would be shattered. People thought a man of fifty could not love—the fools!

He had asked for her photograph, but she had not sent it, nor alluded to the matter again. And then old Rogers dared to hope that she might be homely—perhaps she was scarred or maimed, so that he might after all take her and shield her from the world and its cruelty.

Slowly, very slowly, old Rogers hammered out his purpose. He was resolved to put all selfish thoughts aside. He would let her go, let the correspondence cease. But when he came to die the girl in Egan would find that she had fallen heir to all his money. And he would work like a madman all his days to accumulate a fortune for her. So he ceased to answer her.

She wrote less often. But one day came a despairing note in which she confessed something perilously like love. And then old Rogers knew that he had no alternative. So he wrote back, a wild letter such as he would not have been capable of a year before, in which he told her. He told her that he was an elderly man, that he loved her with all his heart, but had not courage to ask her to be his wife. And so their correspondence must cease, and because he had been a fool and a coward he would suffer in remembering her all the rest of his days.

Then a week passed, and then her answer came. It was a little note, the shortest that she had ever written him except the first time, and it said simply:

"Come up to Egan. The third house from the depot. LUCY."

On that same afternoon old Rogers drew his money from the bank, paid the rent and gave notice to his landlord, to the utter astonishment and dismay of that gentleman, who had left old Rogers's apartment to molder into decay untouched and unpainted during the past decade. Then he turned his back upon Thirteenth street forever and set forth for Egan.

He reached the little place at five on an autumn afternoon. It had not changed as he had expected. A few houses had sprung up along the railroad, but otherwise it was just as it had been during the past 30 years.

He descended at the depot and walked slowly toward the cottage. There was no mistaking it, that little, old-fashioned building with its clinging ivy and Virginia creeper and the carefully tended lawn and garden. It was just such a place as he would have imagined for an abode for Lucy. So he passed through the latched gate and knocked at the door. A pleasant, gentle-looking lady of about forty years opened to him.

"I am James Rogers," said the visitor simply. "I have come to see your daughter." He said the last word with a tone of interrogation. Yet he felt sure that this was Lucy's mother. This was just such a mother as he would have expected Lucy to have. And yet it was strange that she had never mentioned her in her letters.

"Come in, Mr Rogers," said the other. "Sit down in the parlor until I light the lamp."

She showed him into a quaint, old-fashioned parlor and then began trimming the wick. But she could not finish. She set the shears down hastily and came up to him. Old Rogers rose.

"I am Lucy Morrell," she said, trembling.

Old Rogers looked at her incredulously, and then . . . It was all so different from what he had expected. But he saw her eyes filled with tears and her head bowed in shame—and then, quite clumsily, for old Rogers had had no such experience during his fifty years—or during the last thirty of them, at any rate—he took her in his arms and kissed her.

He knew then that he loved her the more truly because she brought to him a mind ripened by experience and a love whose strength was only the deeper for the passing of the years. And she had feared as he had feared, when the correspondence, begun in jest, had ended in earnest. And then his letter had come!

"But there's one thing I can't understand, dearest," he said that evening, as they sat before the fire. "Why did you write your name on the paper and put it in the bottle of peaches? I could imagine that of you as a young girl, but not now."

"My dear," she answered, smiling, "I bottled those peaches 20 years ago."

LAIRD OF ASSYNT

Vancouver Man Big Landed Proprietor in His Native Scotland

The Duke of Sutherland sold to Mr. J. W. Stewart, a well known railway contractor of Vancouver, the northwestern part of the parish of Assynt, in the county of Sutherland. The property has an area of over 50,000 acres, and embraces the districts of Stoer, Achmelvich, Inver and Kylesku. The land forms one of the most fertile spots in Scotland, and from an agricultural point of view is ideal. The scenery is of the choicest, and no more bracing and invigorating spot could well be found in the kingdom. A large number of shooting tents are annually in the district, and angling is to be had in abundance.

Mr. Stewart, the purchaser, is a native of Drumbeg. He came to Canada about thirty years ago, and from the first fortune smiled upon him, everything he turned his hand to being successful, with the result that in a very short time he became one of the leading railway contractors of Canada. It was always his desire to become possessor of a piece of his native country, especially the part where he was born and reared. That ambition has been realised, and the intimation that one of their own kith and kin had become the proprietor was received with great rejoicing.

When it became known that Mr. Stewart was the proprietor of the lands, the people of the district united to honor the occasion in true Highland fashion. Bonfires were set alight on the hilltops, at which parties gathered for rejoicing and dancing to the merry accompaniment of the bagpipes, the new proprietor's health, and the health of his wife and family, being toasted amid every token of good-will.

The principal rejoicings took place at Assynt, at which there was a large and enthusiastic gathering. Mr. D. Mackenzie, in voicing the feelings of the people, referred to the rejoicing which was universal among the friends and neighbors of Mr. Stewart and his respected family at the fact that one of themselves had become laird of the countryside. They had evidence of that in the large gathering met on that occasion to do honor to Mr. Stewart, who they were now proud to think and speak of as Laird of Assynt.

COMPULSORY TRAINING

Quite Justified in New Zealand Says Visitor—Yellow Peril Real

"Very cheerfully I consented to my son taking the time away from business to undergo the compulsory military training," said Mr. John Watson, of Auckland, New Zealand, in discussing at Montreal the measure adopted by his country. "We are trying to keep Australia and New Zealand white. That is our aim and it threatens to be a difficult one to carry out. We are not much impressed with the German menace, and the need of a North Sea fleet, but we do understand what the yellow peril means.

"I firmly believe that as soon as China and Japan are in a position to take aggressive measures that we can look out for trouble. They have tried gaining our country by colonization, and only drastic measures prevented New Zealand from being overrun. The head tax of $500 held them in check for a while, but the wealthy Chinamen already with us were very fond of advancing the tax to compatriots and bringing them in to work out the loan.

"Our next step was the educational test, requiring newcomers to have some knowledge of English, and this served the purpose. The Chinese population is now decreasing." Mr. Watson first saw snow while crossing the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

Smoking Made Harmless

Nicotine is the poison that lurks in tobacco, and many have been the efforts and experiments to do away with this harmful feature in "the pipe that cheers." It has been found with different methods that when the nicotine has been extracted the tobacco was quite tasteless; but dealers and manufacturers have now reached their end by the simplest of processes—soaking the nicotine out of the tobacco.

This is the method. Soak the tobacco in fresh, pure water in an earthen dish for about an hour, then remove the tobacco and dry it out of doors.

Chemical analysis of the water in which the tobacco has been soaked shows that a very large percentage of the nicotine has been dissolved. This solution, incidentally, is a useful poison to kill insects on greenhouse and other plants.

Tobacco treated loses its aroma to some extent; but the smoker soon acquires a liking for the purity of the blend, and saves in health and pocket by buying tobacco in natural leaf form from the wholesalers, soaking carefully for several hours, and drying slowly on paper.

Sheep as Beasts of Burden

All sorts of animals are pressed into service as beasts of burden in various parts of the world. In Tibet, for instance, sheep and goats are used as pack animals, and a flock of these animals, well loaded, journey from there to the Rampur fair, in India.

The hardy little beasts take over a month on the long and arduous journey, traversing on the way several high passes, where other pack animals would be useless.

Once in India and their loads delivered, they are kept on the plains during the winter, and then sent back with a stock of grain for Tibet and regions on the border where foodstuffs are scarce.

Alabaster Sphinx Found

Another sphinx, weighing 90 tons and carved from a single block of alabaster, was unearthed at a point between the world-famed Colossi on the water-logged plains of Memphis in Egypt. For hundreds of years it has lain in a recumbent position buried beneath the sands on the road to Sakkareh. This newly found sphinx was betrayed in its hiding place by its tail, which Mr. Mackay, one of the students of the British school in Egypt, discovered about a year ago. The figure bears no inscription, but it is considered by Prof. Flinders Petrie, the director of the British school in Egypt, to have been carved about 1300 B.C.

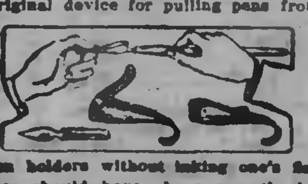
Fancy Flat Braids

Most unusual in their combination of colors are many of the flat braids shown for trimming gowns. They come from the tiniest of edgings not a quarter of an inch in width to one three or four inches wide. While the Bulgarian note is sounded in many of them, the softer colorings, especially when combined with tinsel, are decidedly fetching. The blues and greens combined with the metal, whether separately or in combination, are charming.

No More Inky Fingers

The average Frenchman is particular as to his personal appearance, and it is not surprising that the most original device for pulling pens from pen holders without inking one's fingers should have been recently invented by a Parisian.



The device shown in the sketch explains itself. The pen is gripped in the jaws of the clamp shaped to fit it and is pulled out by the hook. The device is made of tin.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest In The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

HUDSON BAY ROUTE GREAT POSSIBILITIES

It Will Show Within a Few Years the Great Material Wealth of the New Region

W. B. McPherson, B.Sc., Toronto, who spent several months in survey and exploration work at Hudson Bay, says in part of the Hudson Bay Route:

"There will be large and important industries opened within the next few years in Hudson Bay. For the past seventy years whalers have been visiting this territory from the Atlantic coast of the United States. Their schooners total $100,000 annually. Scotch whalers from Dundee also pay regular visits. The whalers from Hudson Bay are worth from $10,000 to $20,000 apiece. In 1886 Lieut. A. R. Gordon gives the average value of each whaling cargo from the year 1846-1875 at $46,000 and Mr. A. P. Low in 1904, using information supplied by Captain Comer, an American whaler, places the average value of a whaling cargo between 1891 and 1904 at about $35,000. It is easily seen that this industry should be valuable to Canada. These fisheries are vast and varied. Bowhead or Arctic whales are worth $14,000 a ton and an adult whale will yield 1,500 pounds of oil and bone. Then the porpoise or white whale is present at the mouths of all large rivers in thousands. These whales are about fourteen feet long and are valuable for their hide and oil. The walrus, is very common, in the northerly and westerly portions of the Bay and has a considerable commercial value. Several varieties of seal exist in great plenty. Salmon and cod swarm the waters. The salmon is so abundant and of such quality that an industry like that of British Columbia may be opened up. The Hudson Bay Company make annual shipments to Europe at present from Ungava Bay on the south side of the Strait. It is easily seen that this new route will, in the next few years, show what exists in this region of Canada to be added to our reserve of natural resources. The rocks over much of the bordering region give promise of mineral wealth. Enough exploration has been done to hold great attraction to the prospector. However, apart from the latent resources of the Bay, this new route means much to the West. At half a cent per ton a mile, it means fifteen cents saved on each bushel on the whole trip. When a crop of 60,000,000 bushels is laid down annually via the Hudson Bay Railway, the saving will be $9,000,000, which is seriously worth something to the producer. Once grain commences pouring out this way the ships will soon appear with west bound cargoes in return. On shipping cattle a saving of at least $5.00 to $6.00 per head will be effected in freight; considerable loss due to shrinkage which occurs when animals are confined on a transcontinental rail haul will be avoided, and the animals will be marketed in better condition."

ARRESTED A LORD

Constable and Baron Act Unwittingly in Jasper Park

An amusing story of an English nobleman who overestimated the wildness of the west and nearly got locked up by the mounted police as a result comes from Fitzhugh, Alberta. It appears that Lord Congleton took a trip to the Rocky Mountains for a little shooting, and accidentally got into Jasper park in his quest for big game.

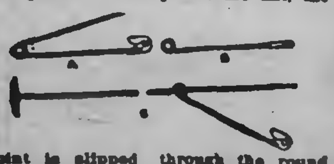
The noble lord saw a large mountain sheep within easy range of his rifle and potted the animal with ease. Encouraged by his success, he went on a little further, where he found another sheep grazing, and bagged his second one for the day.

Innocently—in fact, proudly—his lordship went back to camp with his two sheep slung across his ponies. A constable, who was in ignorance of the aristocratic state of the violator of the Dominion Park regulations, and who might not have cared any way, promptly pounced upon Lord Congleton and placed him under arrest.

The lord explained who he was and that he had not known that the sheep were not there to be shot. The park commissioner was wired and the nobleman was released.

Safety Hat Pin

The deadly hat pin continues to claim its victims, despite the fact that legislatures have enacted laws against it and city governments have authorized the police to do all sorts of things to the wearers. However, it is a comparatively easy matter to take the sting out of the hat pin. A supply of safety pins is all that is needed. The pin part of the safety pin is cut off at the coiled end, as shown in the sketch. Then, after the hat pin has been put in the hat, the point is slipped through the round coil and the safety end of the safety pin twisted around so that it will engage the point of the hat pin. The pressure against the hat pin holds it in place like a spring.



Cost of Big Bullets

The Hadfield Steel Foundry of Sheffield was awarded a contract for five hundred twelve-inch shells for the United States navy at a price of $187 each. The contract was given to an English firm because its price was lower than that of American tenderers, who, however, were awarded contracts for 5,000 shells, at prices varying from $279 each for 12-inch to $490 and $500 each for 14-inch. Besides showing that Englishmen are still in the steel business, the incident throws some light on the cost of modern war equipment. Five hundred dollars is a lot to pay for one bullet.

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Reet, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE HUMAN HAND A MAGNETIC POLE

Instrument Perfected Which Detects the Vital Magnetic Fluid

A French scientist, M. Fayol, asserts that he has made an important discovery in establishing the polarity of the human body.

The theory that man has positive and negative magnetic poles was advanced long ago, but no instrument had been invented capable of measuring the electric force satisfactorily.

M. Fayol perfected an instrument with which, he says, delicate observations of the vital magnetic fluid emitted by the human body can be made. He asserts that the positive pole centres in the right hand and the negative in the left, while with left-handed persons the reverse is the case.

The scientist's instrument consists of an adjustable oak board, whereon a delicate metal cylinder swings in a perpendicular position between ball bearings, in order to minimise the friction. The operator places his left hand on the board, the palm facing the cylinder and the thumb uppermost. In a moment the cylinder begins to revolve, slowly at first, and then faster, in the same direction as the hands of a watch.

If the right hand is placed behind the cylinder it will revolve in the opposite direction.

Let another person put his right hand on the shoulder of the first, and the cylinder will move even more rapidly.

Mr. Fayol states that he is able by this means to measure the vital magnetic force of subjects who put their hands before the instrument. No reaction is observable on the instrument in the case of infants, but between the ages of 25 and 45 years, the magnetic force as recorded increases annually. After the latter age, it diminishes till it almost vanishes in the case of the very old.

This magnetism may pass from person to person, and the vital emanation of one may be received by another and stored up by him. The theory of sympathy sewis is explained by the assumption that such persons have similar magnetic personalities.

Commission Governs City

St. John, N.B., is a progressive Canadian city where the commission form of government has been tried with success, so it is said. The civic administration is in the hands of a mayor and four commissioners, the mayor elected for two years and the commissioners for four years, two retiring at the end of each biennial period. Any official may be removed from office by the recall, and popular government is further assured by the initiative and referendum.

Punishment to Fit Crime

Among Chinese coolies favored method of stealing rice is to lean up against a pile of sacks and stick a tin tube through the sacking, the rice, which is dry, naturally flowing through the tube into the coolie's clothing. Flour is also stolen in this manner, and a common punishment in this case is to let the thief obtain a large quantity and then pour water into his clothing, which makes matters rather uncomfortable for him.

NATIONALISTS ENRAGE UNIONISTS BY CHANTING "GOD SAVE KING"

Bids for Patriotism in the Irish Camp Since Derry Riots Have Resulted in Ludicrous Confusion--Last Weeks Demonstrations Said to be Beginning of Autumn Riotous Campaign

London, Aug. 20.--The Derry riots have revealed a paradoxical situation. The Nationalists now regard themselves as the party of law and order. Greatly to the wrath of the Carsonites they have adopted the custom of singing God Save the King at their gatherings. The Unionists declare they merely have done this in spite. On the other side those who know Ulster best declare that last week's rioting is only the begining of an autumn campaign of widespread Ulster riots. This can be directly traced to Sir Edward Carson's campaign of drilling and arming.

Increasing Insurance Risk on Riots.

The view taken in commercial circles may be gathered from the resolution of Lloyd's Underwriters to double insurance rates in Belfast against riots, increasing the rate from 5 to 10 per cent. In the case of great concerns they are refusing to ensure beyond amoderate figure.

Ulster leaders are now undertaking a systematic campaign against the Royal Irish Constabulary, declaring them to be overwhelmingly Catholic and Nationalist, members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and openly partisan in their work. Within the last ten years Roman Catholics in the force have increased from 74 to 79 per cent., young northern Protestants refusing to enlist at the rates of pay offered.

Poor Pay That Rich May Play.

One section of the Labor party is endeavoring to promote an agitation against the Olympic games' committee's appeal for $500,000. Their organ, the Daily Citizen, declares the poor are to pay that the rich may play. If anything were needed to make the average man treat the appeal with scorn, it would be the fact that money is being raised on behalf of an association which denies the right of any artisan mechanic or laborer to call himself an amateur.

NOTORIOUS PRISONER REGARDED SAFER IN JAIL THAN OUT

Canadian Immigration Officials Threaten to Deport Lunatic the Moment He is Freed on Habeas Corpus Proceedings -This Halts Thaw's Lawyers

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 20.—Application for a writ of habeas corpus demanding the immediate release of Harry K. Thaw, fugitive slayer of Stanford White, was submitted this afternoon to Judge Globensky in the Superior Court at Sherbrooke by Chas. D. White, a lawyer retained by telegraph over night by the Thaw family. The court announced that it would take the matter under consideration at 2.30 o'clock.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 20.—The Thaw millions were arraigned against the Canadian Government to-day, and the Thaw money was to be used at the outset in the fight for Harry K. Thaw's liberty in an effort to get delay. The Thaw lawyers do not want their client discharged just now.

If they can have their way he will not be brought into court for at least forty-eight hours. It is already reasonably certain that he will not be arraigned on habeas corpus proceedings before to-morrow at the earliest.

The threat of immigration inspectors, T. B. Williams and D. N. Reynolds, that if Thaw is freed on the present charge they will deport him forthwith, has aroused the Thaw lawyers, and until they get all of the papers ready to enjoin the immigration officials from sending Thaw out of the country, they will not complete the habeas corpus proceedings with which they expect to have him liberated from the present charge.

An Order to Delay.

A pre-emptory order to delay the case was received by George Lauder Carnegie by Chas. D. White, K.C., chief counsel for Thaw. White is an expert on immigration law and will be the Thaw trump card in the long legal battle that is impending. He said at noon that he would not decide on his course of action until Carnegie, and his wife, Thaw's sister, reaches here to-night. Meanwhile, Thaw remains in his cell in the hospital in the old stone prison on top of the hill. He is very cheerful. He declared to a U. P. correspondent that he was satisfied that he would never be taken back to Matteawan.

"I will demonstrate to the world this time," he said, "that I am and have been sane."

IMPERIAL SQUADRON NECESSARY WRITES NAVAL EXPERT

Should be Formed by Whole Empire, Mother Country and Dominions Acting Together

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Events happening daily justify clearly the attitude taken by Premier Borden upon the naval question. He argued for the close co-operation of British naval forces. The naval correspondent of the English Daily Telegraph has just dealt with the problem of the whole world. Defence of the British Empire and in his article says.

"Not the least important aspect of the naval policy is the influence the retention of ships in home waters has on the professional character of officers and men. In cruising to ports abroad the navy gained assurance and developed hardiness. General readiness and efficiency in gunnery is probably more highly developed at home but the fleet must be saved domesticity or moral decline.

Always Cruising

Under the old regime fifty-three per cent. of the ships only retained at home. while forty-seven per cent. were constantly cruising abroad. To-day there is one cruiser in the Mediterranean, another is in the East Indies, and three are stationed on the Chinese coast. Elsewhere the British navy is unrepresented, excepting for cruisers, mostly of the smaller classes."

Imperial Squadron

He quotes Mr. Borden's summing-up of 160 ships in foreign and colonial stations in 1902 as against 76 to-day, and includes that the Admiralty cannot again adopt the policy of dispersion of the ships, as the men are not available, and the expense is prohibitive. But more small cruisers he says, are needed on the coast of British Columbia, and a larger squadron at the Cape. Above all, there should be an Imperial Squadron provided jointly by the Mother Country and the dominions for cruising in distant waters."

Humiliating Position

The Senate urged on by the advice of Sir Wilfrid Laurier rejected the Borden naval proposals and now Canada is in the humiliating position of being compelled to see a great opportunity to aid the Mother Country slip away from her grasp. The unpatriotic action of the Senate will have a far more reaching effect upon the standing of Britain among the nations of the world than was ever thought.

THAW MONEY ACCURSED SAYS NEW YORK PAPER

It Has Cursed Its Possessors and Has Degraded the State Utterly.

New York, Aug. 20.—Was there ever a greater curse than the Thaw money? It has been an affliction to its possessors from the first. It has burdened society with prodigacy, scandal, and crime. For several years it has been shamelessly used to defeat justice, to nullify law and to corrupt the authorities of a great State.

If Harry Thaw had been born poor he might to-day have been a worthy man. It was not heredity that made him what he is. It was money. Money caused him to be an idler; money led him into evil associations; money distorted his views of right and wrong; money enabled him to contaminate others; money at last gave him the vices which unhinged him, and added murder to the long list of his offences.

The Thaw money is a curse because it has produced a degenerate in whose behalf even the degraded, to exhibit the infirmity of the State, to expose the feebleness of our laws and to make the American boast of equality a jest among the nations. It has taken the Thaw money some years to humiliate New York utterly but it has gained the day at last, accursed though it be.

DEAL ON FOR C. N. R. TO BUY LONDON'S STREET RAILWAY

London, Ont., Aug. 20.—While all street railway officials here deny that the road has been sold or that negotiations are under way, it is generally understood here that some kind of a deal is on. Col. Davidson of the Canadian Northern, has been in London twice within the last ten days. He was accompanied once by Engineer McRae, of Toronto, and on both occasions made trips to the vicinity of Dutton. The London street railway only operates in the city. Officials of the London and Lake Erie Transportaion Company which operates between London and Port Stanley, state that no negotiations have been started for the purchase of their road. The C.N.R. recently purchased a large gravel pit just south of the city.

APSLEY MAY YET BE SAVED FROM FIRE

Boy Has Leg Broken Whilst Unloading Water Used For Fighting Flames

(Special to The Times)

Apsley, Aug. 20.—The bush fires are still raging in this locality despite all efforts to check them. On Monday the wind changed to the north east, which is helping a great deal to keep the flames from the settlement. The phones are continually calling for assistance, and calls are willing responded to. The burned district now extends to over 20 miles in length and more marsh hay has been burned, both out and standing. No rain yet, and intensely hot, 98 in the shade on Sunday. Thousands of dollars worth of timber has been destroyed. Reeve Tucker and R. C. Strickland have telephoned the Minister of Forests and Mines in regard to the situation and asked for \ help. The reply was that immediate action would be taken. Should the wind change to West and North-West it will be a hard fight to save crops and buildings in North Burleigh. Twenty-five or thirty men are constantly engaged fighting the fire and the scarcity of water makes it more difficult as it has to be drawn a long distance.

A very unfortunate accident happened Monday afternoon to Archie, the second eldest son of Norman Wilson, who while helping to unload a barrel of water had his leg broken between the knee and ankle. He was at once taken to his home in Mr. W. W. Vicker's auto which fortunately came along at the time. Dr. Fraser, of Lakefield, was called to set the broken limb.

North, in Anstruther, the fire is still burning and spreading despite all efforts to check it and several stacks of marsh hay has been burnt. It is coming out nearer the settlements and grave fears are entertained as to the outcome.

A DOUBLE PETITION
SENT TO QUEBEC PREMIER

Quebec, Aug. 20.—A double petition has reached Sir Lomer Gouin, Prim Minister and Attorney-General for the Province of Quebec, in Thaw's case. One emanates from the American police authorities, asking for detention of the fugutive, pending the arrivalof an official from New York.

The second petition is from Thaw lawyers, asking for the release of his clint, alleging illegal detention.

OUR MAGISTRATE ROASTS THE TIMES

Both Magistrate Dumble and Chief Thompson Would Adhere to the Old Ostrich Plan of Escaping Danger

Yesterday morning, before what he described as "the gaping crowd in the police court" Magistrate Dumble "roasted" the Times for an article we had in Tuesday's paper. This article took exception to the public, as represented by the press of Peterborough being excluded from the Juvenile Courts. The Magistrate maintained that the Times had attacked the Chief of Police and the Magistrate. Now there was nothing said, or even hinted at blaming those conducting the secret sessions of the Juvenile Courts. As far as the Chief of Police is concerned Peterborough has never yet had a more capable officer. To show the absurdity of Mr. Dumble's remarks we quote verbatim from the report which raised the Magistrate's ire: "No fault, in this respect is found with Chief Thompson. He is simply following the old Star Chamber Inquisition methods he succeeded to. Again, the Magistrate assured the audience that under the Criminal Code the public is not allowed at Juvenile Courts. Again we quote verbatim from our former article. "It is admitted that this (exclusion of the public) may obtain in some places or even be allowed by law." Here the Magistrate possibly following his training as a lawyer said "Would you have the gaping crowd in the police court present at such trials?" The Times never contended that the proletariat should be present. Again we quote: "Still the police of this city know that the local reporters, as a rule, when requested, for the attainment of the ends of morality, leave out certain details or names, they do so."

As far as the law compelling such cases to be tried in secret is concerned, for the protection of our daughters and the enlightenment, in a modified form, as consistent with decency, of the mothers of Peterborough, such cases as tried on Monday should be shown. The law may be law, but surely the education and enlightment of the mothers of this city and the virtue of our girls should rise superior to the law. This is not said in any spirit of anarchy but in common sense.

Toronto papers print full reports of the Juvenile Court proceedings. Surely the mothers and daughters of this city are entitled to the same protection as those of Toronto!

Any sane man or thinking woman knows that young girls are on our streets at late hours of night unaccompanied by adults. The expose of such a case as that of Monday, put in a modified form so that even the daughters of our people could read it would tend towards morality.

In this respect, we have nothing against either Magistrate Dumble, a most efficient member of the judiciary or Chief Thompson. It is the system of secret tribunals, which keep the mothers of girls from getting "posted" regarding the dangers their daughters are exposed to.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fair and about the same temperature.

GOOD SAMPLE OF LOCAL WORKSMANSHIP

Stretched out on the stage of the Grand Opera House is a painting in oils which measures 50 x 25 feet. This picture is painted and produced by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons and is a credit to the artistic ability of Peterborough. The big canvas was ordered by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education and is to be used in connection with the Department's exhibit at the Toronto Exhibition.

The painting represents the battleships in action during the Battle of Trafalgar, and it also gives the famous message sent out by Lord Nelson from the Victory: "England expects every man to do his duty." Under each word is painted the flag which was used to convey the message by signal.

HUERTA PLAYING A CLEVER GAME

Another Instalment of His Note, 7,000 Words in All Arrives

Washington, Aug. 20.—High officials here to-day expressed the belief that President Huertq is deliberatly stalling in negotiations with special Envoy John Lind.

Another installment of Huerta's note, said to be seven thousand word in lenght' was received to-day.

In his note Huerta asks for time lor careful consideration of the proposal.

Huerta's note couched in Latin-american flowery terms, gave rise to the opinion in administration circles here to-day that the de facto President is attempting to postpone a final disposition to consider the meditation plan,without unduly temporizing, and continues cordial conferences with Governor Lind, President Wilson says it is politic to afford every reasonable opportunity to the Mexican executiveto join in a graceful, diplamatic, and peaceful solution of thestrained situation

INQUEST OPENS ON LATE ARTHUR JONES

Yesterday afternoon, at 2:30 Coroner Dr. Greer held an inquest, in Belleghem's undertaking establishment, on the late Arthur Jones, who died at Nicholl's hospital at 7:30 yesterday morning. The cause of death is supposed to be due to burns sustained from a live wire at the C. G. E. Co.

The following jury was empannelled with Mr. Metheral as foreman.

Duncan Drummond
John White
Edward Elcombe
Joseph Metheral
George Evans
Harry Hodge
William Gray
Joseph Maher
Edward Morphet
William Barnard
S. A. Oke.

After the jury was sworn in, they viewed the body. It was that of a well nourished man. The chest, shoulder and legs showed most evident signs of deep burns. The face of the deceased was so badly burned it was entirely swathed in bandages. County Crown Attorney Wood thought, to save the city expense, a post mortem was not necessary. The Coroner, after consulting the attending physician, Dr. Sutton, will decide this later.

The jury was dismissed to meet again at 8 p.m., in the council chamber, on Sept. 3rd.

W. H. LYTLE GETS CONTRACT FOR TWO CONCRETE BRIDGES

The Price for Both Structures is $6,750,00--Tenders for Street Paving Opened--Referred to City Engineer to Figure Up--Will Decide on Tenders To-day

The City's Board of Works met in business session last night, Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Johnston, Duffus, Anderson and City Engineer Parsons.

Drs. Morrison and Middleton were a deputation from the School Board and presented the sidewalk requirements to serve the new King George school in East City. They asked for a concrete walk from Hunter street, north side, to a point, 50 feet east of the school, and one on the east side of Concession street to a point half way down to Douro street. This work was recommended by Engineer Parsons as what is needed and on motion of Ald. Gillespie and McIntyre, the walks will be constructed as planned.

Citizen Clancy, of East City, complained that the water from the drinking trough on Hunter street, overflows into his lot and thus becomes a nuisance and depreciates the value of his property.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, the City Engineer will take action to abate this nuisance.

The following tenders for concrete bridges on Park and McDonnel streets were opened:

J. E. Hayes, for both bridges, at the sum of $8,650.

From J. J. McNabb, for bridge at McDonnel street, at $5,300; for Park street bridge, at $6,500.00.

The City Engineer's estimatld cost of these bridges was $6,232.00.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, the tender of Mt. Lytle for both bridges at $6,750.00 was accepted.

Tenders For Street Paving.

From the Warne Paving Co., of Toronto—For bitulithic pavement, $2.46 per square yard. Asphaltic concrete, $2.14 per square yard. Stone block $4.28 square yard. Brick, $3.25 per square yard. Straight concrete curb, 28c per lineal foot. Curved concrete curb, with Wainwright steel bars, 82c per lineal foot. Curved concrete curb, without bar, 32c per lineal foot. Concrete gutter, 27c per square foot. Concrete sidewalk, 15½c square foot. Headers, 38c per lineal foot.

From Clark & Mond, Toronto—For concrete pavement $1.28 per square yard. For concrete straight and curved curb, 30c per lineal foot. Concrete gutter, 15c per square foot.

These tenders were referred to City Engineer Parsons to figure out and report to the board to-day.

Lesson & Foley are the contractors who are laying the pavement in Lindsay.

It is Council's intention to award the contract for George and Hunter and Charlotte streets in Centre City within the area before specified, to start operations on one given street at the earliest possible date this year, and to finish the whole work next spring. It is advanced, however, that it is possible to complete all the paving decided on this fall.

SASKATCHEWAN EXPECTS A RECORD CROP DURING SEASON

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 20.—Hon. A G. Lawrence, Minister of Agriculture has just returned from a trip through the south country, and reports the crop throughout the country in splendid condition, with harvesting in full sway at almost every point. The crop promists a grade higher than last year. Recent storms that swept over the country were reported to have done great damage, but the damage appears to have been more imaginary than real. There is a good demand for harvest help, but a steady stream of workers is pouring into the Province from the East and from the British Isles.

Not Much Damage.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 20.—Not frost but wind and rain did whatever damage was done to the crops during the past week—and that was not a great deal.

Thursday saw a tremendous rainfall throughout Saskatchewan. In Regina two and one-half inches fell in the early morning, and another half inch at night. The morning rain did not last more than an hour, and the evening rain took even less time, so it can be imagined that the fall was heavy while it lasted. It was heavy enough to "lodge" the grain somewhat in this immediate district, but warm weather brought it up quickly again.

The ladging was almost entirely local, at that. Down south of the city there was some wheat beaten down, more by wind than by rain, but no great damage was done. In fact the grain which was beaten down by rain or wind did not lose one per cent. of its value, while not more than one per cent of Saskatchewan's grain suffered at all.

STOPPED SHORT

Taking Tonics and Built Up on Right Road

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics — drugs.

New material from which to build wasted nerve cells, is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh nor blood.

"Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day with cream and drank milk also. went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts before retiring.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping sounding. In a short time gained 20 lbs. in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic catarrh, has changed from a thin, pale nervous child to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape-Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Chief Thompson has received minute descriptions of the two men suspected of murdering William Grieve Martin, the Toronto milliner, in New York City.

BASEBALL

Quite alarge gathering of the fans were present yesterday at Riverside Park, when the Petes played London and defeated them for the second time. The game opened up full of life and every fan seemed to take an interest in the playing up till the fourth inning, when the score stood 9—1 in favor of the Petes. It was here that Penfold popped up a nice little fly which fell between right field and first base. Bierbaur, the London first sacker and Stewart, of right field started after the fly, both looking heavenward, when they collided and each in turn fell away—layed out. Umpire Daly called the game until the dead and wounded had been cleared off the battleground. Bierbuar was led off the field, all in, while after a few applications of the juice from the Otonabee, Stewart came round and was able to continue in the game.

From here on the game dwindled into a listless grind, the fans seemingly having lost all interest, except to tell Umpy Daly about his eyesight, which at times was very poor.

The London pitcher, Beebe, was retired in the third innings when he was replaced by Boldt, who did not show much better form. Penfold also had a day off and was retired at the end of the sixth, when he was replaced by Belting, who held the visitors down pretty well.

A feature of the game yesterday was the hitting of the Petes, and especially Hilliard, who in the opening of the game drove a liner right down the first base line and into the river, bring in two runs and making a home run besides. Peggy Swarts in the left garden did some good fielding and got many liners.

During the progress of the game, Fox disputed Ump. Daly's decision as to a strike and was ordered to the bench, and Mr. Fox thanked him. Daly then ordered the Fox off the grounds—Ump. Daly don't like to hear the truth, and of course used his authority.

The score at the finish of the game stood 10—8 in favor of the Petes.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE, FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 324 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

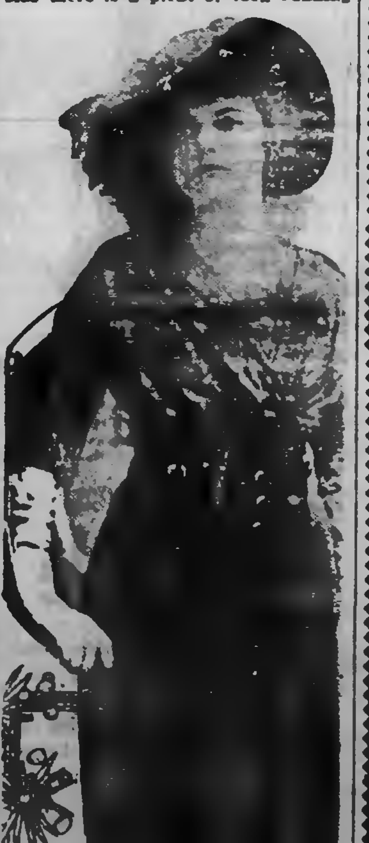
SKIRT OF HEAVY WORSTED WAIST OF DARK RED CHIFFON

This is the kind of a dress that the girl who used to wear shirt waists is now wearing, and very natty it is.

The skirt is of heavy, mannish worsted—a kind of gray mixture. It is cut peculiarly in a way that draws around the figure at the feet. At one side there is a pleat or tuck running down the entire length of the skirt from hip to foot. From the front around to the other side there is a gored panel put on with large buttons. The waist is of dark red chiffon cloth over heavy white lace. Across the back there is a dark blue velvet dolar fastened at the shoulders with tiny buttons to match those on the skirt, and there is a little piping of the same velvet each side of the lace under sleeves that show beneath the chiffon. One original thing about this costume is that the fronts of the kimono waist are cut long enough to tie in a little bow at the top of the high waisted skirt in front, at one side at which is placed one of those little bunches of English field flowers that are omnipresent just now.



The hat worn with this costume is of dark blue velvet with long gray French feathers.

WHERE THE CASTLE WENT

Lord Dufferin tells a good tale concerning his estate in the county Down. At Clandeboye stood the ruin of an old stronghold of the O'Neils.

On a certain bright summer morning the first Marquis visited the spot with his steward, one Dan Mulligan, who was quite a character.

Drawing a line roughly with his walking stick round the crumbling relics of the castle, Lord Dufferin directed his factotum he was to build a protecting wall to the frontage marked.

Then he went to India, feeling assured of the preservation of what remained of the historic structure.

When he returned home his lordship hastened to visit Clandeboye.

There was in sight, seemingly, not a trace of the O'Neil relic. The Marquis sent for his steward.

"Where's the castle, Dan?" demanded he.

"The castle, my lord! That old thing? Sure, I had it pulled down to build the wall wid."

AMERICA'S CUP PRIZED TROPHY

Interesting History of the Great Sporting Trophy First Offered in England in 1851

The most prized of sporting trophies is the "America's Cup" which cost $500 and was offered by the Royal Yacht Squadron in 1851 for a race around the Isle of Wight. Foreign boats were invited to compete, and the America, owned by Commodore J. C. Stevens and several other members of the New York Yacht Club, was entered. There was no time allowance for tonnage, and the America won a very creditable race, since she was by no means the largest of the competitors. The trophy thereupon became the property of Commodore Stevens. In 1857 Commodore Stevens and the other partners deeded the cup to the New York Yacht Club, to be held as a perpetual challenge trophy for international races between vessels of not less than 30 nor more than 300 tons, measured by the Customs House rule of the country to which the vessels belonged. The original deed said that the "parties desiring to sail for the cup may make any match with the yacht club in possession that may be determined upon by mutual consent, but in case of disagreement as to terms the match to be sailed over the usual course of the annual regatta of the yacht club in possession of the cup and subject to its rules and sailing regulations."

One Against a Fleet

The deed thus gives the New York Yacht Club a very strong position, and permits it to dictate the terms of any match. The club's idea of sportsmanship was illustrated when the first challenge came from Mr. James Ashbury in 1869. Mr. Ashbury wished to race his yacht Cambria against any yacht the New York club might designate as defender, but the club declined to name a boat and insisted that the Cambria should sail against the whole yacht club fleet. This Mr. Ashbury consented to do, and an American yacht named Magic was the winner. In 1871 he returned to the attack, and on this occasion it was agreed that there should be a single defender. The Columbia defended the cup until she lost through an accident, after which the club substituted the Sappho. The cup remained in the United States, but the race ended in a protest.

A Canadian Challenger

The Countess of Dufferin challenged and lost in 1876, and in 1881 the Canadian sloop Atlanta challenged and was defeated by the Mischief. After this race the New York Yacht Club decided that the deed of gift was not adequate, and returned the cup to the surviving donor, George L. Schuyler, who amended the deed of gift by providing that challenging yachts should proceed to the port of contest on their own bottoms, and also that no vessel could race again until two years had elapsed. In 1882 the club revised its system of measurement, which determined the time allowance to be given or received. In 1891 the rule was again changed, and the present rule was put in force in 1903. In the meantime the Galatea and the Genesta had been defeated by American defenders. In 1887 the Thistle challenged, but was found to be longer than her official measurements. The dispute was referred to Mr. Schuyler, who decided that the difference should not invalidate the challenge, and the race was sailed, the challenger being defeated.

The Dunraven Charges

In 1889 Lord Dunraven challenged, but the Royal Yacht Squadron declined to approve his challenge on the ground that the new deed of gift was illegal and not in the interest of good sport. In 1893, and again in 1894, Dunraven challenged, but was twice defeated. After the second contest charges of sharp practice against the defender was made by Lord Dunraven, and a most unpleasant sensation was created. In 1898 Sir Thomas Lipton sent his first challenge, and a committee was sent across the Atlantic to arrange the contest. Shamrock I., Shamrock II., and Shamrock III. were all defeated in turn, and then Sir Thomas came to the conclusion that he could not win under the rules. So in 1907 he asked if the New York Yacht Club would consent to reduce the size of the defending yacht to the size of a challenger that he wished to build. This request was rejected, and the refusal has been repeated.

WONDERFUL PUMPS

Seven Million Gallons an Hour Lifted by Gas Explosions

The most wonderful feature of the waterworks in the East End, London, are the marvellous pumps, which, by means of a series of gas explosions, blow seven million gallons of water every hour from the River Lea into huge tubes, through which it rushes to the reservoir. The invention was conceived by the engineer, Mr H. A. Humphrey. The following details of the works, which were five years under construction, show the imposing dimensions of the undertaking:—

Area of reservoir: 460 acres.
Capacity: 3,000,000,000 gallons.
Circumference: About four and a half miles.
Maximum depth: 40 feet.
Cost: Over $25,000,000.
Pumping capacity: 7,500,000 gallons an hour.
Persons who will be supplied with water: 1,600,000.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

The Balkan war has harvested a large crop of cripples, a fact that is made clear by the Bulgarian government placing an order for three thousand artificial legs.

We hear little these days about the ancient but dishonorable profession of horse stealing, probably because the ex-horse thief is now engaged in stealing automobiles.

If, as the John-Hopkins professor asserts, appendicitis is due to grouchiness, there is likely to be an epidemic of the disease among the army of Liberals who went to Ottawa and failed to get to the pie counter.

One cannot blame the United States for its reluctance to handle the Mexican situation as it deserves. At best the mothering of foreign countries is a thankless and dangerous task. In this instance it is not to be forgotten that the task is a self-appointed one.

FOR THE PEOPLE

The Government has been busy in letting contracts for the contracts for the construction of public works throughout the country. Many of the contracts have been large and many of them have been small. But every part of the country is being catered to and the promises of the Government have been kept. This shows the difference in the policy of the present government as compared with that of the late administration. Under the latter, too often only certain parts of the Dominion favourable to the Liberals were attended to. This has all now been changed and a Government for the people and by the people has been substituted. Let this policy continue.

LET THE WOMEN DECIDE

Premier Asquith gave fair answer to the deputation of Women's Suffrage societies which waited upon him the other day, when he told them that "if the women are able to convince the people that such a change is desirable and beneficial, no combination in the world can prevent them from gaining their object." But it was, after all, only a partial answer. In reality the women suffrage question is three questions:—

Do the people themselves want the vote?

Do the people want them to have the vote?

Would Parliament give them the franchise if they show they do want it?

Mr. Asquith has given the only possible answer to the last query. Parliament would be compelled to act if the two leading questions were answered in the affirmative. But the women lack the machinery to record answer to the first question, and the second has never been submitted to the people. What real progress the woman suffrage movement has made, no one knows. Public opinion is divided, the government professes not to be convinced. As for the women themselves, we have the claims of the suffragists on the one hand and the counter-claims of the antis. The former, through the militant section of their party, manage to keep more in the spot light, but the antis, though working more quietly, claim to have the majority of thinking women behind them. Who is to decide between the two factions? Obviously, unless the Government is prepared to assume the responsibility of a women's suffrage measure—and in the present troubled state of the political watrrs, that seems to be most unlikely—the women themselves should be allowed by referendum vote to decide the first question, the answering of the remaining three questions would be a simple matter.

A Bad Heart, Its Cause and Cure

Many, Firmly Convinced They Are Dying of Heart Trouble, Have Often the Strongest Hearts.

Sometimes you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and cause horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

Just read what happened to Isaac Malloux, of Belle River, Ont.:

"Three months ago I was a weak, sickly man. My appetite was poor, food fermented in my stomach, I had sour risings and indigestion. At night I would often waken with gas in the stomach and heart palpitation.

"I consulted my doctor and used remedies that my friends advised

CHEVALIER'S START

The Beginning is Not Always a Good Index

Mr. Albert Chevalier, the famous interpreter of "coster" life, had a somewhat disturbing experience in the early days of his career. He was giving a performance at a West End theatre in London but the audience failed to appreciate or respond to his humor. Just as he was nearing the end of his performance there was a terrific round of applause, and he thanked his stars that success was his at last. He was about to take an encore, when the manager siezed him by the arm and pulled him into the wings.

"Done well, haven't I?" asked Mr. Chevalier. "Hear the applause."

"You silly ass, they're not clapping you," replied the manager. "It's the Prince of Wales who's just come in."

On another occasion when a stage door keeper at one of the theatres approached Mr. Chevalier's brother with a request for a couple of seats.

"With pleasure," was the reply.

"But I don't want 'em for myself," the man explained. "I've seed 'im. It's the missus that wants 'em. Like all the women, she just wants to say she's seed 'im."

"That will be all right," replied Mr. Chevalier's brother. "You send her along, and I'll see that she has good seats."

"Thank you, sir," replied the man. He drew a step nearer and whispered confidentially, "Don't worry about the places. Put 'er anywhere, but put 'er near the door, so that she can get out easy in case she don't like 'im."

Mr. Chevalier's most famous song is undoubtedly "My Old Dutch." The inspiration came to him one day when lost in a London fog, and he wrote out the verses under a lamp-post. Strange to relate, when he first tried the song at Manchester he was hissed off.

KILLED IN THE ALPS

A fatal Alpine accident has prevented a marriage, the fiancee witnessing the death of her lover. Herr Coedever, of Berne, was taking a walk with his fiancee in the lower aura Alps, where guides are not required. While crossing a wooden bridge a portion of it collapsed, the wood being rotted by the winter snows, and Herr Coedever fell 100 feet into the mountain stream below, his head being seriously injured in the rocks. The girl attempted to descent to his aid, but failed, and went to the nearest house for assistance. The rescue party found Coedever still living, but he died soon after being taken out of the water. The bride is distracted.

COBB A WONDER

No Man in Baseball is His Equal, According to Veteran Pitcher

"Ty Cobb is the greatest of them all. In my baseball experience, covering almost a quarter of a century, I have never seen an all-around player the equal of the Detroit star." These are the words of Cy Young, once probably the best pitcher in the game, now a farmer—and rich.

"There may be other players almost if not quite so fast as Cobb: Lajoie has an edge on the "Georgia Peach" for straight-away hitting; other outfielders may throw a trifle better, but for work, day in and day out, Cobb hasn't an equal. At bat he hasn't a weakness. It has been my experience that you can fool him, possibly, one day, on a certain kind of ball and the next time you face him he will knock the cover off the ball. On the bases he is wonderful. He uses both his head and his feet and I sometimes wonder if the former isn't more responsible for his success than the latter. Cobb can size up a baseball situation like a flash and the way he divines plays is uncanny. On the paths he doesn't know the meaning of the word fear and this lack of timidity helps him. In the field, too, he is a wonder. He uses splendid judgement in playing for batters and his marvelous speed enables him to retire batters on balls that others would play safe.

CY YOUNG

Able to hit, to field, to throw, to run bases and to do each in phenomenal fashion, coupled with his nerve and confidence. Cobb is the greatest player that ever wore a spiked shoe.

A Horse Worth Having

There are horses which race
At a terrible pace,
And others that people have had—
Which are splendid, of course;
But show me a horse
As safe and as frisky as dad.

When you wish for a ride—
Well, you jump to his side,
And whisper a word in his ear;
Then you're up ere you know,
And away you can go
Like a streak, for there's nothing to fear.

You can whip him and shout
While he canters about,
But he's never been known to refuse;
And it's little you reck,
For the rein is his neck,
And his hands are the stirrups you use.

So to bed you can ride;
Then he sits by your side,
And you cling to a stirrup, and lo!
The story he'll tell
Weaves a wonderful spell,
And—well, that's the last that you know.

Modern Windmill

A new wind mill has horizontally arranged vanes, so sheltered by a hood that those which move against the wind do not feel its force, thereby permitting increased size and power.

BASEBALL VS. GOLF BALL

Best of Batters Cannot Hit as Far as Good Golfer

The dispute between golfers and baseball players as to whether a golf ball could be driven from the home plate at the Polo Grounds, New York, over the centrefield bleachers, was decided in the affirmative. Accompanied by Manager McGraw of the Giants, who had affirmed the feat could not be accomplished Grantland Rice, golfer and baseball writer, and Oswald Kirby, widely known amateur golfer, went out on the field with golf equipment and both succeeded in making the drive. Rice put over one ball in four, and Kirby two in four. The golfers drove against the wind, but the balls carried over the top of the fence, which is about 60 feet high at this point, by about 15 feet.

"A brassy was used for the drives, and it is estimated that the carry was about 200 yards. The distance from the home plate to the fence is about 165 yards. No ball player has ever been able to drive a pitched ball even into the lower part of the centre field stand, many yards nearer the home plate.

KNACK OF SWIMMING

Necessary to Relax the Muscles and Avoid Sense of Fear

Lew Sarett explains the difficulty which the non-swimmer has in remaining afloat in an interesting article, "the Knack of Learning to Swim," as follows: "The non-swimmer, fearing the water, very naturally tenses his muscles as he struggles to keep his head above the water, until he is as hard as a rock, and, like a rock, he sinks; whereas the swimmer, having no fear, relaxes his muscles, and hence becomes buoyant. The explanation is a simple physical one. Tense, taut muscles increase the specific gravity of the body and make it sink in water; loose, relaxed muscles (given an ordinary supply of air in the lungs) will make the body float."

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 19.—Interest in the International Tennis championships which commence on Aug. 25 is becoming very keen and already a number of the players are on the ground. The tournament this year bids fair to eclipse all former records and devotees of the game will be glad to learn that R. N. William Johnston, the youthful Californian wonder, who though only 18 years of age has won many tournaments and only a fortnight ago almost defeated the veteran Raymond D. Little, in a close three set match, will also play in the forthcoming championships. In addition to these stars many other players of rank have sent in their entries. BOWLING

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The matter of advertising and the temperance sentiment of the members of the Balmy Beach Lawn Bowling Club were the main points which caused the club, at a specially called meeting on the lawns last night, to turn down the offer of a silver trophy from the Toronto Brewers' Association. There was a big attendance of the members—36 in all—and the discussion was very keen.

Messrs. W. L. Edmonds and S. G. Wharin were unalterably opposed to the acceptance of the gift. Others were just as frank in their desire to have something real for the coming Labor Day tournament, and believed that Kew Beachers would sit in with the Balmy Club in accepting the trophy.

Intoxicated Fish.

The fish in the River Dill at Dorlar have recently been behaving in a very curious fashion. Some of them were swimming backwards, others sideways, and others up and down—all in such different ways as to suggest they were drunk. Investigations showed that they were, as a matter of fact, badly intoxicated. The explanation is that the alcohol from an adjoining yeast factory had been thrown into the river, and in such great quantities as to have a demoralizing effect on the river's inhabitants.

VOTERS' LIST, 1913

County of Peterborough

Notice is hereby given that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in Sections 8 and 9 of the Ontario Voters' List Act, the copies required by the said Sections to be so transmitted or delivered of the list, made pursuant of said Act, of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said Municipality to be entitled to vote in the said Municipality at Elections for Members of the Legislative Assembly and at Municipal Elections; and that the said list was first posted up at my office, at Lasswade, on the 9th day of August, 1913 and remains there for inspection.

Electors are called upon to examine the said list, and, if any omissions or any other errors are found therein, to take immediate proceedings to have the said errors corrected according to law.

ABOUT JOCKEYS

In the older days of horse racing it was the horse that raced. Little was heard of the jockey, says an English sporting writer. His services were considered rewarded with quite a modest sum, at which the modern fashionable jockey would not deign to look. His name was not published, even in the "Racing Calendar." Moreover, he was usually an old hand. To-day this is different. The modern jockey is generally a mere boy.

A little reflection will demonstrate how unhealthy is this tendency. A horse may be bred and trained to any pitch of specialization, and no harm may be done. But over-specialize the jockey, force his growth, stunt him in this direction that he may be more effective in that, and, above all, dangle huge rewards in front of him for such specialized capacity, and a train of possibilities of evil is laid.

The queston has a wider bearing than its relation even to the jockey. The "crack" jockeys are few in number. They are highly specialized men or lads, both in muscle and wit. They are those who have come out on top in a strange evolution. And it is a commonplace that there can be no such specialized products without a great sacrifice of rejected material.

Of the many hundreds of boys who exercise the horses daily at Newmarket and other training grounds, not five per cent. grow to be professional jockeys.

Then what becomes of the jockey? Some of the present-day jockeys have kept their feet in the stirrups for many years, but a detailed comparison of the jockey list suggests certain reflections. What would be said of any other calling which lost two-thirds of its licensed followers within the short space of half a decade

DRESSING THE BABY

Utility and Cleanliness More Important Than Beauty and Frills

Although of late years the mother's vanity in the matter of baby clothes has given place to the comfort of the child in a great measure, yet we still find mothers who do not dress their children properly. Either through ignorance or pride they still put too few or too many clothes upon them.

Remember a baby's flesh is as easily hurt as a rose leaf and, while embroidery and laces may look beautiful to you, they do not feel at all good to baby when they chafe his little neck and arms with their starchy freshness.

Use the softest fabrics you can afford when you make your baby clothes. Make the skirt to slip over his shoulders, leaving him free from any tight bands. Don't have his diaper too big, as that will make him bow-legged.

Never allow your baby to wear any garment at night it has worn during the day. When it sleeps, if possible, let it be outdoors or at least in a room with the windows open.

Don't put clothing on your baby that is not perfectly clean. Although we have been told that cleanliness is next to godliness, it sometimes seems that some mothers think it is next to impossible.

Put all your efforts on the cleanliness and hygienic care of your baby and never mind the frills on its clothes.

Some time when you have an opportunity go to a children's hospital and see how trained nurses and physicians clothe the children left in their care. Only comfort and cleanliness are given any thought in the dressing of these little atoms of humanity whose welfare is of such importance.

The Dangerous Ages

There are certain ages wherein death is very imminent, and of all these ages the most perilous is the age of an hour or two. It is just after birth that we are in most danger of death; and the next most perilous age to this is 71 years.

The age of three is the next most dangerous age. Almost one-fourth of all the babies born die during the third year.

From three on to the age of 45 is comparatively safe; but 45, especially for women is a trying time, and many are carried off.

After passing 45 in safety men and women may reasonably hope to reach 71. Here again they are in great danger—the greatest save for the first few hours after birth.

Longevity is an hereditary quality. It passes from father to son and from mother to daughter. He who had an octogenarian father may hope to become an octogenarian himself, and she who had an octogenarian mother may hope to become an octogenarian herself. But a father's longevity does not pass down to a daughter, nor does a mother's pass down to a son

How to Make Small Roses

For trimming children's hats the tiny flowers made of silk are extremely pretty, and the home milliner may therefore be glad of the following hints.

Small roses are made of two or three shades of silk or satin, or in all one shade, as preferred.

To make each flower: Cut a crossway strip of silk 1½ inches wide and sixteen inches long, which cut again into four-inch lengths. Take one length, fold cut edges together, twist round to form a tube, cut a six-inch length of green mounting wire, and bind one end round base of silk tube. Fold the cut edge of each remaining length of silk to meet, and gather. Draw up the thread to 1½ inches to form a leaf-shaped piece; fold round the centre tube, and bind round at base with mounting wire. Fold the two remaining leaves round the centre and bind firmly together at the base with the mounting wire, then neaten base with a twist of green silk or a calyx. This completes one rose. The bunch can be made as large or small as desired, and either mounted together, with a surround of foliage, or used singly.

Women Smokers

It is estimated that the number of women smokers in New York City alone is nearly 100,000, and that they consume 25,000,000 cigarettes a year. The heaviest trade is done in the Fifth Avenue and other fashionable districts. The women of San Francisco have gone still farther, some of the smartest of the smart set there, it is said, being devotees of the pipe.

MACHINE DISPLACES THE SCRUB WOMAN

A New Invention Spreads Clean Soapy Water, Scrubs up Dirt and Dries Floor in Few Moments

An automatic scrubbing machine has been invented which is claimed to do as good work or even better than a skilled scrubwoman can do on her knees with hot water, soap, brushes and cloths. Little motors run by electricity are placed on wheels and that tanks of hot water and revolving brushes and felt drying cloths are so adjusted that this machine may be run over a floor and the surface thoroughly scrubbed and dried.

This machine is the invention of a New York janitor. It spreads the soapy, clean water, brushes scrub up the dirt, cloths dry the cleaned place and the dirty water is absorbed into another reservoir. The machine may be connected with an electric light fixture after the manner of vacuum cleaners. The motor drives the cleansing brushes at a speed of about 400 revolutions to the minute, and there is an arrangement whereby the pressure of the brushes on the floor may be regulated, bearing down hard over the dirty spots and lighter on the clean places. The scrubber is pushed across the floor as one would push a carpet sweeper or lawn mower, and it does not have to be turned around—the handle is merely swung over. This reverses the pressure on the bristles of the scrubbing brushes and keeps them straight. The inventor claims this is more sanitary than the hand-scrubbing method because it lifts up the dirt and carries it away instead of grinding and rubbing it into the floor. At the same time it looks as though the scrubwoman would still find work to do cleaning out the corners of rooms, the stairways and other such nooks and corners as the machine is too large to work into the corners, where half the dangers from germs are to be found, or to scrub stairs, for obvious reasons.

Use a Knife Blade

The newest way to remove small particles of metals that become lodged in the eye is with a magnet, and as these small particles are flying about in the air most of the time it is a good thing to know that a knife blade makes a splendid magnet for this purpose when properly treated. Unscrew the cap and remove the diaphragm of a telephone receiver and gently stroke the knife on one of the magnet's exposed Be sure you use the same magnet Within a very short time the blade will become sufficiently magnetized to be used on the eye.

Paper Flower Pots

A good way to start plants is to plant the seed in a cylinder of paper filled with earth and set in a tray that is also filled with earth. There is no bottom in the cylinder and the plant can be left in it throughout its life. When sufficient growth has been attained to warrant transplanting the plant, cylinder and all are set into the ground. The roots will break through the paper if it is necessary for them to do so. This makes transplanting a much cleaner and quicker job than the old method of taking the plants from pots.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm labourers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

THIS BALL PLAYER NEVER USED GLOVES

Jerry Denny Says Baseball is no Faster Now Than in the '90's

It was in the latter part of 1894 that Jerry Denny severed his connection with big league baseball. His passing marked the finish of one of the greatest third basemen in the world. Although Jerry Denny played in minor leagues as late as 1904, he never used a glove, and to the last was a marvel on hard hit ground balls. His work in two games in 1882 and 1886 proves his class; with Providence he had five putouts and 11 assists in 17 chances, and with New York he had 11 assists and 2 put-outs out of 14 chances, one afternoon.

Denny began his career in 1876, when 17. His first professional engagement was with Providence in 1881; in 1883 he led the third basemen with an average of .875. In 1886, with St. Louis, he and Esterbrook led with an average of .895. He headed the league again in 1889, with a .913 average. Denny made his great reputation while playing against such men as Jim McGarr, Billy Nash and Ed. Williamson, the best men that ever played the position.

"The team work is better to-day than it was in the '80's and '90's, but baseball is no faster," says Denny, and many a veteran fan will probably admit that if Jerry was in his prime now and on third base, he would hold his own with the fastest infielders of this day.

How To Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look for Symptoms of This Treacherous Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrh germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit last two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c, sample size, 25c, at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

He Left the Cage

Mr. Milliken, who lives on Chambers street, owns a canary. At least he owned a canary on Monday evening. The canary in a cage, after putting its head under its wing and whistling "Now I lay me down to sleep," etc, fell asleep. Some miscreant who was very much awake, raised the cage door and stole the bird. If the thief will only call at at Mr. Milliken's he can buy a cage at cost price.

Not Like Peterborough

Jack Canuck: "There seems to be a lot of boys running away from Toronto these days. Why? Is it because the little chaps think they may get into the Children's Court and the sob sisters will make stories about em?" This shows that the Inquisition methods of excluding the Peterborough press from childrens' courts is not tolerated in Toronto.

And the Dog Followed

On Monday afternoon a local married couple, who are camping a few miles down the river, went trowling. From the canoe they saw a two acre field of corn, the latter nodding to the breeze. The couple, whilst not then talking over Biblical matters, remembered the story of the spies who found grapes and honey. They started for the corn patch, keeping on the "shady" side of the fence. Just as they had gathered 11 cobs, a big ugly dog, that to them looked like a cross between a collie and an elephant with hydrophobia, appeared. The lady gathered up her skirts and made the canoe five seconds before her husband. The dog took to the water and followed them, swimming for over half a mile. The lady's husband remarked "Hell knows knows no furry like a woman's (s)corn."

HOME TREATMENT FOR REMOVING HAIRS

(Beauty Culture)

Elaborate and expensive treatments for removing objectionable hair or fuzz are nor nearly as satisfactory as the simple and painless method of which any woman can employ in her own home. This consists of a paste made with a little powdered delatone and water, which is spread on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off, after which the skin is washed and it will be free from hair or blemish. This is quite harmless and the cost is nominal.

Any woman can beautify her eyelashes by applying pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Thin eyebrows grow thick and glossy if pyroxin be rubbed on occasionally. Be cautious and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

Health and Beauty Answers

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

T. M.: Though your flesh worries you, do not take chances with violent exercise and exaggerated dieting. You had better use this simple but effective flesh reducer, which you can make at home, and about which hundreds have written to praise its rapid and effective action. Buy four ounces of parnotis from any druggist, dissolve in 1½ pints boiling water. Allow to cool, strain and take a tablespoonful before each meal. Continue the course until you reach normal weight.

Annie L.: Powdered delatone is the most effective thing of which I know for removing stubborn hairy growths. Get an original package and mix enough powder with water to cover the hairs not wanted. Apply and in 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a quick, harmless method and seldom needs repeating. Be sure it is delatone you get.

Laura B.: You will be surprised how long and curly your eyebrows will grow after a few applications of pyroxin at lash-roots, and if eyebrows are short and "straggly," rub a little pyroxin on frequently with forefinger. This simple treatment is a great beautifier, but use care and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

J. A. H.: No, I would hardly criticize you for your lack of ambition. It is due to impure blood and its sluggish action, the natural result of the summer's heat. Your appetite and energy can be regained by taking, before each meal, a tablespoonful of a mixture composed of one ounce of kardene, dissolved in a half pint of alcohol to which is added half a cup of sugar and hot waterto make a full quart. It will cleanse the blood and assist new tissue, to develop and will affect your complexion by lending the glow of health to your cheeks. This will make you feel like a new person and look as you feel.

Delia: I use a lotion instead of face powder. This home made spurmax lotion will tone and clear the skin, overcome coarseness and wrinkles and act as a protection against sun and wind. It is cheap and in every way equal to the expensive liquid face powders. Get 4 ounces of spurmax from your druggist and dissolve in a half pint of hot water. To this add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine and your lotion is complete. Apply freely after washing and thoroughly drying the face, neck and arms. The result will please you, for the lotion dries quickly, seems a part of the skin, and gives a velvety texture to the face.

Miss K.: Your hair tonic is worthless. Experience prompts me to recommend quinzoin hair tonic to you, because it has done wonders for myself and a host of friends. Just pour 1 ounce quinzoin into ½ pint alcohol, then add ½ pint water and your tonic is ready. This quinzoin is a natural hair tonic and stimulant which stops the itching and burning almost instantly, and makes the head so healthy it overcomes dandruff and corrects excess oiliness. When this is done an abundance of fluffy, brilliant, even-colored hair is certain to follow.

C.W.: No, egg is not the best thing with which to remove dandruff. I never use animal matter on my hair, as it forms a sort of film on both scalp and hair. Your dandruff can be entirely removed and the hair made brilliant, soft and fluffy by the use of this inexpensive home prepared shampoo, which is superior to any I have ever been able to buy. Dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get at any drug store, in a cup of hot water. This, rubbed into the scalp, creates a rich, smooth lather, which thoroughly cleanses both hair and scalp. An occasional shampoo with this mixture, followed by a thorough rinsing, will rid you of both itching and dandruff, beautify your hair, and make your head feel especially good.

S.L.L.: Yes, her face must look ten years younger, without the wrinkles and yours will show the same improvement if you use my recipe for this vegetable jelly, which you can prepare very cheaply at home. It cured my wrinkles very quickly and I still use it as a preventive. Get an ounce of almozoin at your druggists, dissolve it in half pint cold water and add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. It should be used often and worked well into the pores. It protects the skin against tan and freckles, while acting as a food in rounding out hollows.

Constance: You are very foolish to take chances by using belladonna in your eyes. Its effect is only and temporary. You can both beautify and strengthen them with this simple tonic, which costs almost nothing and can be made up at home. Put 1 ounce crystos in 1 pint cold, clear water and drop 2 or 3 drops in each eye a few times daily. This simple tonic is very soothing and strengthening to smarting, weak eyes and its use frequently overcomes the need for glasses. It should be kept handy, as it is fine for granulated lids and to remove foreign particles.

CANADA WAITS POWERLESS BEFORE THE HABEAS CORPUS OF THAW LAWYERS

Immigration Department, Armed With Second Warrant for Matteawan Fugitive's Arrest, Cannot Execute it Until the Counsel Makes A Move

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 21.—A supplementary warrant was issued today for the arrest of Harry K. Thaw under the immigration law of Canada. It is intended for use should he be freed on the charge under which he is now held.

That is charged with entering Canada at a point not a regular point of entry. The warrant is now in the hands of High Constable Moe.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The most important development in connection with the Thaw case at the capital to-day was the receipt of a telegram from Deputy Governor Glynn to the Government, asking that Thaw be surrendered to the New York State authorities. The officials of the department sent a courteous reply to Mr. Glynn, in which it was pointed out that the Immigration Department does not propose to take any action in regard to Thaw until the present court proceedings at Sherbrooke are terminated. The immigration officials at headquarters still adhere to their determination to deport Thaw if the extradition proceedings fail.

LOCAL REPORTERS ARE CALLED CRAZY

On Wednesday Chief of Police Thompson characterized a Times representative as "crazy," because he inaugurated a protest against the secret, Star Chamber methods of the local police in conducting the Juvenile Courts in secret. Our representative, anxious to enlighten the mothers of Peterborough—and warn our growing girls did object to the 10th century system of excluding the public from such cases, where mothers might be acquainted with the dangers surrounding their girls. Such a procedure is not tolerated even in the little town of Toronto, where there are 50 juvenile cases to one held here. The local system reminds one of the old days of the Inquisition. The police here seem to take upon themselves to tell mothers and daughters they must close their eyes when danger threatens.

At yesterday's police court, the Chief asked an Examiner reporter, "Are you going crazy, too?" Simply because the Examiner agreed with the Times in wanting to warn the mothers of Peterborough.

We are not attacking either the Chief of Police or the Magistrate. It is the secret sessions not tolerated in Toronto, that we object to. The police may use the "closure" and shut our mothers and daughters through the medium of the press, from warning as to what is going on but, before long the public will wake up.

When both the Reform and Conservative press of Peterborough, denounce these secret sessions, it is time for some one to get his "thinking cap" out of the moth balls of "Poobah" methods.

RAILWAY RATES ARE ADJUSTED

Contracts Based on Old Schedule are Taken Into Account by Management

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The business-like methods of Hon. Frank Cochrane, have again exhibited in the adjust- Minister of Railways and Canals, ment of the freight rate charges on the Intercolonial Railway. There had been considerable misunderstanding in regard to these rates but the Minister took the matter in hand and now a settlement has been reached

Contracts Considered

A number of concessions have been shown by the railway authorities. One particular in which the railway has shown itself accommodating has been in taking cognizance of contracts made by Maritime province shippers on the basis of the earlier rates. Whenever this has occurred the new rates are modified. There also have been corrections in cases where the old rates underwent too drastic an increase. The general principle followed is to be that of a ten per cent. increase.

Still The Lowest.

Nothwithstanding the new charges made the farmers of the Maritime provinces will not suffer much in the prices for carrying their goods.

The Intercolonial rates will yet remain lower than those of the other railways of Canada. Some of the rates remain the lowest in the world. The slight increase is rendered absolutely necessary by the great advance in the cost of runing the system. The coal used by the road now costs $400,000 per year more than it did a short time ago. The wage bill is about a million dollars higher than was the case not long ago. The price of rolling stock and appliances generally has increase by fully twenty-five per cent.

ANOTHER FIRE ADDED TO THE LIST OF TORONTO PYROMANIACS

This Time House Was Set on Fire in Two Places--Incendiary Fires Number Over 40

Toronto, Aug. 21.—The twenty-third fire during the month of August which the fire department claims to be incendiary, occurred this morning at 126 Peter street, and damaged the building of Mr. J. Lindala by $400 and the furniture of Mrs. J. Clarke, tenant, to the amount of $300.

Both owner and tenant of the building are out of the city, the only occupants being some lodgers of Mrs. Clarke. The building is a two and a half storey brick. The reason the fire department suspect incendiary origin, is that when they arrived the fire was found to be burning in two different places, one being in a clothes closet the other in a distant part of the house.

That fire-bugs are altogether too thick in the city is the opinion of the authorities, in view of the fact that they have twenty-two other fires on their books for August labeled the same way, incendiary. Prior to this, there were eight during July A peculiar sameness seems to attach to these small fires. With the exception of three or four, they were started in sheds or stables, as many as five being lighted in one day.

The department are investigating this last trouble.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Unsettled, with showers, and a little cooler.

RUSTY NAIL PROVES FATAL WOMAN IS DEAD

Mrs. Daisy Caldwell, from Meadowville, Passed Away at the Western Hospital.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—After five days of suffering from lockjaw and inability to take food of any kind, Mrs. Daisy Caldwel, died at the Western Hospital this morning at eight o'clock. Mrs. Caldwell was admitted to the hospital on Monday evening, being brought in from her home in Meadowville.

Early last week Mrs. Caldwell while walking about the farm yard, stepped upon a rusty nail. The wound in the foot was neglected, until on Saturday signs of tetanus developed. A local doctor gave treatment that day, but the trouble grew so rapidly that by the time the woman reached the hospital she was beyond the help of physicians. Mrs. Caldwell was 20 years of age.

LIBERALS MAY FIGHT

London, Ont. Aug. 21.—The Liberals may contest the last Middlesex bye-electin. A convention will be held shortly to consider the advisability of placing a candidate in the field.

OUR WATER SUPPLY FOR DOMESTIC USE

Last Monday night, Dr. George Clinton, District Medical Health Officer for the Ontario Government, was in the city and on Tuesday started on an inspection tour of the summer resorts and Islands in Stoney Lake. On Wednesday he went north from Burleigh to Buckhorn, and around to Chemong Park. From Chemong Park he visited Bobcaygeon, Pleasant Point, Sturgeon Point, Fenelon Falls, Rosedale, Coboconk and Kirkfield, and expects to return to Peterborough to-morrow morning.

This is certainly a move in the right direction. This year, particularly, when the water is low, it is a wise precaution for the Government to take, to see that all these summer resorts are not polluting the waters. Peterborough is the most largely interested in this work, as the city gets its supply of drinking water from the Otonabee River, and it behooves the Government to see that our drinking water is kept pure. We are certainly fortunate this year in Peterborough, for in certain places, at the present time, there is a great deal of typhoid fever, caused by polluting drinking water. The Ontario Government deserves the thanks of the people of Peterborough for looking after their interest in this way.

It is Dr. Clinton's intention to continue his visit up to Muskoka and other places north.

NAVAL MATTER FAR REACHING

German Papers View on Action of Liberals in Canada

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The rejection of the Goverment's Naval Aid Bill by the Senate at the biddin of Laurier, has given rise to a great deal of comment in the columns of the press of Germany. These comments show that the Borden proposal was regarded by Britain's rivals as of the utmost significance in its bearing upon the Empire's preparedness for successful naval defence. Here is what the Hamburger Nachrichten, under the caption, "The Canadian Dreadnoughts" published in its issue of June 5 in the course of an article from London:

Heavy Loss

"Whatsoever may be decided upon later, the actual decision of the Canadian Senate means at any rate a heavy moral and material loss for the defence of the Empire, for Mr. Borden's promise had been foolishly enough counted on. His offer made an enormous impression in the whole world. Mr. Churchill pointed out this fact especially in the well known memorandum of the admiralty. This impression will now not only be destroyed, but people will everywhere obtain the conviction that England cannot depend upon such help from her colonies. 'By rivals and enemies,' says the Morning Post to-day, 'the decision will be eagerly welcomed. By friends it will be regarded as ominous.

Solidarity Seems Myth

"'The impression must inevitably be created that the solidarity of th Empire is a myth, and that those powers which would like to see the overthrow of British naval supremacy need not be discouraged in their efforts by the thought that their challenge would be met by the united resources of the Mother Country and of everyone of the daughter States. Then the material loss is to be considered. Mr. Winston Churchill always included the three Canadian Dreadnoughts in his recent calculation and estimates.

AULL RELEASED FROM COBOURG JAIL TO-DAY

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 21.—Robert Aull was released at ten minutes past ten this morning. The Lexington police did not interfere. It is supposed the charge is dropped. Aull stated he would fight the annulment of his marriage. He had a conference with his counsel, Mr. T. F. Hall, immediately upon his release from jail.

SECRET METHODS ARE CONDEMNED

Prominent Citizen Advocates Times Fight for Local Women and Girls

The Times has begun what, at present, seems a hopeless fight for the enlightenment of local mothers and for what tends towards morality of the girls of Peterborough. The old Star Chamber methods of the Juvenile Courts of this city, which are not tolerated in Toronto, judging by remarks made by both the Chief of Police and Magistrate Dumble, will be continued here. The Times may be over-ruled by the police authorities of Peterborough. Still the public of Peterborough will sooner or later, wake up to the fact that the arrogant methods of the local police in excluding the press from Juvenile Courts, which as above noted, is not tolerated in Toronto, simple demonstrates that the police of this city consider that they should exercise power not ventured by the police of Toronto.

The mothers of daughters and the daughters of Peterborough are seemingly regarded by the police as imbeciles. They are not allowed to know anything about the dangers surrounding the girls. Even married women, mothers of families, must not know of the dangers threatening their girls. Married women are seemingly too innocent minded to be allowed to read modified and decent reports of our juvenile courts.

The Times was yesterday in receipt of the following letter, which is given verbatim.

Times, 8:20:13.

This I believe refers to an article published in your paper a few days ago. I believe this answer is the only one that could be given in a case like this. Hoping The Times will adopt policy, I remain, yours sincerely ———

The letter signed by a local prominent citizen, is now on file in this office. The clipping endorsed in our correspondent's letter is an article from the Examiner of Wednesday evening. It reads, in part, as follows:

"The Magistrate, too, he pointed out, had the option of saying whether or not the press could be allowed to remain.

"'In Toronto,' pointed out one of the reporters present, "the reporters are allowed in the courts and the details are published in full. The Toronto Star gives a whole column concerning the juvenile cases and without the presence of staff representatives the news could not be obtained.

"The public know very well that they are excluded from the juvenile court, but why should the press, the medium through which the public obtain their information, be excluded?

"The Magistrate remarked that it was the law in the United States to keep the public from the court, but the press fail to see what the laws of the United States have to do with the laws of Canada. It is true that women might refrain from giving delicate evidence in the presence of men but the Magistrate and the authorities should know that members of the press have sufficient intellect to know what is fit for publication and what is not"

BOY WAS KILLED

Albert Ayers, aged 14, a Barnardo boy, was walking along the tracks east of Port Credit towards Long Brach at 6.30 a.m., when he was caught by the G.T.R. engine No. 643 and grievouslyinjured. He succumbed an hour later.

ANGRY BROTHERS IN COURT BECAUSE ANIMALS ATE HAY

Haystack Was Near Line-Fence and Bull and Horses Helped Themselves, After the Manner of Their Kind

Toronto, Aug. 21.—A bull, horse, some geese and a stack of hay, and two brothers, Tom and Jim Willey, produced one of the most humorous cases seen in the County Police Court for a long time. Mr. A. E. Ward, J.P., presided, and it took him all his time to listen gravely to the evidence. The brothers and their wives, however, were serious enough.

This is the way it came about. The two brothers have farms adjoining one another in Lansing township, now the corner of Wilson and Bathurst streets. Tom had a stack of hay, about two tons, he claimed, and it was built near the line fence which separates the two farms—two feet away, said he and his wife.

Jim had a horse and a bull as well as all kinds of geese. The horse Tom alleged, ate away over half a ton of the hay out of the stack by reaching over the fence. The bull broke through the fence and spoiled three rows of mangles. The geese got through the fence and pulled up the seeds in the garden and ate the turnips.

Total damage, said Tom and his wife, was $12.50. They summonsed brothers Jim and his wife. Mr. F. Slattery represented Tom.

SPAIN TO BUILD OWN WAR SHIPS

Four Years to Build One Small Dreadnought

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Several years ago Spain decided to build battleships for herself. She started considerably before 1909, arranging with an English firm to establish a ship building plant at Ferrol. It was decided to build three small Dreadnoughts, each displacing 16,000 tons, and armed with only eight 12-inch guns instead of the ten or twelve guns of that size carried by most Dreadnought battleships. The first of these, the "Espana" was begun on December 5, 1909, and launched on February 5, 1912, after being 26 months on the stocks. She is now about completed, after being a further 18 months completing afloat. She will be ready for service about October. It thus has taken nearly four years to build her, although she is about half the size of those which the Borden Government will place in the British Navy. The second of these ships, the "Alfonso XIII.," was laid in February, 1910, and was launched in May last, having been on the stocks for three years and three months. It has been hoped to launch her in June, 1912, so that she is eleven months late. She is likely to take about five years to complete. The third, the "Jaime I.," is on the stocks, and has been there for 18 months.

These ships are being built by British firms who have taken a great number of British workmen to Spain to do the work. None the less it has proved a tedious job to build these small battleships, about half the size of those now under construction. The example throws some light on the proposal that Canada should build her battleships in Canada.

URGES ARREST OF SLIT SKIRT WEARERS

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Declaring that the eyes of the country are turned upon Illinois women to see what they are going to do with their recently acquired right to vote, Miss Marion Gibson, an Oak Park clubwoman, has issued a call to the women of her state to start a campaign against slashed, tranparent and other form-revealing skirts.

"Let us take a stand against the ridiculous fashions of to-day," pleads Miss Gibson. "Can't we do something for the weak, brazen or silly woman who lacks the decency to cover her modesty with decent clothes?

"Women who wear these clothes ought to be arrested as disorderly, since they certainly cause disorder."

Miss Gibson declared that the entire sex are losing the respect of the men.

DISPLAYS SHAPELY LEG TO COURT

Denver, Colo, Aug. 21.—Oh, every now and then something happens to make the life of a judge worth living. For instance, Judge Benjamin F. Stapleton was compelled (?) yesterday to view a silk stockinged and shapely leg displayed as evidence in a case.

The leg was the property of Mrs. Alma Dittmann who accused her husband, Michael, of having injured her knee. The only way to determine whether the injuries were serious were to examine the knee. To the intense disappointment of the courtroom, the judge retired with Mrs. Dittman and the attorneys to his private rooms.

He returned in a little while rather pink behind the ears and fined Dittman $10 and costs.

BASEBALL

Quite a large attendance was present at Riverside Park yesterday, when the Petes met and were defeated by the Berlin nine by the score of 8 to 2. With Auld in the box, Berlin were never in trouble, he pitched an excellent game, and had the Petes under his control all through. The Berliners touched Cresswell up for 15 hits, while the bases were always occupied. The boys seemed to work hard, but could not connect with Auld's offerings when hits were required.

Chapdelaine played in the left garden in place of Peggy Swartz, who is sick.

Trout did the catching and put up a good game of ball.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

TRUE DEMOCRACY

A Real Reverence for the Industrial Personality

Rev. Archdeacon Cody of Toronto has defined what true social democracy is in aim and methods of practical realization. "Three great propositions make up the principles of democracy," he said. "They are (1) the things that are common to all men are more important than the things that are peculiar to one man; (2) we say of all men that they are our own flesh and blood. This is the central principle of democracy; (3) the most vital things have to be left to the ordinary man, for example, the choice of rulers. I hold, therefore, that the test of democracy is reverence for personality." Dr. Cody then proceeded to trace the character of the relation of the individual to the social organism or State. And he found the individual, even in the ideal state of the Greek, was subordinated to the social organism. There was no reverence for the individual as a human thinking being, as a social creature "Now," said the speaker, "the modern State is based upon the Christian ideal of the brotherhood of man. Christianity widens the idea of citizenship to cosmopolitanism, and then it consecrates personality, the value of the individual in and for the State. The modern State preserves what is best from the ancient state and supplements and corrects it with ideas of personality. It is neither an atomism nor a swamping socialism. It insists that each individual must give of his best to the whole, but that he must give it freely and gladly. The Greeks exaggerated the idea of co-operation. The modern state tends to exaggerate the idea of individual initiative. Now, this is no academic discussion, for the same ideas are represented to-day in the civilization of the Orient and of the Occident. Reverence for personality is not fundamental in the ideals of Orient civilization, though they are in Japanese and the Chinese are beginning to adopt the Occidental ideas of civilization, and chiefly the Christian idea of reverence for personality in the conduct of life and the state. This is a fundamental moral principle, philosophically enunciated by Kant, Heyd and Lotze. And no man or nation can degrade personality in others without thereby degrading themselves. And what holds true of individuals holds true of nations in their international relations. In these there must be reverence for personality. This idea may exist in strange places. It exists in some artistocracies and it is absent from some democracies. A true democracy is one which is permeated with a real reverence for individual personality. Therefore, it is that the future of the Canadian people lies in the future of the Canadian conscience. For true democracy means moral service and the possibility of a man's life for every man."

Bermuda's Coral Houses

Bermuda is the original home of the "White House." The simplest bungalow is built of the same material as the most pretentious villa, in almost precisely the same way. White coral blocks cut from the backbone of the islands are used for all building purposes. Many of the well-to-do negroes live in lovely little white coral bungalows and cottages, which for vivid, radiant whiteness would surpass the executive mansion at Washington. Paint can not rival the dazzling lustre of Bermuda's lime-washed coral buildings, shimmering as they do in the brilliant, sub-tropical sunshine like pillars of light.

PAULINE JOHNSTON

The memory of Pauline Johnston the Indian poetess will always be a sweet fragrance to the people of Canada, white man and Indian. She was the daughter of an Indian chief of the Mohawk tribe, near Brantford where she was born on March 10, 1862 Pauline Johnston inherited the red man's love of the drama, while her literary tendencies may be ascribed to the family of her English mother. Emily Howells, through whom she was related distantly to William Dean Howells. Miss Howells came from Ohio to the Mohawk Reserve with her sister, the wife of a Church of England missionary, and, meeting the handsome young chief, they fell in love. The little roughcast house in which Pauline Johnson was born still stands, and in the years to come should become a literary shrine for lovers of Canadian poetry. Pauline was carefully educated by private tuition and in the Brantford model school. Early in life she began to write verse, but the world's knowledge of her dates from an evening in 1892, when at the age of thirty she appeared at a literary evening of the Toronto Young Men's Liberal Club, and, along with several other poets, read selections from her own works.

Her best poems, the ones in which there is the greatest life, are those on Indian subjcts, canoeing, Canadian scenery, etc. Into her poems of this class, The Death Cry, A Cry from an Indian Wife, As Red Men Die, The Idler, In the Shadows, In April, she has thrown all her heart. They possess an irresistible passion and ardor. Miss Johnson visited England in 1894, and while there published "the White Wampum," a collection of about two-score poems.

Building Extraordinary

A remarkable engineering feat was accomplished recently at a factory in Pennsylvania, when a steel roof weighing 600 tons was lifted from one of the mills to a height of 40 feet above the perpendicular sides of the mill, 35 feet high. This was done in less than four hours. Artisans immediately began to build the sides of the mill to meet the suspended roof, which was held in air, mainly by cables suspended by large steam cranes.

MURDER RECORD IN THE STATES

Nine Times as Many as in England, Taking Population as a Basis

Some recent statistics call attention to the remarkable number of murders in the United States. There is no country in the civilized world where so many people are killed, and it is doubtful if uncivilized countries could show a worse record. The situation is so serious that it has alarmed several life insurance companies, and they may increase rates to allow for murder risks, for when there are 86 murders in one year, as was the case in Memphis, Tenn., it is plain that the loss to insurance companies must be considerable, the victims of murders are as frequently and as heavily insured as the average member of the community. In many cases, indeed, they are still better insured, and murders for the sake of insurance alone are far from common.

Few Are Hanged

If the record of 1911 is taken there were nine times as many murders in the United States as there were in England, in proportion to population. Commenting upon the figures given, the Spectator, an insurance paper, says: "The comparison brings out in startling contrast the disregard of human life in the United States at the present time. The subject is obviously one of most serious importance, not only to life insurance companies but also to the public at large, and, granting the defects in the available statistics, there can be no question of doubt but that the American homicide rate is exceedingly high and that the rate is on the increase. A condition of this kind is not compatible with the common assumption that actual progress is being made in the United States in all that is being summed up under the term civilization and national welfare."

Mr. Andrew White, former Ambassador to Germany, who made an examination of the record in the United States, believed that the great murder rate was brought about by the fact that only one murderer in about 84 is ever sent to the gallows or the electric chair. In 1911 there were 61 executions, and probably between 5,000 and 6,000 murders.

In the Black Belt

Murders are commoner in the large cities than in the smaller towns and in the country districts, Chicago leading the country and the whole world in the actual number of killings, being hotly pursued by New York. But, on a basis of population, there are more murders in the Southern States than in any other portion of the globe. The victims are for the most part negroes, and for the most part the murderers are negroes, too. The negroes' habit of using razors is still constant, but they have also become accustomed to the revolver, and even to the automatic pistol, whose increasing popularity may have not a little to do with the murder rate. The automatic pistol makes killing easy, and assists escape in those cases where a crime is detected and bystanders might interfere if it were not for the deadly automatic with which the assassin stands off pursuit. The gunmen of New York are all patrons of the automatic pistol.

Foreign Murderers

The foreign population of the United States is also responsible for a considerable percentage of murders. Probably in the large cities the foreign-born and the offspring of foreign-born parents would be accountable for three-quarters of the murders. The names of the gunmen in the Becker trial will serve as an index. It is an unobservant Canadian who has not observed in the course of the past ten or fifteen years the increasing frequency of foreign names in Canadian murder cases, especially those in the cities where the herding together of these foreigners results in many murders in which no one is brought to justice. What has happened in the United States in the matter of immigration is very likely to happen in Canada in the next ten years unless stringent preventative measures are taken. It is already happening. With the hard-working, inoffensive foreigner will come the foreign criminal, and the murder ratio is likely to increase.

KING OF GREECE CLASSED AS HERO

King Constantine was at one time most unpopular in his own kingdom, where to-day he is a hero classed with the ancient warriors of the historic land. He was born at Athens, August 2, 1868. He was educated by tutors who where brought from Leipsic, and one of the accusations against him was that he has shown the effects of German influence. Tall, soldierly in appearance, quiet, reserved almost to the point of shyness, in the ordinary court functions he has always made every endeavor to avoid the crowds. He is a soldier. Just as his sometime more popular brother, Prince George, took to the sea, so did Prince Constantine incline to the army and his military education was received from the best instructors in Europe. The King has always been known as a man with opinions of his own, even to the extent of going out after a ministry which he thought was going contrary to the best interests of the country. The Tricoupis Cabinet ran contrary to his wishes and the Tricoupis Cabinet went out of office. There was a great hue and cry at that time about the interference of the Royal family, but at the next election the people stood solidly by the Crown Prince. Undoubtedly King Constantine did much to keep his father on the throne for so many years. There had been threats to dethrone him, to none of which did the old King George seriously object. The only point he ever made was that he would not abdicate. But for years he preferred the lights of Paris and the baths of France to his own kingdom. During the meantime, King Constantine always acted as regent and he administered with all the firmness that an exceedingly jealous kingdom would permit him.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

Our good contemporary, the Mail and Empire, states that there is just as much money in the country as ever. That may be true, but it seems to be segregated.

If it is true that laughter prevents appendicitis, it is to be hoped that persons in fear of that disease will not make the mistake of paying to hear vaudeville jokers.

"Colonel Roosevelt is still in Arizona," says a despatch. Well, he may be in Arizona but this g.f.j. is ready to bet a new top hat that he is not still.

AS OTHERS SEE US

How truly prophetic were the utterance of the London Morning Post, which declared on the morning after the Senate's defeat of the Naval Aid Bill, that the "decision would be eagerly welcomed by rivals and enemies," is made only too evident by comment of German newspapers on the effect of the Senate's action. The Hamburger Nachrichten of Hamburg, Germany, says:

> "Whatever might be decided upon later the actual decision of the Canadian Senate means, at any rate, a heavy moral and material loss for the defence of the empire, for Mr. Borden's promise has been foolishly enough counted on. His offer made an enormous impression on the whole world. Mr. Churchill pointed out this fact especially in the well known memorandum of the Admiralty. This impression will now not only be destroyed, but people will everywhere obtain the conviction that England cannot depend upon such help from her colonies."

Dealing still further with the question of the material loss which would accrue from the Senate's short-sighted action, the Nachrichten adds that:—

> "Mr. Winston Churchill always included the three Canadian Dreadnoughts in his recent calculatios and estimates. On March 31 he said in the House of Commons that the three Canadian ships were absolutely necessary for the defence of the Empire, especially from the end of 1915 or the beginning of 1916, so that it is impossible in England to wait and see whether the Canadians will change their minds later on. He repeated this meanwhile in a telegram to Mr. Borden. On a third occasion he emphasized the necessity once more, adding that if the Canadians should fail, others would have to make good the loss. Those others are, of course, the taxpayers at home."

Another German newspaper, the Kreuz Zeitung, of Berlin, says:

> "The first result of the decision of the Senate was that the English naval minister informed Parliament that the three ships of this year's programme, which are to be ordered at private dockyards, must be laid down forthwith instead of in March of next year."

Here is presented to our view a vision of ourselves as others see us. "England cannot depend on such help from her colonies." It is not a true picture, but what other conclusion can the German papers arrive at? Because a collection of partisan old men, urged on to their folly by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, in turn, was being pressed by scathless ex-ministers who thought they saw in this an opportunity to embarrass the government, Canada has been placed before the world in a false light, and Canadians have been made to appear as a horde of slinkers and artful dodgers—too mean to assume a simple duty. It is degrading to our sense of true Canadian manhood, and the stigma will hake to be removed. This country cannot afford to rest under the imputation that it cannot be depended upon for help in the time of need. There is no such spirit prevalent in the country, and an irresponsible Senate has no right, for purely party purposes, to seek to set up its narrow partisan views as those of the majority. That would be a submission to misrepresentative government such as true Liberals of an earlier day shed blood to suppress.

Quit Sniffing,
Stop Sneezing,
Cure Your Cold Now

Thousands of Cases Prove the Quickest Cure is Catarrhozone.

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infest the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhozone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs — kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhozone," writes Isabel Fry, of Seguin Falls, Ont. "I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, bad breath and indigestion. Catarrhozone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invaluable in colds, sore throat and bronchial trouble." Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. WHY BURNS FOUGHT

Canadian Boxer Took a Beating to Satisfy Newspapers

Tommy Burns feared Jack Johnson and gave the big negro fighter his chance at the title only because the newspapers forced him to do so.

Tommy admits this freely in a letter to a friend in Chicago. Burns says he believed every boxer in the world has some man he is sidestepping and doesn't want to fight. He then goes on to say that Johnson always "had his goat," and that he never had any idea of fighting him.

Indeed, Tommy made the price for meeting Johnson so high, as he thought at the time, that no promoter in the world would have the courage to make a bid for the match.

Further, Tommy freely admits that he is sorry now that he ever did such a thing, and it will be a life-long regret to him. Still, as an afterthought, Burns expresses the opinion that he would have won from Johnson had the battle been permitted to go along to the finish, and not been stopped by the Sydney police.

"The press is to blame for the match," says Tommy, "as I was practically forced into it."

WOLF AND THE LAMB

Young Stenographer Is Saved at Ruin's Brink by a Mere Incident.

By FRANK FILSON.

"I beg to remain, lovingly yours, John P. Stevens," the man dictated and Miss Keith, his stenographer started round in her chair.

"'Lovingly,' did you say, Mr Stevens?" she asked in surprise "Surely you are not going to write that to the Anderson Iron Foundry!"

John P. Stevens took the slim white hand which Miss Keith had laid upon the back of her chair and pressed it between his own. "No, my dear, I meant it for you," he said. "End the letter in the usual way."

Miss Keith smiled and hammered out the letter upon her typwriter in a couple of minutes. Then she glanced up at the clock and rose, patting her hair. Her hat hung upon its peg close by.

"One moment, Lucy," said Stevens "What would you say to a little supper somewhere tonight? I've a couple of theater tickets which might come in handy afterward."

Miss Keith shook her head determinedly. "I couldn't," she answered.

"Why not?" demanded the man blandly.

"Somebody might see us together who—who—"

"Yes?"

"Who knows your wife."

"My wife," said Stevens, "has not seen me for nearly a year and wouldn't care. During our five years of wedded life I think I can say that she has thoroughly tired of me. Come, Lucy, what's the odds?" he continued He caught at the pretty wrists which she had just released from their paper cuffs. "Lucy, are you going to let that come between us when I love you?" asked Stevens.

He saw the agitation which she could not hide. Her hands were trembling as she put on her hat. "Outside the Hotel Sheffield at seven?" he whispered, and she nodded hastily and hurried away.

"So You're Going to Desert the Ship, Eh?"

Stevens leaned back in his chair and lit a cigar. He was wondering just how much his pretty stenographer cared for him and how much was due to the fact that the Stevens' Protection company netted him a clear forty thousand dollars a year. Six months before, when she had come to work for him in her first position, she had been a prim, innocent-eyed country girl of whom he had been almost afraid. Somehow she reminded him of Mary, his wife, who had left him not long before when she had discovered certain matters in his life. Yet he had really loved Mary. Perhaps if he had gone humbly to her. . . He puffed out a cloud of smoke. Well, for all his money he was down and out so far as decent friendships were concerned. All their friends had sided with Mary. Stevens had been through a whirl of dissipation since that time. He was having his fling—all the pleasure that life now held for him. Undoubtedly his subtly bestowed praise, his kindness, his attentions had turned Miss Keith's head. Well, if she was such a little fool as to play with fire. . . .

Stevens looked up to see his bookkeeper, Henry Austin, standing at the door of his private office. The young fellow had been in his employment some two years; he worked, for a pittance of forty dollars a month, in the dimly lighted stock room at the opposite end of the floor. He looked at Stevens in an imploring manner that irritated the manufacturer.

"Well, Austin, what is it?" he asked.

"I want to give you a week's notice to leave, Mr. Stevens," answered the young fellow, coming forward, his hat in his hand.

"So you're going to desert the ship, eh?" sneered Stevens. "Why? Got a better job?"

"No, Mr. Stevens. I haven't got a position yet," he replied.

"Want your salary raised?"

"No, sir, it isn't that. I'm perfectly satisfied."

Moved by an impulse of kindness which surprised himself, Stevens walked forward and placed his hand upon the young fellow's shoulder. "Best tell me what's the trouble," he said.

"I will," Austin blurted out, his pallid features working convulsively. "If you were my own size and willing to fight I'd just about kill you. Miss Keith and I were—we were going to be married as soon as I got a raise to fifty. She's from my home town. And now—you—"

"So that's the trouble, eh," said Stevens, nodding understandingly. "You think I've cut you out in her affections, eh? Why, didn't you know that I'm married?"

"Yes, damn you," shouted Austin. "That's just where the trouble lies. I can't fight a man twice my weight and the law wouldn't give me any redress, so I'm going to leave. Take your week's notice. I'll get out this evening."

"No you won't, Austin," said Stevens, with sudden emphasis. "Now see here! Suppose I were out of the way; do you think she'd marry you? Do you think that if I raised you to—well, sixty, say, you'd be man enough not to be satisfied with everything and to keep her at home to look after your house, and to try to make something of yourself?"

Austin stared at him, his lips slightly parted, astounded by this unexpected turn.

"My son," said the manufacturer, "you blame me—but that's where you're wrong. This is a fighting world —it isn't a world where we whine for justice and get it. Maybe I've been too much of a wolf and too little of a lamb, but I'm going to do the square thing for once. Here's your chance—will you take it?"

"You bet I will," answered the bookkeeper breathlessly.

Stevens nodded and put on his hat. He went out humming. He saw what Austin saw, that he was responsible for having put the poison of ambition into Miss Keith's mind; but he knew also that it required its drastic antidote, to humble her. He took a street car up to the rendezvous and waited inside the hotel.

The hands of the clock were just upon the hour when he saw his stenographer's trim figure pass slowly before the revolving glass door, and, throwing his cigar, he went outside.

"Good evening, Miss Keith," he said, raising his hat. "Waiting to see me?"

The girl recoiled a little and looked at him, an angry flush reddening her cheeks. Stevens patted her on the arm.

"Run away home, little girl," he said. "I've changed my mind. And say," he continued, "you needn't report to me tomorrow or ever again. I'm going to get a business woman for my stenographer next time, and not your kind."

He turned and left her, speechless with indignation. Then, because the medicine sickened the giver as well as the recipient, he went back into the hotel and sat for a long time in the smoking room. At last he rose, and, with a sudden determination, went toward the door. His features had softened out of their habitual hard lines.

"I wonder," he said meditatively, "I wonder if Mary would give me another chance?"

Etched Pewter.

Very beautiful are some new pieces of pewter that come from the Orient, says the Ladies' Home Journal. The tea caddies are perhaps best of all, for they are absolutely air tight, as important thing in caddies if tea is to be kept fresh. These caddies have an outside cover, and an inside stopper of pewter which fits tightly. They come in sizes costing from $3 to $15. The pewter is subjected to a process which leaves it a dull brownish silver; the designs—each distinctively Japanese—are then etched with acid. Litter coasters—excellent for ash trays—designed in a dwarf pine are $1 each. A beautiful oddly shaped bowl with a wicker handle is $6. All of the pieces are very heavy

FREED BY HIS WIFE

Young Canadian Liberated From Prison Owing to His Wife's Efforts

Hugh C. Lyons, of Toronto, convicted of flim-flamming, and sentenced to the Maryland Penitentiary at Baltimore for three years, was given his freedom after serving three months of his sentence, principally because of the devotion displayed by his young wife, who went to Baltimore and finally succeeded in obtaining a review of the case by Judge Elliott. An extraordinary feature of the case which aided Lyons in obtaining liberty was the fact that on the day he was sentenced his father, Philip Lyons, alias Passavant, was also sentenced, the father and son having been previously captured in a swindle. The elder Lyons was sentenced to three years, and the younger man to two years. Standing in the prisoner's dock, young Lyons pleaded with the judge to transfer the longer term from his father to him.

"Give me the longer term, your Honor," pleaded young Lyons, "I can stand it better than father." The judge granted the plea, and father and son were sent to the penitentiary.

The wife of the younger man went to Baltimore and entered pleas through her course. The case was one of more than ordinary interest, and after much deliberation the judge recalled his sentence on young Lyons who had by that time served three months, and allowed him to go free.

Big Mountain Lion

Maddened when wounded, fighting to the death, and attempting to tear the bodies of his assailants to shreds, a big mountain lion was shot at Half Moone Bay, 50 miles up the coast from Vancouver, B. C., by Thos. Hare who subsequently collected the bounty on same. Hare, his brother and the latter's wife were passing through the woods, when the lion made his appearance and plunged towards them. Though wounded several times he still came on. Ammunition was running low, but, taking his last aim, Thomas Hare sent a shot through the brute's head as he was making his final spring, and it rolled over in the snow dead. When measured it was found to be seven feet from tip to tip.

SPORTING NEWS

LACROSSE.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.— Arrangements have been made between the Ottawa and Almonte lacrosse clubs for home-and-home games for the championships of the eastern section of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association. The first takes place in Almonte next Saturday, August 30, the majority of goals to count on the round. Ernie Butterworth is coaching Ottawa while Billy Starr took charge of the Almonte team this week and will groom them for the finals.

The Alexandra lacrosse team, which has beaten everything in eastern Ontario, is anxious for a chance to win higher honors or to get into faster company. They will challenge the winners of the Ottawa-Almonte series. Alexandra applied to the O.A.L.A. for membership last spring, but on account of the geographical location of the town their application was refused.

CRICKET.

Toronto, Aug. 21. — The famous Australians arrived this morning, looking more or less bronzed from the effects of the sun after having played a most successful tour through the States and Bermuda.

Knowing that they will have the strongest team to meet that they have yet done, they will practice on the Rosedale grounds this afternoon, so as to be perfectly fit for their coming engagement. After practice they will be the guests of some of the members at dinner at the Rosedale Club, and to-morrow will devote their time to viewing the city of Toronto, which impressed them very much on their former visit.

The Philadelphia players to take part in the match arrive Thursday evening, and think they will be able to lower the colors of the Cornstalks.

Great interest is being centred in this big match, and the Rosedale grounds should have the largest crowd ever seen there.

The game starts at 11.30 to-day (Friday).

RING.

London, Aug. 21.—There is a possibility that Jack Johnson, the American negro pugilist, will not be allowed to appear on the stage in this city.

The announcement that he would do a turn next week at one of the smaller West End music halls brought a number of remonstrances to the manager, to the effect that the London public, after the revelations of Johnson's violation of the white slave laws of the United States would not stand for the negro pugilist as an entertainer.

The Federation of Variety Artists will discuss the question at a meeting in this city on Thursday.

Rev. John Clifford, for a number of years president of the World's Baptist Alliance, protects through the press against "bringing this most disreputable individual before the public, degrading the amusements of the metropolis, and imperilling the moral sentiments of the young people of the city."

FOOTBALL

Torotno. Aug. 21.—According to arrangements made the finals between the champions of the various provinces for the Connaught Cup should be played at Fort William from August 30 to September 6, but unless a big spurt is put on I am afraid they will require to be put back for another week. At present only Toronto and Ottawa are ready to battle for the honor of being Ontario representatives, and as Peterborough and Oshawa of the Midland district are to be reckoned with ere a final decision is arrived at, there must necessarily be an extension unless mid-week games are played. These two clubs have arranged to play on Saturday first, and if Old Country and Oshawa are able to play off Saturday first the winner could meet the winner of Peterborough and Oshawa some day next week.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
Chicago, Ill.

WORMS: Not a pleasant subject, but we don't find many ailments of the human family pleasant. True, some ailments are worse than others, but all must be discussed if we want relief.

There are between 30 and 40 different kinds of worms that infest the human intestines. The most injurious of which are Hookworm and Tape worm. They are not so common, however, as the very annoying little worms called Pin Worms, or the distressing round worms. Any of these gain entrance to the alimentary canal chiefly as eggs in food and drink and take their abode in special localities according to their nature. The Pin worm is a very small worm which infests the lower bowels and rectum and are very annoying indeed. They are about one-sixth of an inch long and of a small thread-like nature. In some aggravated cases they are found by the thousands. It is not difficult to get rid of them, but so long as they are in the lower bowel their eggs are passed by the million and are hard to destroy. They live and will hatch under most adverse circumstances. Water from surface wells, creeks and ponds may contain enough to supply a village with the unwelcome parasites. The greatest annoyance from them is the intolerable itching which they cause in the rectum.

A thorough and complete injection of strong salt water or soapy water in which is dissolved lime or borax will usually clean them all out. Two or more quarts should be used at a time, with a fountain syringe. The treatment should be repeated each night until all are washed out. A general upbuilding of the system should then begin with proper diet and a tonic composed of some of the herb preparation described in the Home Health Club Book, Vol. 5. Probably Compound Gentian would be the best.

Tape Worms: There are three varieties of tape worm that may live and thrive in the human intestinal canal and cause many and various disagreeable symptoms. The embryos of tape worm may enter the body with food, especially rare meats. The tape worm known as Taenia Solium is the most common and its most frequent means of entering is through measly pork. Perhaps a careful description of these worms is unnecessary, further than to say that they may be ten feet in length or longer. Some of the symptoms presented are nervousness, dilated pupils, paleness, evidences of failing nutrition, uneasiness through the chest and abdomen, symptoms of intestinal catarrh and sometimes diarrhoea, while in some cases there may be frequent spells of faintness and dizziness.

Old Doctor A. P. Davis has given as the best and safest of simple remedies for tape worm. It is as follows:

Let the patient eat a light supper the night previous to using the remedy, and then in the morning eat nothing but bread and milk for breakfast, and half an hour after the breakfast put (for an adult) ten drops of chloroform on a little sugar and let that be swallowed at once, and repeat the same kind of a dose in twenty minutes afterward.

In fifteen minutes after the last dose of chloroform let the patient take four ounces of castor oil, keeping it down with lemon juice or coffee. Take the oil warm. The mistake people make in expelling the worm is they starve the patient and the worm so that the worm exerts all its powers to hold the surface of the intestine.

The above directions followed strictly will be effectual in getting rid of the worm. There are many other remedies, but this is the one to succeed with. Children may take the remedy proportionately as to age. The treatment in a month if first time does not remove it all, or any of it.

In another article I will tell you about common round worms.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: About a week ago my son complained of not feeling well. He had a badly coated tongue, felt weak and had a soreness in the region of the liver. He consulted a doctor who told him his liver was out of order. He prescribed some tablets, one to be taken every half hour and a bottle of dark colored medicine, a tablespoonful to be taken after meals. He seems a little better, but the improvement is very slow indeed. Please advise.—Mrs. A. R.

It is very evident that some article of diet has been taken by your son which has caused an acute catarrhal condition of the digestive organs including the liver which always shares in diseases of these organs. The first thing to be done in such a case is to use a suitable laxative for the purpose of cleaning out whatever may remain of the original cause and then a light diet must be adopted for several days, in some cases complete fasting, being necessary to allow the irritated mucous membrane to recover. In most cases, however, some light food, such as boiled milk, milk toast, soft boiled eggs, etc., in small amounts may be taken during the treatment. The Compound Gentian so often mentioned in these notes will rapidly aid in completely eliminating the poisons which have resulted from the acute indigestion by stimulating the liver and kidneys to more active work. After the acute symptoms have subsided, a diet of laxative foods, such as bran bread, green vegetables, fruits, etc., should be used for sometime. Do not forget that during hot weather the starch, fats and sugars of the ordinary diet should be reduced at least one-half. Buttermilk is an excellent food and drink combined. Water to the extent of 4 to 6 pints daily between meals should be taken.

THE FIGHTING BULL IS AN ARISTOCRAT

An Interesting Glimpse Into the Development and History of the Spanish Sport

The fighting bull of Spain is a race apart, as distinct from the breeds reared upon the farm as is the thoroughbred from the heavy Shire horse that draws the plow. He is an aristocrat among bulls, and resembles the former in the two supreme qualities of courage and speed. Bred for centuries with a care and skill which no other strain of animals received from so early a date, he stands to-day as an example of the wonderful effect which consistent selection can produce when applied steadfastly for centuries of time. For ever since the reconquest of Seville, in the thirteenth century, the breeding of bulls for the ring has received in Spain the enthusiastic attention of some of the richest and most experienced land owners in the country.

The Beginning

To trace the rise of bull-fighting in the Peninsula we must go back to the eighth century, when the Christian knights adopted the custom from their Moorish conquerors. It was the habit of these latter to maintain their skill at arms and to train their sons to war in baiting the wild bulls which then roamed free on the vast and uncultivated plains of Iberia. The knights would ride out singly, attended only by a couple of retainers on foot, to seek the beasts on their pastures. The contest was a straightforward one between the horseman and the bull; and it needed a well trained charger and a firm seat in the saddle to receive and frustrate the attack of the bull without being hurled to the ground.

Saving the Master

The servants were provided with cloaks to distract the attention of the foe should the master be unseated or wounded. It was from these beginnings that the modern sport of the "toreo" took its rise. Later on when the Moors had been expelled from the country the bull-fight acquired great popularity from the favor extended to it by the Spanish kings and the nobility of all classes. Indeed, so firm a hold did it take upon the affections of the people, that even though Isabel, the Catholic, disapproved of the sport, she was unable to suppress it. It was, however, until quite recently, essentially a contest in the nature of a joust between rider and bull. The later development, and especially the commercial aspect of the "toreo," has effected a radical change in the old traditional sport. To-day it is no more than a highly organized show, but in past times it was different, when even kings did not disdain occasionally to break a lance or risk a fall with the fiery "toreos" of Andalusia and Leon. Then vast sums were expended in perfecting the magnificent breed, which has been handed down to the present day through eight centuries of patience and skill.

LITTLE GIRLS WORSHIP DOLLS

When They Come Into Possession of One All Poverty Is Forgotten Declares a London Woman.

London—"Dolls nourish a sense of joy and romance and therefore conduce to the making of a great womanhood." declared Dion Clayton Calthorp, artist and writer. She was discussing the opening of a hall opposite Westminster Abbey, where there was a show of one hundred thousand dolls for distribution among the poor children of London.

"Come with me in imagination," continued Mrs. Calthorp, "and see what happens in the case of one of these dolls, which we shall call Amelia. Picture a little girl in the slum district, a 'Madonna of the doorstep.' Her eyes do not see the dingy houses opposite, the gray sky or the smoking chimneys. Neither do they see the dirty pinched faces and ragged clothes of the other children in the street. She is looking at the magic vision of her dream. In her thin arms she holds Amelia and every now and then steals a look at the doll, just to be sure that she is still there.

"Her face takes on a faint glow. Amelia has golden locks, a spangled dress with ballet shoes, a wide ballet skirt, rosy cheeks and a steady, placid smile. The radiance of Amelia fills the little mother's heart. Cold winds sweep up the street. The child draws a bit of dirty shawl over Amelia. If a king's crown and scepter lay on the ground at the feet of the 'Madonna of the doorstep' she would not pick it up. Before the doll came the child possessed nothing, now she possesses everything."

EATING A CHURCH

Of all the things that may befall a church, nothing could be much stranger than the destruction of a little house of worship north of Hudson Bay, as once reported by the Bishop of the diocese. He had attended a synod of the Canadian church at Winnipeg, and there had seen a missionary bishop who had been six weeks on the way, having come most of the distance in a canoe. The missionary bishop reported gravely that the diocese of a brother bishop had "gone to the dogs." Being asked for an explanation he said that the Eskimos in the diocese had built a church with whales' ribs for rafters, and covered it with walrus hide. The little church held eighty persons; but in the time that elapsed between two services the building was set upon by a pack of famished dogs, and actually devoured it in a few hours.

MAKES MOUSE TRAPS

A London Woman's Big But Peculiar Business

Mrs. Mary Ann Eaton, London, is probably the most picturesque personality among those engaged in the queer trades of London, says the Mail. Mary Ann, as she is familiarly known in Homerton, has attained the age of 86. Her husband, the founder of this mouse trap business, died some years ago. Since then Mrs. Eaton has carried on the great work.

She does not make the mouse traps herself. This is done by workmen in the back room of her little home. Mrs. Eaton does the brainwork. She spends the day answering letters from her customers headed "Re mouse traps." The traps are those simple affairs of wood with wire bars and the little catch which the mouse in his greed for cheese sets free. It would be impossible to estimate the number of mice that have been lured to their doom by this simple device. The traps are small, but the machinery for their making is on a large scale. There are steam saws for cutting the wood, and the back of the little home is quite an engineering shop. Mrs. Eaton is not unnaturally convinced that the simple trap is best. "I do not believe in these new-fangled affairs," she said. "The old-fashioned ones are good enough for me." Mouse traps from Homerton are sent to all parts of the country and also to the Continent, and Mrs. Eaton's customers are chiefly the owners of large warehouses.

PUFF OF WIND, BANK WRECKED

Playful Breeze Played Hide and Seek With a 'Stocking Safe Deposit Vault.

A strong wind, not content with carrying hats aloft, turning umbrellas inside out and swirling women's skirts about in cyclonic and embarrassing fashion, has become a bank wrecker. The bank conducted by Mrs. Robert Stadle of the Latham hotel has been ruined by the wind. Its lone depositor, Mrs. Stadle, has lost $100 in cash and a fine silk stocking as a result.

As the new custom of women having pockets in their coats and skirts has not yet been placed in operation by the dressmakers and cloakmakers, Mrs. Stadle utilized the banking facilities so well known to her sex, but never until Boreas came did she lose a penny from the trusty repository. It was as secure in the silken safe, apparently, as it would be in the steel and concrete vaults of a Wall street banking house.

When Mrs. Stadle entered the bathroom of her suite she placed the always faithful bank containing $100 on the window sill. The window was up just a little bit. The wind gave a little puff. Out went the Stadle bank into Twenty-eighth street. Mrs. Stadle could not afford the time at the moment to look out to discover the trail the wind would follow with it. When she did, however, it could not be seen. She is willing to relinquish her claim on the bank, but would be thankful for the return of its assets.—New York Telegram.

New Ride Through Midair.

A new thrill for Alpine tourists will soon be a ride through midair from one point to another on a suspended cable. This will start from Chamonix, at an altitude of 3,000 feet; it will ascend to the Glacier des Bossons at 7,500 feet, with two intervening stations. It will have a grade of 50 to 60 degrees. The line will be finally extended to the Aiguille du Midi, at an altitude of 11,500 feet. The first section is to be completed in 1913 and the extension the following year. The road will be worked with three cables—the carrier, the tractor and a cable for the brakes. Each carriage will accommodate twenty-four persons.

DEMONSTRATION FARMING

To Show That Mixed Farming Can be Made Pay Handsomely

To encourage mixed farming in the prairie provinces and prove to the farmers generally that this class of agricultural industry can b made to pay handsomely, and incidentally to start every farmer in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba along the line of mixed farming, the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Department has inaugurated a campaign of locating mixed farming demonstration farms in the three prairie provinces. These farms have already been located. Work has commenced on the breaking of the ground and building of houses, and in Calgary, Mr. James Hart, superintendent of improved farms for the C.P.I. announced that ten of the new demonstration farms would be located in Alberta, ten in Saskatchewan and five in Manitoba. The International Railway Company has applied to the government for permission to dam the Fraser River near Yale, B.C., to develop power for the operation of tramways on the lower mainland. United States capital is behind the project.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

CARE OF BABY'S MOUTH

Home Remedies May be Resorted to For Several Ailments

The baby's mouth needs constant, careful attention. The most common form of sore mouth in little babies is "thrush" or "sprue." Delicate babies are much more susceptible to this disease than healthy babies. The presence of thrush is shown by tiny white specks and threads on the roof and sides of the mouth and on the tongue. Sometimes the inflammation extends through the entire alimentary canal.

In treating the disease, great care must be taken not to rub the spots or they will bleed. Wash the mouth out with boracic acid solution before and after every meal. Be exceedingly careful of all bottles and nipples. Never put food into a bottle that has not been sterilied with boiling water. Boil the nipple every morning and get new ones frequently. Along with these precautions use this treatment: Wash the mouth out every hour with a solution of bicarbonate of soda, one teaspoonful to a cup of boiled water. To wash out baby's mouth: Wrap a piece of absorbent cotton around the little finger, pour the solution over the swab and wipe out every part of the mouth, taking care not to hurt the sensitive membrane.

Sometimes older babies have ulcerated mouths, caused by poor health or neglected teeth. The symptoms of this disease are drooling at the mouth, bad breath, coated tongue, and inflamed gums. Later yellow spots appear in the mouth and on the gums. Often the gums bleed and the mouth is so sore that the child refuses food. Prompt treatment is necessary. Give the child soft, nourishing food, such as junket, broths, jellied eggs. Wash the mouth out every two hours with a solution of five grains of alum to an ounce of boiled water. If the child is taken to a doctor, he will apply nitrate of silver to the ulcers, but the mother cannot do this herself. Prevention is better than cure, and in this case the prevention is a simple matter. Watch the baby's food, first of all, and then be scrupulously careful to keep everything connected with his feeding perfectly clean.

NEW BURGLAR ALARM

How an Automobile May be Used for The Purpose

One of the surest and best sorts of burglar alarms can be fashioned in the home with no further appliances than a high powered well equipped automobile.

This simple device is recommended by a Chicago motorist who tried it with the best sort of success. There are a lot of people who might have difficulty in procuring the automobile, but those who have one can try it.

There are few people who are greater sufferers from petty thievery than motorists who keep their cars in private garages. There are so many little expensive things about an auto that are easily detached that they seem to attract thieves and as a result the garage set away off from the house becomes a favorite place for the light fingered fraternity to ply their trade.

The Chicago man who invented this preventive suffered in silence for a long time and then he provided a safe and sure relief by simply connecting his electric motor horn and headlights with the garage doors just as an ordinary burglar alarm is connected.

The result was that when Mr. Burglar opened the door the headlights flashed out and the horn started a rasping, deafening roar that continued until someone came from the house and closed the doors again. The noise was so sudden and so startling that the first burglar who started it was frightened off immediately and it was so loud and continuous that it aroused the entire neighborhood.

NINE TENETS OF FAITH

Fifty Years Makes No Change in Working Farm Creed

Here is the Canadian Farmer's Creed which, though written fifty years ago, holds good to-day.

I.—We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation.

II.—We believe that soil loves to eat, as well as its owner, and ought therefore to be liberally fed.

III.—We believe in large crops, which leave the land better than they found it, making farmer and the farm both glad at once.

IV.—We believe in getting to the bottom of things, and therefore in deep ploughing, and enough of it; all the better with a subsoil plough.

V.—We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

VI.—We believe that the best fertiliser for any soil is the spirit of industry, enterprise, and intelligence. Without this, lime and gypsum, bones and green manure, marl and guano will be of little use.

VII.—We believe in good fences, good barns, good farmhouses, good stock, good orchards, and children enough to gather the fruit.

VIII.—We believe in a clean kitchen, a neat wife in it, and a clear conscience.

IX.—We firmly disbelieve in farmers who will not improve their farms; also in farms which grow poorer every year, in starving cattle, in farmer boys turning into clerks and merchants, in farmers ashamed of their vocation, or who drink whiskey until honest people are ashamed of them.

Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor

STRENGTH RETURNS, HEALTH RENEWED, VITALITY OF YOUTH RE-CREATED

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Ambition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Chebogue Pt., N.S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost my appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the 'blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Kings Medalist Shows up Better in the Results of the Tait-Brassey Militia Match

Rifle Rang, Long Branch, Aug. 21. —With conditions far better than they have been on the preceding days and the knowledge that their lady friends were closely watching them, shooting was inclined to be better than ever this morning. To-day is lady's day, and, of course, every man wants to shine and make a good score. The first match is the Tait-Brassey, which opened at 200 yards range and over 300 of the active militia have entered. There are 196 individual prizes in addition to the battalion and company team prizes. Two starts will be shot off at 500 and 600 yard range to-morrow. The Lieutenant-Governor's match will also be competed for today. The first prize in this is a gold medal and $50. WHITE DEER OUTCAST

Albino, Ostracised By Other Deer, Seeks Companionship Elsewhere.

Libby, Mont., Aug. 21. — Henry Wegner, who has a ranch on the upper Yakt, says a pure white deer has become associated with his horses, and has become as tame as horses and follows them into the corral.

Wegner says it was a doe and had pink eyes, so he named it albino.

Old hunters here say that on account of its freakish appearance it had become an outcast from other deer and in such cases the animal always will go to a herd of cattle or horses, if possible.

Cure for Balky Horse

Want to know how to start a balky horse?

That sounds like a foolish question and it has been echoed through all the ages since horses came into general use. Everybody who owns one would like to know how to start a balky horse. Here's a way that has never failed. Take an ordinary bamboo fish pole long enough to reach the head of the horse from the carriage seat. Attach a round wooden bolt crossways to the end of the rod and fasten copper rivet heads in each end of the bolt.

Then attach the two wires of an electric battery, one to each rivet head and let them run along the pole to the handle where they will be fastened to ordinary binding posts. Run wires from your battery, under the carriage seat, to the handle of the pole. When the horse balks turn on your current and touch the horse behind the ears with the rivet heads. He'll move—no matter how determined he has been not to do so.

FAMOUS STAMP COLLECTIONS

Lord Crawford's Was One of the Most Extensive in the World

Stamp dealers in all parts of the world are discussing the sale to a London dealer of the bulk of Lord Crawford's great collection. What he sold was probably one of the finest collections of foreign stamps in the world, and what he retains includes the finest collection of United States stamps, and a collection of British stamps second to that of King George alone. Before the sale Lord Crawford's collection was the finest that the expenditure of unlimited money and the research of half a lifetime ever accumulated, with the possible exception of the collection of Count Phillipp la Renotiere, said to be worth about $5,000,000. Lord Crawford's collection of United States stamps, however, was unrivaled, and no matter what amount a collector might be willing to spend in the effort, he could not duplicate the collection because of the peculiar circumstances in which some of the unique specimens were obtained.

THAW DENIED ALL BUT HIS COUNSEL, SMOKES, READS, AND WRITES IN A DISHEVELLED STATE

Lawyers Promise That He Will Never be Turned Over to the New York State Officials--Habeas Corpus Writ May Now Be Discarded

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 22.—Thaw appeared this morning to have spent a restless night. His hair was dishevelled, his collar awry, and his eyes staring. His breakfast laid out on a bench for him has not been touched.

He said again to-day that he hoped soon to be able to give an account of his escape. To-day he was jotting down notes on the incidents. He had been supplied with the New York and Montreal papers, and apparently read every word bearing on his case. The "inside" motive for the immigration authorities causing the Thompson case to be postponed lies in the fact that the charge on which he is held is punishable only with a fine. He could pay this at once and decamp for parts unknown. The warrant from Duchess County, charging him with conspiracy, is not regarded as sufficient basis for extradition. To patch up this loop hole more time was needed.

The "Governor" of the Sherbrooke jail laughed to-day when asked if special guards had been detailed to watch Thaw. He denied that this was true, but it is understood tha precautionary measures have been taken at the request of District Attorney Conger, of Duchess iCounty, and his allies, the immigration authorities.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 22.—On conferences to-day will probably hinge the ultimate fate of Harry K. Thaw, so far as his Canadian stay is concerned. Thaw's legal force is making a desperate effort to pave the way for the continuation of his roundabout flight to Pennsylvania via Detroit. The proposal pending at Ottawa is that the immigration authorities agree to drop any contemplated action in return for a binding promise from Thaw's counsel that they will get their client out of Canada within a stipulated period.

The Thaw interests have been working systematically to create public sentiment in Harry's favor. Certain newspapers which support the Government are printing editorial demands for "fair play." This action is believed part of a well-organized campaign to prevent summary deportation.

SEC'Y BRYAN WARNS HUERTA NOT TO HARM ANY AMERICAN

Senator Tillman Confers With President Wilson and Gave Good News

Washington, Aug. 22.—Senator "Ben" Tillman, of North Carolina, after a conference with President Wilson to-day, said that he had been told by the chief executive that the Mexican situation "looked better today than for some time past." The Senator expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress of the peace plan.

Secretary of State Bryan to-day warned President Huerta, General Carranza, the rebel commander, and local Mexican officials at La Bouillo, that they will be held personally responsible if any harm comes to Shirley C. Hulse, son-in-law of Lieutenant-Governor Reynolds, of Pennsylvania. Threats against Hulse and others were made ten days ago, and the State Department has not yet received word as to their fate.

President Writes Message.

In the seclusion of his own study and with his own personal typewriting machine before him, President Wilson to-day started pounding out "by hand" the tentative draft of the message he will send to Congress upon the Mexican situation.

The President's aversion to dictating is well known. He says he "thinks better" when writing directly. His action to-day was interpreted as an evidence of the care which he proposes giving his latest message, in which he contemplates an expose of all the facts bearing on the negotiations to restore peace in Mexico. Creation of a world-wide sentiment in favor of the Government's attitude is the apparent object of the President's action.

The Situation at Standstill.

The message, containing as it will copies of the mediation proposals presented to President Huerta, together with the replies of the latter, the message will be the longest yet transmitted to Congress by President Wilson. It is believed though, no statement has been made, that further recommendations regarding the course of this government will be made, and it is possible that an entirely new Mexican policy may be promulgated. At this time, however, the chief purpose of the message is to get before the nation and before other nations, the exact nature of the negotiations instituted by the present administration.

COL. HUGHES ENDORSED

The firmness and courage of Col. Hon. Sam. Hughes in dealing with intemperance in the Militia and permanent force of this country and his promptness in appointing a successor to General MacKenzie, chief of the staff, has met with an immediate response throughout Canada. The Manitoba Free Press which can't be accused of friendliness towards Col. Hughes has the following remarks to make in a recent editorial:

"If he will always, in thus striking out for himself, act as commendably as he did in regard to the recent disorderly coalition of Mars and Bacchus at the military dinner at Halifax—at which he was the host and General Sir Ian Hamilton the guest of honor, and a few officers among the other one hundred and twenty-five guests became noisily hilarious—and as he has acted in the matter of successor to Major-General Mackenzie, as Chief of Staff in Canada, the Canadian people will regard the present Minister of Militia as holding down his job in the Dominion Government in an eminently satisfactory manner.

PROMINENT A. O. U. W. OFFICER WAS IN CITY

Mr. A. S. Morrison, District Deputy of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, was in the city on Thursday evening, visiting A.O.U.W. Lodge No. 135. He was accompanied by Mr. W. H. Blair, organizer for the society.

Mr. Blair is the right man in the right place. He is a fluent and convincing speaker and made a big impression whilst in the city. A.O.U.W., No. 135 meets every 2nd and 4th Tuesday in Foresters' Hall. The A.O.U.W. according to Mr. Blair, is the oldest, strongest and best fraternal beneficial society in the world.

Mr. Blair, the organizer, will be in the city for some time. The A.O.U.W. gives insurance at cost. The society has practically adopted the Hunter rates of insurance, these rates having been in force for the last eight years. The society is now on a sound basis and can give every person from age 16 to 44 years first class, safe insurance.

The A.O.U.W. has paid out in Ontario about 16 million dollars in death claims during the last 35 years in Ontario alone.

SALVAGING SOME BAD AMMUNITION

Minister of Militia Endeavours to Repair Some of the Output of the Quebec Arsenal

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Everything possible is being done by the Minister of Militia and Defence to make good some of the loss incurred by the country due to the carelessness of his predecessor in office who failed to make propoer inquiry into the manufacture of ammunition in the Quebec arsenal.

Experiments are being held at Petewawa and go to show that a proportion of the artillery ammunition made at the Quebec arsenal may be salvaged sufficiently to permit of its being used for practice. It will not, however, be used in competitive firing.

Only For Training.

The new superintendent of the arsenal, examined the shells that had been made and where practicable had them ground down and otherwise repaired. They then were tested at the practice camp at ranges of some four or five thousand yards. The result shows that those so treated had been improved greatly but that when so they are inferior in accuracy to the Vickers shells. They accordingly will be used for training while batteries engaged in competitive work will have the English made shells.

Very Good Thing.

It was a good thing for the country and for the safety of the lives of Canada's volunteer soldiers that the late administration was divested of its power. There was rank negligence in the working of many of its departments. It has been left to those who followed to repair the damage caused.

DID MAGISTRATE HERE QUIBBLE ?

In a letter in the Examiner, last night, Magistrate Dumble is out with a letter that should attract the favorable opinion of some lawyers. He explained how he had spoken in the police court of "the impropriety of a local paper (The Times) in condemning harshly the chief of police in regard to excluding the public" from Juvenile Courts. Mr. Dumble may either have misread the articles in the Times, which inaugurated this protest for the enlightenment of the mothers of Peterborough and for the protection of our girls. He may possibly have read and forgotten.

Still the fact remains that we neither spoke harshly of Chief Thompson nor did we demand that the public be admitted to Juvenile iCourts. We admitted, in fact, in fairness and justice, alluded to the admitted fact that Chief Thompson is one of the best police officers Peterborough ever had. Instead of asking that, what Mr. Dumble describes as "the gaping crowd" be admitted to the Juvenile Court, we distinctly deprecated the admission of the public.

We did say, and we repeat, that the press of Peterborough, for the enlightenment of local mothers, in the interests of their daughters' virtue should be allowed the same privileges as given the press of Toronto. We do not think that any reporter in Peterborough has ever violated the confidence of the Chief of Police. We know that The Times never has. When such a case as that tried on Monday is heard, the mothers of Peterborough are debarred from, to use a slang expression from being "put wise", to the dangers surrounding their daughters.

The Magistrate quotes sections from the code forbidding the public from Juvenile Courts. This looks like another forensic trick. We admitted, as did the Examiner, that this law exists. However, whilst these sections of the code are equally in force in Toronto, the intelligence of the Magistrate and Police of that city demonstrates that such a thing as common sense is applied there. The press of Toronto is admitted to the Juvenile Courts.

The whole matter, in a nutshell, is that the local magistrate and the local police should recognize now, as they will soon, that the old 10th century, paternal and obsolete method of conducting secret tribunals should stop.

Our mothers and daughters are superior to the Criminal Code. iThis is an age of progress and such arrogant methods as are enforced in the Juvenile Courts here, must in the interest of our mothers and girls be abolished.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair, and comparatively cooler.

MICE GOT HIM REDUCTION AT COURT OF REVISION

Toronto, Aug. 22.—What with the noises from the street cars and the smoke from the foundry you can hardly hear yourself think said Arthur Green, 871 Lansdowne avenue, as he protested against the assessment on a house which he said had depreciated in value. He bought the house two years ago for $2,500, the amount which it is assessed for. He was allowed $200 off his house and the promise that his land might also be reduced after evidence from other appellants from that street had been heard.

A stable has been built at the back of the house and the mice come from it into our house said George Smith a cook living at 336 Lansdowne ave.

We've had everything but mice before said Commissioner Smith laughing. The appellants land was reduced from $30 to $25, and the house from $,700 to $1,500.

FUSE WAS DEFECTIVE AND ATTEMPT FAILED

dynamite consisting of three ten-inch sticks and two halves, with fuse and detonator complete, was discovered near the windows of Mayor Gaynor's office at the City Hall yesterday afternoon. It was later proved at the Bureau of Combustibles that the explosive was 40 per cent. dynamite, which is the regulation blasting proportion. The charge was sufficient to have wrecked the City Hall.

MAYOR QUIET.

A citizen passing through City Hall Park made the discovery, and Mayor Gaynor was in hi soffice at the time, and seemed undisturbed and remained quietly in the city hall while the police drew a cordon around the dynamite to keep back the crowd.

The explosive was fopnd on a basement door in a concrete archway within 60 feet of the Mayor's Chamber. The explove was arranged in lattice formation, with two small pieces on top. A partly burned four inch fuse, made of gunpowder tightly rolled in a paper cylinder, led to a detonating cap on one of the half sticks of dynamite.

WOUND TOO TIGHTLY.

Several burned matches and pieces of punk were found close by. The whole charge was wrapped in cambric such as Italian women wear.

The presence of a strip of cotton wool, wound tightly around the base of the fuse prevented the spark from reaching the detonator. An edge of one dynamite stick was slightly scorched.

SMALLPOX IN SYDNEY PARLIAMENTARIANS SHY

London, Aug. 22.—The Sydney correspondent of the Daily Mail writes that several members of the touring parliamentary party have refused to visit that city because of a smallpox outbreak there. Will Crooks and others refused to be vaccinated, and if they had gone without it to New South Wales they would have been detained there indefinitely.

Owing to the outbreak Sydney is being boycotted both as to visitors and trade. Theloss is authoritatively given as £120,000 daily, and the Federal Ministers are greatly worried

BELFAST BUSINESS MEN READY FOR CIVIL WAR

London Aug. 22.—Business men in Belfast who know the real situation in the city are preparing for the worst in the event of the Home Rule bill passing into law. They are insuring their property against damage resulting from civil war, and it is understood that the policies which have been taken out now exceed $35-000,000

FOLEY AND GLEESON AWARDED CONTRACT FOR STREET PAVING

Lump Price is $62,745,37--The Work Will be Asphaltic Concrete and Paving Block--Board of Works Will Recommend That Council Proceed at Once With Work

The City's Board of Works met last night, Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Anderson, Duffus, and Duncan and City Engineer Parsons.

The Board received City Engineer Parson's figuring up of the tenders considered Wednesday night for street paving the following area:—

On George street from McDonnel to the C.P.R. station; on Hunter street from Water to Aylmer streets; on Charlotte street from George to Bethune streets.

The only tenders considered in the race were those of The Warren Bituminous Paving Co., of Toronto, and Foley & Gleeson, of Ottawa. Their tenders figured up in lump sums bid for this pavement work as follows:

Warren Bituminous Paving Co.—Bitulithic and Stone Blocks, $73,-062.50; Bitulithic and Paving Blocks, $71,063.42; Asphaltic Concrete and Stone Blocks, $65,785.22; Asphaltic Concrete and Paving Blocks, $63,-810.62.

Foley & Gleeson—Asphaltic Concrete and Stone Blocks, $63,527.57; Asphaltic Concrete and Paving Blocvs, $62,745.37.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Gillespie, the Board will recommend that Council award the contract to Messrs. Foley & Gleeson at the lump sum of $62,745.37.

This contract is for Asphaltic concrete and paving blocks.

Foley & Gleeson, who have secured this contract, are laying the street pavement in Lindsay, which work is unanimously endorsed as first class in every particular. Our City Engineer also approves of our Board of Works award.

It is the intention to prosecute the work of paving the area of our city as above defined with the quickest possible despatch. Should the whole of the area not be completed this fall the work will be continued next spring, and in all probability the paving of other streets taken up and contracts awarded.

In regard to the situation on George street, the Street Railway Co. will have their new rails here in September so that they can take care of their road bed in the way of street pavement requirements.

Bad Crossings.

Ald. Duffus offered that the C.P.R. crossings on Stewart and Park streets and that of the Grand Trunk on Smith street, near Jackson Park are in bad shape. And nearly all the street crossings on Charlotte street, from the Grand Trunk to Park street are bad. Then the crossings at the Colonial Weaving Co. and at the intersection of Perry and Stewart streets should receive attention. Attention will be directed to these needs.

ITALIAN STARTED ENGINE, G. T. R. HAS DISMISSED HIM

Railway Investigation Showed What Tomgtomis Had Done But Crown Will Investigate on its Own Account

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Blame for starting the big engine that ran amuck through the terminal yards yesterday was laid on an Italian by the name of Tomgtomis at the investigation by the G.T.R. officials on Thursday. The engine had come in from Sarnia, in charge of Eugene Burnett, a tried official of the road. It was left near the Bathurst street coal chutes, to take on coal. Tomgtomis was set to work to coal the engine, but after the crew had left he concluded the coal could be better loaded from one of the other chutes. So he threw open the throttle. Employes saw what he was doing, but too late, as the engine and gotten up speed. He jumped off soon after the starting of the engine and escaped injury. He ran away. On Thursday he came to work as usual, and was recognized as the man responsible. So he appeared before the investigators.

Supt. R. E. Whittenberger this morning stated that the Italian had been dismissed, the evidence at the investigation having clearly shown that he started the engine.

With a view for placing the blame for the runaway, Crown Attorney Corley has instructed Inspector of Detectives Kennedy to have his department also investigate. The Crown Attorney pointed out that many level crossings were passed and there might easily have been a serious accident.

The two engines that got on the rampage were damaged, but not seriously. On Thursday the big fellow was hauled to the Mimico shops. Examination revealed about $500 damage. Repairs were immediately commenced.

COUSIN SHOOTS FARMER; WOMAN HAD BEEN HURT

Fued Between Two Sections of Family to Head Over Property--Both Sides Had Guns

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—John McGibbon jun., a farmer, residing at Dalesville, a village about six miles north ol Lachute, Que., was shot and killed by his cousin, Leonard James McGibbon, in a family altercation. The tragedy is the culmination of a fued which has existed for some years between the families of Peter and John McGibbon over the disposal of some property. A jury empanelled by Coroner Wales, of St. Andrew's, last night brought in a verdict of manslaughter, and awarrant has been issued for the arrest of Leonard McGibbon. High Constable Ouelette, of St. Scholastique, was expected to arrive to-day to make his arrest.

Shot as Woman is Struck.

Twelve years ago the farm of Peter McGibbon was put up for sheriff's sale and was bought in by his brother, John, since which time there has been a feeling of bitter hatred between the two families. According to the story of the tragedy. On Thursday afternoon Peter and his two sons were trespassing on John's farm, when a dispute arose and they were ordered off.

They later returned with a gun. John McGibbon, jun., and his sister went out armed with a gun to meet them, and both sides got into a wordy fight, which led Peter to strike Miss McGibbon to the ground.

Young John threatened to shoot, and followed it up by firing and inflicting a slight flesh wound on Peter, whereupon the latter's son, Leonard, fired at close range, the full contents of the gun taking effect in John's side, just above the hip. The man died within five minutes.

CRUSHED BY HEAVY ROLLER.

Chatham, Aug. 22.—William Gamble, a farmer residing near Paincour, was driving a roller in one of the fields, when the team of horses took fright and ran away. Gamble was knocked from his seat at the top of the roller and thrown under the feet of the horses, the roller passed over his body, resulting in severe injuries.

AFTER VACATION PEEL YOUR DISCOLORED SKIN

(From Broadway Weekly)

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be wise in immediately taking up the mercolized wax treatment. Weatherbeaten skin had best come off, for no amount of "beautifying" will ever make such skin pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the despoiled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and rinse it off next morning with warm water. Minute particles of scarf skin will peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is enough to make any discolored, or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no injury is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.

Burning heat, irritating winds and dirt are such wrinkle-makers that the daily use of the following astringent tonic lotion at this season is highly advisable: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pt. Used as a face bath this is a splendid wrinkle remover and preventive.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 3[illegible] George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

NEVER QUESTIONED HIS OWN METHODS

A Few Sidelights in the Life of J. Pierpont Morgan, Financier and Art Collector

Few men were more widely feared yet more generally trusted than J. P. Morgan. Those who met him only in a business way saw a man rough, emphatic, and repellent, inaccessible almost as the Emperor of Russia when he chose to be, known as the worst man in the world to interview, and as a man who believed absolutely in himself and apparently never questioned the correctness of his method. His friends, however, knew him as a simple, unaffected companion, an interesting conversationalist with keen wit and genial humor. Once a woman asked him why he kept on accumulating money when he already had more than he needed. "I do not love money," Mr. Morgan is said to have replied, "but I do enjoy the excitement, the fun of making it." His office hours were short, and at the close of his business day he left his office and his business behind him. Woe to the person who then approached him on business bent. He cared little for society, but was fond of a good dinner in congenial company, of rare wines, and big black cigars. Wines he partook of with moderation. To cigars he was almost a slave. He was a devoted churchman.

The collection of books and works of art was his chief pleasure, but he had numerous other diversions.

His favorite sport was yachting, and his steam yacht Corsair was one of the largest and most sumptuous private vessels afloat. He was fond of dogs, and kept a large kennel of collies at his country house. As a philanthropist Mr. Morgan was scarcely known publicly. He gave unostentatiously many millions of dollars and yet his name was never connected with a single gift.

Mr. Morgan's collection of art works probably is the most valuable individual one in the world. Once Mr Morgan kept abroad a collection of objects of art valued at $3,000,000 rather than pay the duty on them demanded by the United States Government. It was not alone for his own satisfaction that Mr. Morgan spent millions in his collection of art, books, and antiques. He gave away his treasures almost as fast as he bought them—many of them to public institutions.

Many anecdotes are told of J. P Morgan's methods and mannerism in business dealings and in social affairs. A firm of jewelers who had received a fine pearl decided to send it down to Mr. Morgan and let him have first bid on it. The price was placed at $5,000. The jewel was carefully sealed in a leather-covered box. Mr. Morgan read the firm's communication, opened the box, was delighted with the pearl, and thrust it into his pocket. Calling his cashier he instructed him to draw two checks to the firm of jewelers—one for $4,000, and the other for $5,000. The $5,000 check Mr. Morgan placed in the box that had contained the pearl. He had the package carefully tied and sealed. The $4,000 check he enclosed in a letter to the jewelers, in which he wrote that if the firm was willing to accept that amount for the pearl the box might be returned to him at once and the transaction considered closed. In the event, however, that the firm was unwilling to accept less than $5,000 for the pearl, the $4,000 check was to be returned without delay. Mr. Morgan, with the pearl in his pocket, sent the messenger back, bearing his letter and the box. In less than an hour the messenger returned, fetching the box in which was the $5,000 check. The jewelers had decided to accept the $4,000 offer. Mr. Morgan met one of the members of the jewelry firm at a dinner later, and told him the story of the two checks. The jeweler averred that his firm had lost money on the transaction. "If you were losing money," asked Mr. Morgan, "why didn't you keep the box with my $5,000 check?"

The jeweler answered: "I can understand now how it is that you have earned your place as the leading financier."

WERE ALL MEN OF GENIUS

Darwin Family Probably the Most Famous on Record in the Annals of England.

Events have called attention once more to the wonderful Darwin family, perhaps most fertile in genius of all the families of England.

Dr. Erasmus Darwin, born in 1731, was a physician, poet, philosopher, and member of the Royal society.

His son, Dr. Robert Darwin, was a physician of very high standing and one of the earliest preachers of temperance.

Robert Darwin's son was Charles Darwin, author of the "Origin of Species," and unquestionably the greatest man of science of the nineteenth century.

Charles Darwin left five sons. The oldest did not become famous. The second son, however, George Howard Darwin, who died the other day, was one of the foremost astronomers in Europe.

The third son, Francis Darwin, is author, physician, and has been president of the British association for the advancement of science.

The fourth son, Maj. Leonard Darwin of the Royal engineers, has been president of the Royal Geographical society, and is now the head of the Eugenics Education society.

The fifth son, Horace Darwin, is president of the Cambridge Scientific Instrument company, and member of the advisory committee on military aeronautics.

Three of these men have sons of their own. The name and fame of Darwin are not likely to fail.

By his second wife, old Erasmus Darwin became the grandfather of Francis Galton, founder of the science of eugenics. The annals of British science would be sadly defaced if the work of the Darwin breed were lost.—George L. Knapp in Chicago Journal.

MAKES GAS IT BURNS

Combined Generator and Burner Takes Place of Coal

An ingenious combination gas generator and burner is shown in the illustration. The gas takes the place of coal for the kitchen range. The apparatus sets in what would be the oven of the stove and on a wall bracket near the range is a reservoir of oil. Through a pipe this oil flows into the generator, which converts it into gas. The gas thus formed spreads through a burner pipe where it can be lighted and it heats up the top of the stove just as if there was a coal fire below. An advantage of this device in a house not provided with a regular gas stove is that it obviates the necessity of keeping a coal fire going all day, as it takes only a little while to heat a stove with it and there is no fuel wasted when no heat is needed, which is an item of economy.

All Sorts of Girdles

Girdles and sashes are becoming daily of greater importance, and every imaginable kind of material is used. Braid manufacturers, embroiderers, ribbon houses and silk and cotton merchants are bringing out special lines of goods for making girdles.

These girdles are worn with simple and with elaborate dresses and on the outside of suit jackets and also wraps.

Curious bead girdles and bead necklaces in the bright Bulgarian colors, are shown.

In handbags glaring colors are seen in the form of ornamentation. These effects, however, are more likely to become popular in knitting and as trimming touches.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the Chinaman is far outclassed by his smugglers.

It is impossible for a man to obey the instructions of the Bible to love his neighbor as himself if his neighbor runs a phonograph until 1 o'clock in the morning.

THE LIBERAL PARTY

In discussing the above subject The Ottawa Citizen says that if the political contest were billed for the fall of this year there would be almost a good case for police interference. The party of pretence, trading on its reputed power of a by gone generation, would be outclassed to such a hopeless degree that in the arena there might be danger of a fatal knock-ont. Fifteen years of bloated power and profigacy has left the Liberal machine fermented with poisonous toxins, so that even after two years in the hills, with every opportunity to train and get rid of its superfluous tissue, there is not the least evidence that the decadent party could land one punch home to effect.

In the reciprocity contest of 1911 its famous uppercut at the high tariff tax failed because of an undermined constitution. In the latter exhibition contests it has shown no signs of training on into fitness again. Merely relying upon its knowledge of ring craft it hopes to dodge in a blow through the guard of the opposing party — to come back to power on a fluke. Such would appear to be the degenerate condition of the Liberal party to-day. Hugging a discredited policy without the first semblance of liberalism; making a pretence of fitness in the forlorn hope of a win by craft in the next contest.

No More Asthma A Cure Discovered That Really Does Cure

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. It is a scientific surprise, a perfect marvel the way it brings old chronics back to health. You will say so yourself after you have used it once, say so after the very first time. Ever since people first began to have asthma, Catarrhozone is certainly the best remedy discovered.

Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary, writes:—"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

BELLE OF VILLAGE

Edna Wilbur's Startling Discovery; New and Fashionably Dressed Admirer a Burglar.

By WALTER J. DELANEY.

Edna Wilbur never looked prettier in her life than upon the day when the "Industrial Exchange" opened at Millville. Imagine an old-fashioned double store made over into a modern emporium of trade, permanent counters and gaily decorated booths all about it. Add an airy dancing room overhead and you have a mere idea of what the Village Young Ladies' club had done for the factory hands down the river and the families of farmers all over the county.

The original idea of this progressive move for the social and business betterment of the district had been born in the busy little brain of the Belle of the town. Edna and her girl friends had got rich old Jabez Hull to fix up the ancient building. Her club had set everybody at fancy work. The village merchants had donated some of their goods liberally, even the farmers had subscribed handsomely. The place was to hold a sort of permanent fair every Saturday. Admission was free; all the articles carried were for sale or exchange. It was hoped to encourage the poor mill girls in needlework, and give to all cheap household knicknacks at cost price.

Then there was to be a band, a supper, a clean, instructive picture show, and dancing. The social and economic features of the enterprise appealed to everybody, and now, just before dusk, a great throng crowded the busy street in front of the Exchange.

It was a pretty sight. The doors of the place were crossed and recrossed with white ribbon. In the center of these, just over the knob of the door, was a great vari-colored rosette. All life, animation and beauty, Edna stood at the threshold. The mayor of the town, in evening dress, lifted his glossy silk hat, first to her and then to the crowd. In a neat little speech he welcomed his townsmen to the Exchange. Then he drew a pair of silver scissors from his coat pocket. Edna took them, placed them across the ribbons, and snipped them in twain. They floated like streamers in the gay breeze, and, pressing in the doors, the mayor proclaimed loudly:

The Edge of the Sash Imprisoned His Neck.

"The Exchange is open—welcome."

A fashionable dressed young man pressed his way through the throng, about the first of those to enter the Exchange. He was at Edna's side as she passed into the cashier's booth.

"The sweetest of all flowers for the belle of the occasion," he said impressively.

Edna received the bouquet of redolent lilies of the valley with a happy smile and secured them at her corsage.

"A handsome couple—look as if they were mated for one another," said an observant visitor to his companion. "Who is he? Stranger, I see."

"Yes," was the reply. "Been here only a few days. Chicago stock broker, they say, taking a little vacation. Calls himself Eugene Allen."

"Rich, I suppose?"

"Pretends to be. Acts a pretty active figure—automobiles and all that. Taken quite a shine to Miss Wilbur."

Edna was very busy, as were all her assistants, for the next hour. There was a great throng, and the affair was certainly a wonderful success. More than once Edna stole a hurried, disappointed look about the room.

"Why did Robert not come?" she asked herself, and her rosebud lips pouted slightly. She had been flattered at the graceful attentions of Allen, but why had not Robert Dean been on hand, as she had anticipated, as she had a right to expect?

They were lovers, almost engaged. They were neighbors, their homes near together. Mary Dean was Edna's closest friend. And then as Edna at last saw Robert enter the room, a handsome brunette, a stranger to her, on his arm, her face drew down and she turned her back deliberately upon Robert as he smiled at her.

Purposely she evaded him after that. When the band struck up and the dancing began upstairs, she allowed the handsome stranger, Mr. Allen, to take most of the dances on her card.

"I want to introduce somebody to you, Edna," Robert managed to say to her in a crush at the supper.

"Some other time," retorted Edna pettishly, and when the dance was over she again evaded Robert, seeking for her with a hurt, mystified look on his face.

Edna allowed Mr. Allen to see her home and to carry the handbag containing the proceeds of the sales. She listened to his handsome compliments, and spitefully compared his elegant ways with those of the plain but honest Robert. When she got home, however, and reached her room, she sat down with a sigh and a dull pain at her heart.

Her parents were away visiting a relative in another town. Only deaf old Aunt Jane was in the house. The place seemed dreadfully silent and lonesome. It was the more so, because of the sentiment that she and Robert had become estranged. Before she knew it, seated in a comfortable arm chair, Edna was asleep.

She woke to the echoes of something falling, a human groan. The light was still burning in the room. With a low cry Edna sprang to her feet. A startling picture was revealed to her.

The window overlooking the porch roof was partly open, and held so by a masked man. The edge of the sash imprisoned his neck. One arm was reached through, striving to reach a pistol that had fallen from his hand and rolled over near the dresser.

In a flash Edna realized that the intruder was a burglar, who had opened the window to have it fall upon and imprison him. Upon a table lay the handbag and her diamond sunburst pin. There, too, were the silver scissors.

The man was struggling to force up the sash. Edna summoned up all her courage. She darted to the table, seized the scissors and ran at the intruder.

"If you move," she cried in a tremulous but brave voice, "I will stick you with the scissors!"

What should she do? She dared not leave the room—the burglar might release himself. Her eyes fell upon a toy telephone apparatus near another window and an electric button near it. It ran over the trees to the Dean home. Robert had rigged it up to enable his sister and his love to hail each other when they liked. The button operated a wire electrically charged, and ringing bells at either end of the line. Soon there was a response. The bell rang in the room.

"Mary! Mary!" gasped Edna, "rouse somebody, send over at once. There is a burglar here!"

Inside of five minutes Robert Dean, his sister, their brunette visitor and a hired man hailed Edna from the garden. She called to them to force a way into the house. The burglar was unmasked—behold Mr. Eugene Allen!

"Oh, Robert! Robert!" sobbed the repentant Edna, when the elegant stranger was safe in the town jail and her lover had explained that the dark brunette was his cousin. "Can you ever forgive me?"

"I can always love you," replied Robert staunchly, "and that should answer every question."

NO MIDDLEMAN THERE

Sacramento, California, Plans Up-to-Date Market for Consumer

The city of Sacramento, California, has taken the first step for a free public market. It will be located in the new agricultural district across the river from Sacramento and is intended to be a meeting-place for the farmer with his produce to sell directly to the citizens. Located immediately adjacent to the river landings and present wholesale warehouse district, it is figured in 1930, when the metropolitan area of Sacramento should be much over 250,000 population, that this market at West Sacramento will be in the most central location that could be wished. In designing the the market, the architects have had in mind the experience of Rochester, Albany, Montreal, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Paris, and other cities of France and England.

HANDY CANDY BOX

Separate Compartments Display Every Piece at Once

An Illinois man has designed a candy box which displays each piece of candy when the box is opened. The receptacle is made in three sections, two of them hinged, and each section is divided into two compartments. The middle section is hinged on the lowest section and folds in upon it, a lid closing it so that the contents are not spilled. The top section is hinged to the top of the body of the box and folds in upon the middle section. This also has a lid to keep the contents in. For assorted candies such a box provides good display, as the different kinds of confections may be kept separate. Furthermore, with every sweet in view it is possible for a fastidious woman to select which she likes best without having to burrow down to the bottom of three or four layers.

Unique Thefts of Silver

Two high graders arrested at Cobalt charged with stealing bullion had a remarkable method for obtaining the precious metal. One of the men worked in the refinery in charge of a furnace where bullion was melted. He would dip a cold steel bar into the molten metal and a certain amount of silver would congeal around the bar. This would then be drawn out, several pounds at a time being obtained this way, and the process would be repeated.

SHOT A MOOSE

Thrilling Experience of an Edmonton Young Woman

Feira Plymate, an athletic young woman living with her parents surprised a party of seasoned big game hunters by dropping in its tracks a big bull moose the third day out on a trip in the back country, about three miles from Twatinaw, on the Athabasca line, north of Edmonton. One shot from her 38-55 rifle did the trick. Miss Plymate was tramping through the brush four miles from camp when she heard the crackle of the underbrush as the moose came bounding through. The party had spread out to cover a wider area and there was no one within a considerable distance of her. Miss Plymate raised her ribe and took aim, hitting the moose square in the neck. The animal stumbled a few yards and fell.

O. R. F. U.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—The Ontario Rugby Football Union will hold its general meeting for the reception of applications and to group the clubs on Saturday, Sept. 6, at the King Edward Hotel at 3 o'clock.

The senior series will be composed of the Hamilton Rowing Club, Toronto R. and A.A., Parkdale and Ottawa College. All four clubs will be strong. Parkdale Torontos and Ottawa College will be strengthened over last year while Hamilton will divide the great quantity of senior material in the Mountain City with the Tigers.

The junior series will be even larger than in 1912. Applications from five new junior clubs in Toronto have already been received, and in addition there will be a group in Kingston and vicinity. It is expected that the number of junior teams this fall will constitute a record, including the new clubs between 24 and 25 teams will be grouped on Sept. 6, at the meeting. St. Michael's College will be playing in the junior series of the Intercollegiate Union this season.

Parkdale will be formidable in the senior series. They have several crack players who will fill the weak places of last year's team. T. R. and A. A. have their 1912 team intact and more than one star in addition. Both clubs will have jdnior teams, as will also Hamilton Rowing Club.

The O.R.F.U. captured both the senior and junior Canadian championships last fall.

Bladder and Kidney Troubles

Are caused by poisoning impurities which clog the Kidneys; intense pain is the result and sleepless nights follow. The patient becomes annoyed with sharp pains shooting through the back and up the spine. These pains often so violent and acute that the victim suffers the greatest agony and is driven almost to despair. The refuse and sediment which settled in the Kidneys must be removed in order to procure relief.

SANOL, the Kidney Cure, is the only reliable remedy which has a combined effect of acting on the kidneys, and restoring them to their natural condition, and removing Kidney, Bladder and Gall Stones by dissolving same. It cleanses and purifies the system, strengthens and invigorates the Kidneys, and encourages proper filtration. It relieves the pain and gives strength and energy to the body. Price $1.50 per bottle.

Pardoned Convict Breaks His Good Resolutions, but Is Saved by Dying Woman.

By FRANK FILSON.

"Come along, 753," said the head warder cheerfully, clapping an enormous hand upon the young man's shoulder. "The chief wants to say goodbye to you."

The convict stepped out of his cell and followed the head warder obediently. Three years of discipline had taught him to ask no questions, to demand no reasons. He hardly dared to hope that the pardon board had granted his petition.

"'Tention! Eyes front!" said the head warder mechanically, and the convict mechanically obeyed. But the governor stretched out his hand and took the convict's in a hearty clasp.

"The board of pardons has granted you your freedom, Graves," he said. "I strongly recommended it at the last monthly meeting. I know that you will run straight in future. If you shouldn't, remember that the dishonor and shame will be mine, and it will be just so much harder for the rest of us. Here's a letter from your mother in Mapleton," he added, handing the missive to the prisoner.

"Yes, sir, I'll run straight in future," he answered.

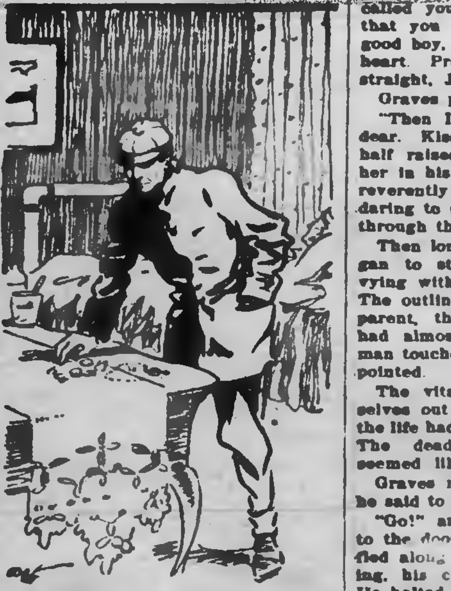
"Good," answered the governor. "And my advice to you is, go home to your mother."

He grasped the prisoner's hand again and dismissed him.

As a matter of fact, Philip Graves was deeply moved, but for all that he had not the least intention of returning home. During his period of imprisonment he had been thoroughly initiated into the possibilities of crime by his fellow convicts. He would have liked to re-establish himself in the favor of his fellow citizens, but the idea seemed laughable. His old mother in Mapleton was doubtless able to exist without him; his sisters held good positions and could take care of her. He took the train to the capital and spent his money in two days' of riotous living.

The second evening found him penniless. It was cold and dismally wet, and the long tramp through the dismal suburbs had not raised his spirits. He sat down on the sidewalk and buried his head in his hands. That was the first time he had ever seriously considered the future.

"Forging's a mutt's game," one of the other prisoners had told him soon after he was brought to the jail.



There Was Somebody in Bed.

"Take my tip, lad, cracking a crib's the only thing worth while. Why, all you've got to do is to walk in after the lights are out, take your pick, and walk out again. But say, don't carry a gun, for that don't pay. Just trust to your legs if you have to get away quick."

A middle-aged man in a well-made suit, and bearing all the marks of prosperity, hurried by, not casting a glance at the ex-convict at his feet. Graves rose and followed him. At the end of the street was a long country lane, with finely-built, scattered houses lining it, each in its garden. The man turned into one and let himself into the home with a key. Graves watched him. Then he felt in his pockets. At the bottom of one, hitherto overlooked by him, was a dime. Graves knew where he could get all the whisky he wanted for a dime—if he chose the time when the bartender was not looking his way. He went there.

"Take your fill, boy," said the bartender good-naturedly, looking round just at the least appropriate time. "I guess you need it on a night like this."

Graves tossed off the fiery liquid, set down the glass, and went out.

He walked the streets until his head swam from the liquor. It was very dark and the rain fell steadily. Graves was wet to the skin. He walked an immeasurable time, until at last, looking up, he saw the house into which the prosperous man had entered.

A flame of anger burned in his heart, hotter than the fire in his brains. Good resolutions! What were they for such as he? They were for the rich, for those who could afford to keep the laws! He was no fool to be bound by such a code.

He crept up the garden, felt a lower window, and found that he could raise it. A minute later he was groping inside a dining room.

Cautiously he struck and lit a match. Then he gasped in astonishment. For on the buffet, carelessly laid out, was a galaxy of silver plate. That central piece—that flat tray, which he could put under his coat and walk away with, must be worth a couple of hundred dollars alone! He would take it on his way out. He opened the door and crept upstairs.

There were two rooms at the head of the first flight. The door of one was closed; the second door was open, and inside, by the light of the lowered gas jet, Graves could see a table strewn with rings. He crept in and stood staring at them. There were nearly a dozen of them—diamond, pearl, sapphire, cat's eye, flashing emeralds and rubies. It was the dressing table of some wealthy woman who. . . .

There was somebody in the bed!

An old, white-haired woman who lay there, hardly breathing, flat, with white hands picking at the bed covers!

Graves snatched up a handful of the baubles and turned. Suddenly two powerful arms caught him as in a vise and he looked up into the face of the middle-aged man.

"Come outside, you—you dog!" whispered the other. "Caught in the act, you dirty sneak-thief! Let me look at your face! So you would rob a dying woman, would you? I'm going to strip the hide off you before I call the police."

"I didn't know—" Graves babbled.

A feeble voice from the sick bed made both start.

"John!" whispered the sick woman. "John! It's you, dear John: I knew you would come home!"

The captor and the captive stood motionless, thrilled by the pity in the voice.

"John, won't you come here and kiss your old mother?" pleaded the voice. "I knew that I should live to see you again."

The middle-aged man whispered into the ear of the thief.

"Her son was killed in an automobile accident last week. Now's your chance. I'll let you go if—"

"You're coming to me, aren't you, John?"

"Yes," muttered the thief, and with unsteady footsteps he staggered toward the bed, found it, and sank down upon a chair. He felt the hand of the old woman close upon his.

"Are you John? Are you my boy? I cannot see. Tell me that you are John," the old woman whispered.

"Yes, I am John," the convict whispered back.

She said no more for a while but seemed to doze. Gently, by almost imperceptible degrees, the man in the room lowered the gas light till it was only a little twinkling flame in the darkness. And the thief sat motionless, his hand held tightly in the light clasp of the dying woman.

After a long time she roused herself. "Johnny," she whispered, "turn me so that I can put my lips to your ear." And the convict turned the shrunken old body reverently, and with a new and strange fearlessness. Then the old woman spoke again, and so low and weak were her tones that he could only grasp them by bending his ear till her lips touched it.

"Johnny," she said, "I want you to be a good boy after I am gone. I want you to be good for your old mother's sake, Johnny. There's nobody will ever love you as I have done—nobody in the whole world. You've been wild, Johnny, dear, and people have said hard things about you and called you hard names, but I know that you were my boy Johnny, my good boy, and that you were good at heart. Promise me you'll always run straight, Johnny!"

Graves promised.

"Then I can go in peace, Johnny, dear. Kiss me." The dying woman half raised herself and Graves took her in his arms and pressed his lips reverently to her forehead. And not daring to stir, he remained thus half through the night.

Then longer—till the gray light began to steal through the shutters, vying with the low glow of the gas. The outlines of the room became apparent, the objects visible. Graves had almost fallen asleep when the man touched him on the shoulder and pointed.

The vital fires had burned themselves out; gently and imperceptibly the life had faded out of the old frame. The dead woman's placid smile seemed like a benediction.

Graves rose up. "I'm ready now," he said to the man.

"Go!" answered the man, pointing to the door; and the ex-convict shuffled along the carpet, his face working, his cheeks stained with tears. He halted at the door, hesitated, and shuffled back again.

"I don't want to go," he muttered. "I want you to call the police. Say," he went on, in impassioned accents, "I've got an old mother like that in Mapleton, and she's alive and wants me to come home. Do you think if I went that I could ever become a man again? I've been in prison three years."

The man's hand fell on his shoulder, just as the head warder's had fallen. He seemed sorry for him; it was odd, to come to think of it, how kind men were to one another.

"My dear fellow, I believe that Providence sent you here—Providence, which is only another name for God," said the man. "Go back and face the world anew in your home town."

Why, that was just what the governor had said!

He held his hand out and the other took it and grasped it warmly. Suddenly Graves remembered. He pulled out from his pocket a handful of shimmering rings. He placed them upon the dressing table and walked lightly out of the room. He did not shuffle now, for his heart was filled with lightness and for the first time in years he was at peace.

"I'm going home!" he murmured.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Big Mountain Lion

Maddened when wounded, fighting to the death, and attempting to tear the bodies of his assailants to shreds, a big mountain lion was shot at Half Moose Bay, 50 miles up the coast from Vancouver, B. C., by Thos. Hare, who subsequently collected the bounty on same. Hare, his brother and the latter's wife were passing through the woods, when the lion made his appearance and plunged towards them. Though wounded several times he still came on. Ammunition was running low, but, taking his last aim, Thomas Hare sent a shot through the brute's head as he was making his final spring, and it rolled over in the snow dead. When measured it was found to be seven feet from tip to tip.

FOR THE THIN WOMAN

Diet and Daily Habits Must be Carefully Looked After

The proper food for the thin woman must be considered. Where good will can be had there can be nothing better to make flesh. Starchy foods, like macaroni, potatoes and the like, are important flesh builders. Well cooked rice sweetened and eaten with cream is easy of digestion and very nourishing. Baked potatoes with lots of butter should be on the list daily for the thin woman. Butter is nutritious, fattening and usually liked. Pickles are not good.

For breakfast, fresh fruit, like peaches, melons, pears, grapes and bananas, when the latter agree. Sometimes this food is found hard to assimilate, and it is in the assimilation of food that flesh is gained.

Pork, lamb or rare beef, breakfast bacon, well baked biscuit, milk or cream toast, eggs poached or soft boiled, potatoes baked or mashed, but not fried; a cup of coffee, with or without cream, but with sugar; very little tea—this should be a palatable meal, and food does no good if not agreeable to the taste; no longer than five hours between meals, and a glass of milk taken between; whatever is liked for luncheon and dinner, with such desserts as custards, tapioca, sago; no thin soups, but purees of onions, potatoes, rice and the like.

The daily bath and plenty of sleep are helps in gaining flesh. If it taxes the strength too much to take the bath before breakfast try the afternoon, long enough before the evening meal to permit of the hour's rest in kimono and without corset. The water should be as liked. Tepid is best, never very hot, as it will weaken, and the cold spray must finish if freedom from colds is to be maintained. Of course the room should be warm, and chilling must be avoided.

Wagner's Thirteen's

It is a comfort to know that thirteen is not invariably connected with bad luck. Richard Wagner revelled in the figure; he was born in '13, and the sum of the figures of the year also made 13; his name had 13 letters; he composed and published 13 great works, and his real career commenced on the 13th day of the month. "Tannhauser" was completed on April 13, and produced in Paris for the first time on March 13. Wagner left Bayreuth on September 13; he also happened to leave this world on the 13th day of the month.

Natural Blankets

Nature is kind in Ecuador. When a native wants a blanket he goes to a demajagua tree and cuts from it a strip of peculiarly soft, thick bark five or six feet long. This is dampened and beaten until the flexibility of the sheet is much increased. The rough, gray exterior is next peeled off, and the sheet dried in the sun. The result is a blanket, soft, light, and fairly warm, of an attractive cream color. It may be rolled into a compact bundle without hurt, and with ordinary usage will last for several years.

INSPIRED THE BOYS

Chaucer Elliott Was a First Class All-round Sport

Chaucer Elliott, all-round sport, than whom in his day no Canadian had a better athletic record held his friends by his magnetic personal qualities. At any line of sports he was equally at home, though baseball, rugby, and hockey appealed to him most of all. He was perfectly at home in any company. He had a fund of good stories, and his experiences were always interesting, especially as he had the happy faculty of invariably seeing the humorous side of things. He was of a happy-go-lucky, roving disposition, and wandered around a great deal in his lifetime. The great secret of his success in coaching was not so much what he taught the players, but the inspiration he gave them to do their very best all the time. As a referee he enjoyed the complete confidence of the players, and as a consequence he was always in great demand. The harder the task, the better he liked it, and no gamer man ever stood in shoe leather

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

SCIENCE OF BAKING AND BREAD MAKING

Why a Loaf is Rounded on Top and Some Developments While in the Oven

The time for the baking of a loaf of bread varies with the size and weight of the loaf, the process followed, and the kind of oven employed, as well as with the temperature. Small varieties, such as rolls and buns, require only a temperature of about 210 to 235 degrees and from 15 to 20 minutes for baking; the larger loaves will need an oven temperature ranging from 388 to 420 degrees and the time required will be from 30 to 40 minutes. Rye breads or the still heavier kinds, such as pumpernickle, require from 45 minutes to one and a half hours for perfect baking.

Although the temperature of the oven is between 300 and 400 degrees, the bread never reaches this heat. The crust, which is most exposed to the heat, attains a temperature of only 150 to 180 degrees; the high heat causes the outer covering of the loaf to caramelize. The processes going on inside the bread are about as follows: During baking the fermentation still continues and forms 42 degrees carbon dioxide gas, which raises the dough. At that heat the bacteria are able to live. The milk bacteria are still active at 60 degrees. As long as the micro-organisms in the dough are not killed, the dough is not considered matured.

Owing to the bottom of the oven being hotter, the lower part of the bread absorbs the heat more quickly and thereby builds up its crust, and at the same time checks the expansion of the gases. From the top, the pressure seems to be less effective. Because it requires longer to build up a solid crust under this influence, the enclosed gases are hindered in their effort to escape by the crust, which encloses. This results in a rounded top, the lower part on the flat bottom of the oven assuming the form of a solid foundation.

The ideal crust of a perfectly baked loaf of bread should possess the following characteristics: In form it should resemble a dome. Its color should be a golden brown. It should be elastic, not brittle, not too porous, but of good texture.

MINERAL DRESSES

Some Can be Cleaned by Being Placed in Fire

It has remained for the twentieth century to show us the advantages of garments made of minerals. Incredible as it may seem, stone, iron and even glass are now being manufactured into clothes. The latest novelty in women's dresses is represented by robes of spun glass. The cloth comes in shades of white, green, lilac, pink and yellow. The inventor is an Australian, and the goods are as bright and flexible as silk. The first woman to wear a glass dress was of royal rank. It was of a delicate shade of lavender shot with pink, and its peculiar sheen reminded observers of the sparkle of diamond dust.

The Russians are manufacturing a fabric from the fibre of a filamentous stone from the Siberian mines which is said to be of so durable a nature that it is practically indestructible. The materials is soft to the touch and pliable in the extreme, and when soiled has only to be placed in a fire to be made absolutely clean. Iron cloth is largely used to-day by tailors everywhere for the purpose of making the collars of coats set properly. This cloth is manufactured from steel wool, and has the appearance of having been woven from horsehair.

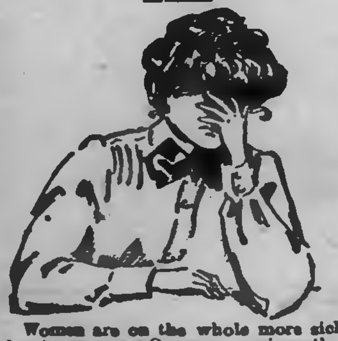
Womens Ailments Caused by Neglect

Proper Treatment Will Quickly Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits.



Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly responded to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, and finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers 25c per box, five for $1.00 postpaid The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

"BACK FROM THE WILD"

The Canadian Press Women, i who journeyed to the end of the track with the Grand Trunk Pacific in June last have demonstrated the fact that women can see and feel and live to tell about it afterward. The clippings from the newspapers represented by these pilgrims reveal flashes of real genius: for instance, Nan Moulton writes:

"The eyes that came back to Edmonton one morning last June were full eyes, eyes full of dreams come true, eyes big with the bigness of mountains, eyes alight with the sun on waters, aware of evening spirits in the mist and a soul of opalescence that in the sweet long twilight softened and glorified the jade-green day loveliness of lake-jewels set in naked loveliness of lake-jewels set in naked

The hundred pairs of eyes were warm with memories of gracious, enveloping hospitality, were sweeter because of hands touched and hearts touched and lives touched and interwoven silence as the train drew around curves of breathless beauty, as the lace of lovely foamy cataracts etherealized some flat blue-green wash of fir, or the moon rose above black peaks and glinted strangely on lonely living snow."

-LAKE AND RIVER NOTES

The steamer Otonabee, formerly of Peterborough, is having a very successful season on Lake Simcoe.

The steamer Stoney Lake is having the most successful season in its history. Captain Scollard and his crew are recognized by the thousands of their excursionists as the "Candy Kids."

The Esturion, Peterborough's latest addition to our local fleet, is carrying thousands of well pleased excursionists to all points on the Canal system.

On Tuesday, the steamer Esturion was lying at Lindsay dock billed to take an excursion from Port Perry to points on Sturgeon Lake. An excursion had been billed per Stoney Lake for the same evening. However, as the Stoney Lake did not arrive at Lindsay in time, on account of the delay by logs, for the advertized excursion, the crowd was saved disappointment by chartering the Esturion on her return.

The rains of yesterday will result in raising the water sheds of the canal several inches.

WATCH IN A PEARL

France can boast of some of the most artistic watchmakers in the world, and one of them has accomplished a wonderful feat by making a watch whose case is a single pearl

This timepiece has just been finished by a Paris jeweller, after fifteen months of the most exacting labor Cutting the pearl was not the least difficult thing about the novel watch.

The pearl was three-fifths of an inch in diameter. The works of the watch are considerably less than half an inch in diameter, and thin in proportion; yet they were made with as much precision as a full-grown watch and have all the up-to-date 'improvements.

There is no danger of these pearl watches becoming common. The cost which included the price of the pearl was $6,000.

WILSON MAY NOT BE ABLE TO HOLD CONGRESS ON MEXICAN ISSUE

Penrose Resolution Comes Nearer to Sentiment of Country—If Congress Seriously Considered War, President Would Be Embarrassed

Washington, Aug. 23.—Woodrow Wilson will make his third visit to the capitol next week, when he will deliver to Congress a speech or message upon the Mexican situation.

Mr. Wilson has been severely criticized in some quarters for an apparent effort to introduce the British or parliamentary form of government. There was resentment at the way in which the currency bill was practically "brought down" by the government, and evidently congress intends to rewrite the same in its own way. In regard to Mexico, senators, have chafed under Mr. Wilson's practice of "going it alone." Some violent speeches have been made in congress by Democrats and Republicans alike. Senator Penrose Pennsylvania, raised a cheer on the floor from the galleries of the senate when he declared that he would rather vote twenty-five million dollars to protect American citizens in Mexico than one hundred thousand to bring them out of the country.

Wilson to Speak.

The Hon. Boise Penrose who is supposed to stand for everything bad as Mr. Wilson is supposed to stand for everything good, certainly put one over on the president and came much nearer to public sentiment on the Mexican question than Mr. Wilson, by his resolution declaring for the protection and preservation of American lives in Mexico, authorizing the president to employ whatever soldiers are needed, and providing twenty-five million dollars to be expended by the executive at his discretion.

LORD HALDANE SAILS ON STR. LUSITANIA FOR STATES

High Chancellor of England to Deliver Opening Address At American Bar Association

London, Aug. 23.—Lord Haldane, high chancellor of England, sailed on the Lusitania to-day to deliver the opening address at the American Bar Association meeting in Montreal.

He spent his last day in England in considerable discomfort. Although he has taken the regal suite on the Lusitania, Lord Haldane and sister were compelled to live in a tiny room ten feet square yesterday, because the remainder of the house had been surrendered to decorators.

Their humble chop, however, was quite in accordance with Lord Haldane's ideas. Although he was earning enormous fees at the English bar, he had the strongest objection to paying more than 25 cents for dinner at the House of Commons, while to-day with a salary of $50,000 in addition to a large private fortune, nothing grieves him more than being compelled to buy a new suit of clothes.

In fact the necessity of this has been the sole fly in the ointment as regards his American trip.

No Interviews.

Lord Haldane refuses to be interviewed. He says it is against the wishes of King George, and deprecates the attitude of Lloyd George, who is always accessible to reporters. He admires Premier Asquith, who never sees newspaper men. When told by a friend recently that he would be obliged to abandon this attitude in America, he replied:

"I don't mind it there. In Rome one does as the Romans do. I shall be spared. If not, I must go through it."

With characteristic thoroughness, Lord Haldane is now devoting his attention to the subject of big ocean liners, working out the probable receipts per trip compared with the outlay. He has come to the conclusion that the future lies with the great liners of the Imperator type.

UP TO THAW TO DECIDE WHETHER HE STAYS OR GOES

If He Declines to Submit to Deportation to Vermont, He Will be Held Prisoner Till October

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 23.—Out of the tangle of legal red tape surrounding the case of Harry K. Thaw, developed this afternoon what was understood to be an ultimatum from the immigration authorities. It was that Thaw, if he so elected, would be deported to Newport, Vermont, as an undesirable after his arraignment in court here on Wednesday, and that the Canadian authorities would wash their hands of the affair. If he declines to submit to deportation he may be held here under the present commitment of being a fugitive and not have a hearing (should his habeas corpus proceedings fail) until the October term of court.

This put the next move in the case squarely up to the prisoner himself, a phase said to be very pleasing to Thaw.

His lawyers conferred with him all forenoon, but with what result was not made known. Roger O'Mara of Pittsburg, reported to be on his way here to "sit on the lid" for the Thaw family, had not arrived this afternoon, and Thaw was still the dominant head of proceedings. The uncertain status of his lawyers has not precipitated an open break, but it was understood that in the absence of any definite advices from the Thaws except to "Do their best" they were marking time and listening patiently to Thaw's rambling advice.

After his admission of last night that he was the Chauffeur that drove Thaw from Matteawan, "Gentleman Roger" Thompson kept his mouth closed to-day. Thaw, however, promptly issued a statement that he had retained counsel to defend Thompson, and that he regarded the chauffeur "A British subject," a victim of false arrest. As a matter of fact, Thompson is said to be the son of a Toronto policeman. For years, however, he has lived in New York City.

RUMOR OF JOHN LINDS MURDER IS DENIED

Another Message Received To-day in Washington From Him.

Washington, Aug. 23.—In reply to urgent inquiries of State Department officials who were harrassed with wild rumors of assassination of special envoy, John Lind, Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City this afternoon cabled an emphatic denial.

CALLS EVELYN'S POSE INSULT TO WOMANHOOD

Indiana Member's Wife Is Very Angry at the Thaw Publicity.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Far from being the heroine which she is posing, or being posed, Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw is a bad example to American girlhood, capitalizing on the publicity given her husband, is the opinion of Mrs. Cullop, wife of the representative from Indiana.

"Mrs. Thaw's press agents are thankfully receiving Thaw's escape as a method to turn the public to the box office," said Mrs. Cullop. "The whole affair is being exploited to her benefit and the detriment of American girls, who view her 'success.'"

Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the Wisconsin Senator, said: "The whole affair is undignified and unwholesome. I feel that any further comment on any phase of the subject would be beneath my dignity."

Girlhood Menaced.

New York, Aug. 23.—"The lurid notoriety and the maudlin publicity that Mrs. Evelyb Nesbit Thaw has managed to get out of her unfortunate husband's escape from an asylum not only is disgusting to the sane-minded public, womanhood and motherhood of the whole United States Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the Housewives' League, said to-day.

That a girl like Mrs. Thaw, if we may believe the story we got from her own lips, is made a heroine by the newspapers, is bound to give many young girls a wrong idea. Unsophisticated and romantic girls, especially those who are 'stage struck'—and most girls are at some period or other—are apt to get the idea that the only way to achieve their ambition is to follow the course of Evelyn Nesbit.

C. P. R. CANNOT BUILD OWN CARS

Owing to Growth of Business They Have Been Compelled to Place Out Contract.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—For the first time in ten years the C.P.R. have found it necessary to have dining cars constructed outside their own shops.

The phenominal growth of this part of the railway company's business made this imperative, as it would have been an impossibility to construct the requisite number of cars called for by the dining car department.

As a consequence two large orders for the building of these cars have been given to American firms. One order for thirty cars of the latest design has been placed with the Pullman Car Company of Chicago and a similar order with Barney & Smith of Dayton, Ohio.

NO CANCER CURE YET DISCOVERED

London, Aug. 23.—The annual report of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, presented by Dr. E. F. Bashford, the general superintendent contains two points of general interest, first, that there is as yet, in the opinion of the experts, no cure for cancer known to science; and second, that the disease is evidently not due to a parasite, but to some intense fundamental "instinct" or degeneration in each particular individual in whom the cancer develops. The tendency of the cancer cells is to build up a new existence by seizing and converting the old cells into new forms of life. In doing so the old form of life is destroyed and the individual perishes.

PETITION POLICE TO CLOSE CHINESE DENS

Gambling Among Chinamen in Montreal Has Grown to Serious Extent.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—A request that chief of police Campeau probe gambling conditions among the chinese of Montreal and put an end to games of chance such as fan tan, dominoes and other methods used to separate the wily Celestial from his money, is contained in a petition which has been drawn up at the instance of leading Chinese in this city.

The petition sets forth that the gambling evil among the Chinese here is extensive, and that the Celestials of Montreal are suffering greatly from it, the gambling places. Appeals from wives and children, both here and in China, brought the matter to general attention in the Chinese colony and a determined effort will be made after the petition is widely signed, to stamp out the evil.

WEDDING BELLS

GILCHRIST—EDGAR

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's Church, Sundridge on Friday, August 8tn at 2 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Havergal Edgar, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edgar was united in matrimony to Mr. George McCuaig Gilchrist, of Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Murphy, Rural Dean of West Simcoe, assisted by Rev. C. F. Pinnington, incumbent of St. Paul's. The Church was attractively decorated with an arch of ferns and white asters and the chancel steps were banked with tall ferns and marguerites. Miss Isabel Sneath, of Toronto presided at the organ and played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The choir sang "O Perfect Love," as the wedding procession came up the aisle.

The bride who was given away by her father wore a gown of ivory charmeuse satin draped with Chantilly lace embroidered with pearls, and a beautiful veil with motifs, inset of lace and seed pearls. She wore the groom's gift, a pearl necklace and carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley and white otchids. The two bridesmaids Miss Annie and Bessie, sisters of the bride, looked very pretty in cream shadow lace dresses and shower bouquets of coral sweet peas. They wore the groom's gifts of pearl and amethyst pendants. The groom was supported by his brother, Dr. A. J. Gilchrist, F.R.C.S., of London, England. The ushers were Mr. J. A. Gilchrist and Mr. Allan E. Cuthbertson. During the interval while the register was being signed, Rev. H. R. Pickup, of Toronto, sang "Because."

After the ceremony in the church a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Tables were very prettily arranged under a large marquee on the lawn. The bride's mother wore a gown of black charmeuse satin with rose point lace, and Mrs. Gilchrist, mother of the groom, wore a beautiful gown of white satin veiled in black ninon. Toasts were proposed and fittingly replied to by Rev. Canon Murphy, Rev. H. R. Pickup, Dr. Gilchrist, of Orillia and the groom.

The happy couple left for Washington, New York and Atlantic City and on their return will reside in Toronto. The bride travelled in a cadet blue suit with small hat and plume to match and wore a corsage bouquet of pink rose-buds and lily of the valley.

As the train pulled out all the local mill whistles joined with their many friends in giving a parting salute.

The out-of-town guests, who were present for the wedding were:—Mr and Mrs. James Edgar, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. John Gilchrist, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gilchrist, Oro; Dr. and Mrs. Gilchrist, Orillia; Dr. A. J. Gilchrist, London, England; Mr. J. A. Gilchrist, Toronto; Rev. Canon and Mrs. Murphy, Allandale; Rev. H. R. Pickup, Toronto; Mrs. Biggar, Montreal; Mrs. Baikie, Sudbury; Miss Sneath, Toronto; Mr. A. E. Cuthbertson, Toronto; Mrs. French, North Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Ard, South River; Dr. and Mrs. McComb, South River; Miss Laura Knight and Miss Jessie Wilson, Burk's Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, Magnetawan.

"ME FOR TORONTO AND WIFE," SAID AULL SATURDAY

Intends to Live Economically in St. Louis—"We Will Walk First, A Limousine Later

Cobourg, Aug. 23.—Robert Aull is still in Cobourg, and in an interview to-day said: "I am going to Toronto about the middle of next week, and will then take up proceedings against the annulment of our marriage, through my solicitor, Mr. Hall, and if I am successful we, I mean Mrs. Aull and myself, will go to St. Louis, and take up our residence. We will have to live economically at first, and when we are out shopping we will walk. The limousine will have to come later.

"On Thursday morning, I called my wife over the long-distance phone but was refused an interview. Never mind, time will make it all right. I will call her again to-day, when I hope I will be more successful.

"The Lexington affair is off, and I glad of it, for if there had been anything in it, it would have probably taken me out of the country and then I might not have been able to get back.

"I understand that it has been the intention of the Immigration Inspector to deport me, but I am quite safe, as a number of friends, among those the editor of a local paper and the M.P., have helped and persuaded the inspector not to take any action."

In conclusion, he said, "I am going to have my wife no matter what the cost may be. Early this week friends in St. Louis will be here and then me for Toronto and my wife."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and a little cooler.

MACDONALD ARRIVED AT ST. CATHARINES

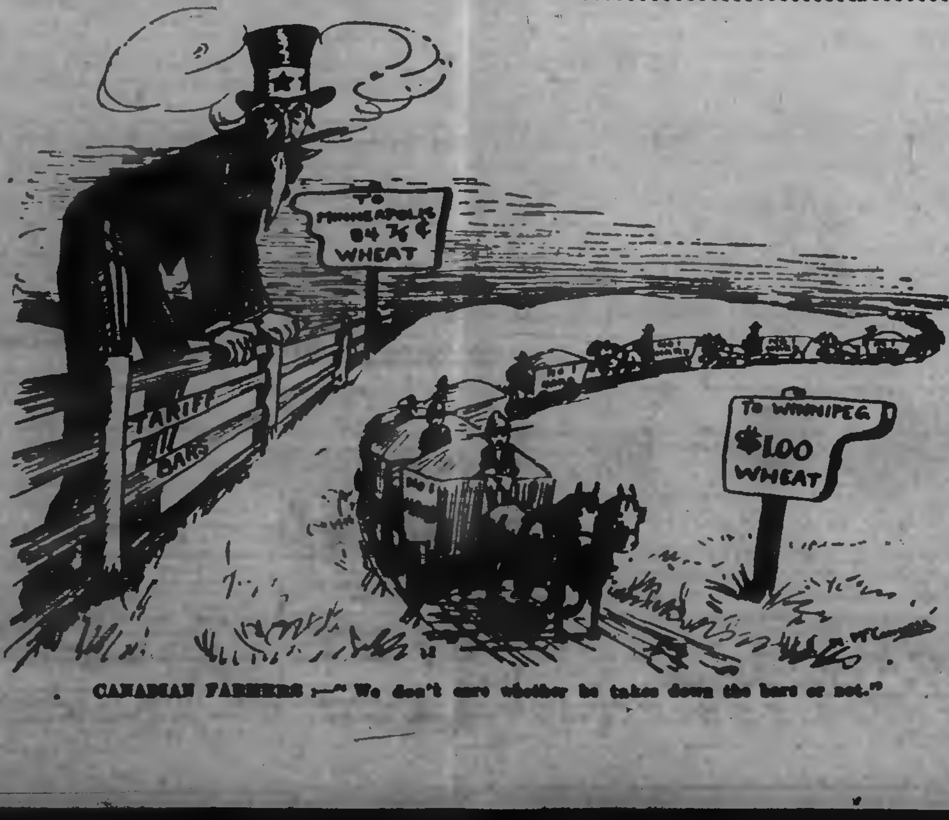
St. Catharines, Aug. 23.—Thomas W. Macdonald, former Chief of Police of Thorold, who was arrested in Philadelphia on a charge of embezzling funds of the town, was brought to St. Catharines to-day, having waved extradition proceedings. Inspector Greer escorted MacDonald as far as Niagara Falls and Officer Pay brought him to the county jail here, no prisoners held on criminal charges being confined in the Welland jail since the fire. MacDonald, who was known in Philadelphia as MacFarlane, will likely be given a preliminary hearing at Thorold on Monday.

KINGSTON SAILOR DROWNED.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 23.—Michael O'Neill, aged 55, was found drowned at the foot of Brock street this morning. Last night he was assisting in the loading of some cattle on a vessel, and it is believed he lost his footing and fell in the water.

DIVED EIGHTY FEET TO DEATH IN TEMPLE

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Henry Korthageb, aged 26, a painter, ended his life this afternoon by diving over the observation railing on the eighty-foot Masonic Temple to the famous death pit on the ground floor, where more than a score of persons have ended their lives. Partial indentification was made by a card in the man's pocket.



CANADIAN FARMERS:—"We don't care whether he takes down the bars or not."

HARVESTING IS IN FULL SWING IN THE NORTH WEST DISTRICT

Yield Per Acre Far in Excess of Last Year and Total Output Substantiates Canada's Claim as "Bread Basket of World

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—With ideal weather conditions, harvesting operations are going apace, and never before has the Canadian prairie west been so brimful of optimism as at present with a mere shadow visible on the golden horizon.

Fields of standing grain which in some cases had been laid almost flat by the heavy storm of last week got up in remarkable short order, and the damage was very slight.

Labor shortage is the principal drawback to be contended with, but until the last of the harvester specials has arrived and the unemployed at present in the west are placed in the field, little can be said as to the number of additional men needed to harvest the best crop Western Canada has ever reaped.

From start to finish of this week there has been a steadily increasing rattle of binders heard throughout the three prairie provinces as the ripening fields of grain mature, with the same satisfactory reports in regard to the quality and quantity.

The yield per acre will be far in excess of last year, and the total output when accurate figures come to hand, will startle the world and substantiate Canada's claim of the "breadbasket of the world."

GERMAN KAISER NOW TAKES TO STRICT TEMPERANCE PLAN

Favorite Drink is Lemonade With Dash of Orange Since He Abolished Beer

Berlin, Aug. 23.—The Kaiser has laid his embargo on beer. His favorite drink is lemonade with a dash of orange, but does not force this beverage upon his guests. The usual wines are served.

The Kaiser, it is said, did not use any alcoholic beverage while on his northern cruise and became convinced that being a teetotaller gave him more energy. He believes immoderate drinking is one of the greatest factors in retarding the development of nations.

BANQUET TO THE RIGHT HONORABLE HERB. SAMUEL

British Postmaster-General To Discuss State-Owned Cables at Chateau Laurier

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—Right Hon. Herbert Samuel, British postmaster-general, who is coming to Canada, will be tendered a banquet by the government at the Chateau Laurier here.

It is understood that one of the most important matters which Mr. Samuel will take up with Mr. Pelletier while here is the subject of a state-owned cable. While in the past Mr. Samuel has not been very favorable to the idea of a state-owned cable, it is understood that recent events have considerably influenced him in that direction.

The agreement entered into by Mr. Pelletier last year with a British syndicate for the transmission of wireless messages at cheap rate is not expected to materiale.

Mr. Samuels was one of the severest of critics, and this, added to other matters that have transpired of late, has, it is said, convinced Mr. Pelletier that a more satisfactory service can be secured in another way, and this will be discussed with Mr. Samuel.

PEACE COMMISSIONERS ARE BUTCHERED BY REBEL LEADERS

Pascual Orozco, Sr. and Others Met Tragic End in Streets of Huautle, Mexico—Crime Committed While in Frenzy of Anger

New Orleans, La., Aug. 23.—The bodies of Pascual Orozoco, senior, and other peace commissioners riddled with bullets, were found in the streets of Huautla, Guerrero, when the Federal troops forced an entrance in that town, according to a special cable despatch from Mexico City to the "Picayune."

According to the cable Zapatista prisoners told the soldiers that Emiliano Zapata slew the commissioners with his own hand while he was in a frenzy of anger at having been forced to abandon the retreat which had served him in many times of stress during the two years he has been closely pursued.

FIRST GAME FORFEITED TO THE PETES; SECOND, WAS A JOKE

There were two games of ball at Riverside Park on Saturday—games as Berlin plays them, and the fans were treated to something out of the ordinary in that line of sport. The first game opened up snappy and it looked as though those present were going to see real baseball, but before the first innings was run off, a dispute arose between Ump. Daly and Pitcher Bramble of the Berlin team over a pitched ball. Bramble was warned by Daly to proceed and leave the job of dispensing decisions with himself (Daly), but Bramble continued to rub it in to the Ump. and was ordered to the bench; this did not stop Bramble and he was ordered out of the grounds. Bradshaw replaced Bramble, and he had the Petes going some until the sixth innings, when left fielder Burns, questioned a decision of Ump. Daly, he was also warned, but persisted in a threatening manner to use abusive language, and he also made several feints as if to strike Ump. Daly with the bat. He was ordered out of the grounds, but refused and Ump. Daly declared the game forfeited to the Petes, 9—0.

The second game was a burlesque. The Berlin aggregation put up the very worst kind of ball, as the score indicates. With Firstbaseman Sweeney in the box, he just lobbed them over the plate and when the ball was hit, no effort was made on the part of Berlin to put the men out. It was no trouble to make a home run, and on several occasions the ball was lost until the runner had crossed plate.

The game was but seven innings, and the Petes played real snappy ball. Many of the spectators left the grounds before the game was finished, but all had the highest praise for the Petes. The score at the end of the seventh innings stood 30 to 5 in favor of the Petes.

At the conclusion of the "game" Umpire Daly was congratulated by many prominent men present on the able manner in which he did his duty.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 356 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

WOMEN FARMERS

Sheep farming and the raising of pigs has been successfully carried out by women in the West. For both of these enterprises a considerable amount of money is required at the outset as suitable quarters for the stock must be built at once after the initial outlay for land and stock, says a writer in the Toronto Globe. Then, too, several people, one or more of whom should have some special training in the caring and raising of stock, would be needed to do the work.

In those districts where an occasional coyote or wolf prowls around the sheep are a great temptation, and being unable to make much resistance are often lost. The pigs, on the other hand, put up a much better fight and so are very seldom attacked. But for any kind of stock the farmer must have water, and this is not always available.

A woman experienced in the farm and ranch life of the West suggests that the intending purchaser obtain some training in the branch or line of work she chooses before going out. Then select the district most suitable, and visit it, or have a competent friend visit it before purchasing. In this way the failure, or at least the poor results that have been the fate of enthusiastic but careless settlers will be avoided.

WHAT QUEENS CAN DO

Several Royal Ladies Could Earn Living if Put to It

The different talents of the royal ladies of Europe are always interesting. Queen Mary, for instance, has considerable talent for painting on china, but a French newspaper has remarked that most of the present-day queens could earn their living at a pinch.

"Carmen Sylva" is a very talented authoress, and could make an income from her literary abilities. Should this fail her, she might live by secretarial work, for she knows several languages, writes shorthand, and is an expert typist.

The queen of the Belgians took a medical degree at Leipzig, and before she was married she used to help Duke Theodore of Bavaria in his practice as an oculist. She is also a skilful motor car driver, and is an able mechanic.

The queen of Norway is a genius at hat trimming, and could easily compete with any high-class milliner. She is very clever at bookbinding, and her versatility extends to painting, which she does uncommonly well.

The German empress and Queen Wilhelmina of Holland are not really so accomplished, but both are fairly good at miniature painting.

WOMAN'S INFERIORITY

Their Education Sacrificed in Order to Provide For Their Brothers

The strongest argument used against woman's insistence upon equality with man is her inferiority to him. The statement, no doubt, contains some truth. Considering men and women of the same sphere of life, be it high or low, we usually find men's problems far more interesting than then women folk's because intellectually men are women's superior.

To illustrate this contention we are told that while the male members of a certain family manage to attain the highest positions, acquire the greatest scholarships, or prove shining lights in one sphere or another, their sisters are apt to remain the simple, untutored and ignorant girls their foremothers were.

In this connection there is a very interesting story told of the family of the Pope. It is a well known fact that Pope Pius X. came from a very humble home, but few imagined to what extent this simplicity reached.

It was, therefore, a matter of no small surprise when His Excellency's late sister admitted her illiteracy. Who could have associated the Pope with a sister unable to decipher the alphabet? But she unhesitatingly explained: "To help Joseph to become Pope the girls had to be neglected." She then went on to tell of the poverty of their parents, and explained that if each child had received even the least attention Joseph could never have attained this exalted position.

Novel as this disclosure may sound to those living under present conditions, when at least elementary education is compulsory, it ought not to astonish the Hebrew women, whose ancestors lived under less favorable circumstances. Perhaps ninety of the one hundred girls remained thoroughly ignorant because there was a boy in the family destined to become a rabbi, for whose education all efforts were strained and all the girls were sacrificed. Poverty never interfered with helping a son acquire learning, because the heir, the "kadish" must know the Torah, even if all other members of the family had to stint themselves of all necessities.

Is it, therefore, surprising that woman's intellect was stunted? For, not because of her natural inability or inadequacy is woman mentally inferior to man, but rather because of her self-sacrifice has man been helped to the superiority. As a matter of fact, every woman given the opportunity to prove her ability has been able not only to hold her own, but usually manages to vie with the greatest man.

IS IT WORTH WHILE?

A few things for which the modern girl is criticized:

For being intellectual.
For being silly.
For getting off a car backward.
For taking an interest in athletics.
For being a little bit "fast."
For being a prude.
For not marrying.
For being anxious to marry.
For being frivolous.
For taking herself too seriously.
For neglecting the baby.
For being a parasite.
For thrusting herself into men's occupations.
For wanting to vote.

OUR JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS.

The Japanese question is not yet settled. We are told that the Government of Japan is quietly making an investigation of conditions in British Columbia in order to find out the exact situation so far as it affects Japanese subjects. Yuya Lamaguchi, a former member of the Japanese Diet, is said to be in Vancouver quietly looking over the situation. The law in British Columbia prohibits Japanese workmen from laboring in the logging camps on government licensed timber, and the law also discriminates against them in the salmon fisheries and now boards of trade in the farming sections are taking up the matter, and at the next session of the British Columbia Legislature it will be asked to enact a law similar to the California Act, forbidding any Chinese or Japanese holding land. There is little doubt that if this should be done the Japanese government will be apt to protest as it did with regard to the California Law, with the probability of the protest being just as effective. After all it is just a question whether any alien has any inherent right to own land in a country to which he owes no allegiance. If we understand aright Japan herself does not adopt this policy, and it is just a question whether it is wise for any Government to adopt it. But the world is now too small to keep Occident and Orient apart much longer, and America must adapt itself as best she can to the problems which the arrival of the Orientals has raised.

Blinding Headaches From Catarrhal Irritation Now Quickly Cured

The New Inhaler Breathing Treatment Does Away With All This Sort of Thing.

"A stuffy cold in the head, or an old fashioned attack of Catarrh are simply ancient history to me nowadays," writes S. Nathan Smith, from Cornwall, Ont. "I used to have the worst kind of blinding headaches. They were torture to me on damp days when my catarrh was bad. I would still perhaps be suffering but for the fact that I saw a friend inhaling Catarrhozone with apparent pleasure, and I got the dollar outfit in the Windsor Hotel Pharmacy in Montreal. I could scarcely believe the way Catarrhozone cleared out my head. It let me breathe easier than I had breathed for five years. Catarrhozone has cleared away every vestige of Catarrh from my system. My breath used to be rank—now it is sweet. My digestion was constantly disordered, but since the catarrh is cured I have no stomach trouble. I am a perfectly well man, and Catarrhozone did it all."

For speakers and singers and persons troubled with an irritable throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh or la grippe, Catarrhozone is of inestimable value.

The inhaler can be carried in your pocket and may be used at any time or in any place.

Large size, guaranteed, and sufficient for 2 months' use, costs $1; smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

IF I HAD A MILLION DOLLARS.

A correspondent asks The Times what a man would do if he suddenly became possessed of a million dollars. Old as the eternal hills is the question. Moses must have dreamed it in the bullrushes, and Joseph passed the time with it while imprisoned in the pit. And now a popular novelist is making it the theme of a serial story in a magazine. The last man will probably think of it as he stands on the latest remnant of the disappearing planet, hoping to the uttermost that the worst is yet to come.

Well, what WOULD you do with a million dollars?

Let's assume, of course, that you've previously lived with your face glued to the grindstone—the plight of most of us—that you have wanted many luxuries and some necessities which you never thought you could afford, and that the million was to be yours in a swift bewildering wad, without string or restriction, and to be spent or hoarded as your fancy decreed.

It's awful easy to say, as you hear folks say almost every day, "I'd do this," or "I'd do that if I had a million dollars," but when they say it they have no expectation of ever being put to the test and no idea at all of how trying the test would be.

You couldn't spend it on eating, you couldn't spend it on drinking, without making yourself very much worse off than if you'd never had a million. You couldn't put it in an enterprise unless you felt capable of doing the managing.

There are few wholesome pleasures which require for their attainment anywhere like so large a sum as a million dollars; and if you went in for vice or selfish indulgence, the more means you had the quicker would be your finish.

And so you could go on parsing this thing out until you simply couldn't escape the conclusion that handling a million without preparation is no small undertaking, and that for the most of us the dangers probably outweigh the imaginable benefits.

In the story the hero used his million to hunt the elusive woman who had been his first love. She probably didn't know he had the million or he would not have had to hunt so long!

HER GREAT MISTAKE

Believed for Years That a Loyal and Loving Husband Was Untrue.

BY SELINA ELIZABETH HIGGINS.

"I can't take them, Mrs. Smith—please do not ask me. I know you are just the finest cook in the world, and I know your good, kind heart, too, but they so remind—remind me—" and the speaker burst into tears, and bowed her head upon the plain but snowy clean kitchen table, as if her heart would break.

Her neighbor reluctantly took up the round, pyramidal package she had just brought over. Where its pinned newspaper cover was half open, the white, tempting crust of a pumpkin pie showed, crowned with a dozen or more rich, brown, flaky doughnuts.

"Don't misunderstand me, Mrs. Smith," said Sarah Ritchie, drying her tears. "If you only knew—"

"I know all about it, dear," answered the kind Samaritan, tenderly. "Don't speak of it again. I do wish, though, that you could come over this evening. We are going to have a little company. It is just the season for cheering up, you know."

"I have some very important business tonight," said Sarah. "It is about the property, and I have to see Lawyer Jones."

"Well, dear, don't fret too much," urged Mrs. Smith in a sisterly way. "I know your cross is a hard one, but you must always count on us as true, willing friends."

Sarah Ritchie, left to herself, sat looking mournfully out of the window at the snowy landscape. "Pumpkin pies and doughnuts" were prosaic themes. All the same, they opened afresh old-time wounds. There had been a time when Sarah, queen of a home, had been famous for thriftiness and excellency in her domestic life. Then there had come a jarring break, and the golden cord of mutual love had snapped in twain.

Approached His Lonely Home.

Briefly told, this was the tragedy of her life: She had married Alfred Ritchie, the bookkeeper in the small hardware business her father conducted. There was a happy year. Then, one day, her husband disappeared. It was known that he went away with the young lady clerk to a distant city. A deficit of five hundred dollars was found. Sarah's father was ill at the time. He died without knowing that his business was on the verge of ruin. All that was left was the house in which Sarah now lived, and that mortgaged.

Before the funeral an express packet came containing five hundred dollars, no name, no explanation. The following week Alfred Ritchie re-appeared in the village. Sarah refused to see him. He wrote her a letter, begging for an interview. Sarah wrote back to him, forbidding him to ever cross her path again.

What could she think but the worst! She learned later that Alfred had taken charge of a grazing farm one hundred miles distant, like herself, leading a lonely loveless life.

Sarah tidied up the place, as was her wont, and the little place was hospitable and neat looking when Lawyer Jones arrived.

She had not seen him since her husband had so strangely gone away.

"I sent for you, Mr Jones," she said, "because the mortgage on the house here is due. I cannot possibly pay it, but I can keep up the interest if you will renew the loan."

"I have a surprise for you," replied the lawyer. "I hardly know how you will take it, but—the mortgage has been paid in full."

"By whom?" exclaimed Sarah, in startled wonder.

"By your husband, Alfred Ritchie."

"He is not my—" flashed out Sarah, and then, controlled the rising tide of resentment. "You tell me this!" she added, her lips compressed. "Under no circumstances will I receive help, pity or interest from the man who has wrecked my life's happiness."

There was a spell of silence. Sarah sat with heaving bosom, a suspicion of angry tears in her eyes. The attorney seemed thinking how he had best say what he had to disclose.

"Will you listen to a story I am at last authorized to tell?" he asked.

Sarah nodded, but with her emotion choked, her face not at all responsive.

"The girl who left the town the day that your husband did, as you know, was a distant relative of your father. Your husband had learned that she had married a wretch who not only would not support her, but influenced her to steal money from her employer, and send it to him. Briefly, Alfred went with her to hunt up the wretch. He compelled him to care for his wife. He borrowed five hundred dollars from a relative to replace the stolen money. He could not publicly explain all this without getting the girl in trouble, and you refused to listen to his explanations. The girl died a month ago, and now he has just written me he is free to have the truth known. By patient labor, always loving you, he saved up the money to pay off the mortgage on your home."

"Oh, how cruel, how wicked I have been!" cried the overwhelmed wife. "How shall I make amends? Oh, tell me, I implore of you!"

And Robert Jones, good lawyer and true friend, told her, and almost at daybreak next morning Sarah was on her way to the herding farm where her husband had been leading his hermitlike life.

Sarah found the bleak place with its cottage in charge of a boy. He told her that Mr. Ritchie had gone away for a few days on important business. At once, with a joy that thrilled her tired heart to mighty devotion and love, she started in "to make things comfortable."

"I will stay here, oh, I must stay—if Alfred will only let me!" she told herself, as she scrubbed and cleaned and dusted. Then she set to thinking of the favorite dishes her husband used to like. She smiled as she recalled his ardent praises for her pumpkin pies and doughnuts.

Trailing through the snow, Alfred Ritchie approached his lonely home two nights later. He noticed that there was a light in the window. Then a sniff of unusual cooking crossed his nostrils. He pushed open the door.

Some one screamed—the startled Sarah—but not until the astonished husband had seen a kitchen table loaded with pumpkin pies and doughnuts, a famous steak frying on the comfortable cooking stove, and the burnished tea kettle singing a merry song of welcome and comfort.

"Sarah," he cried, and his big, loyal heart spoke its earnest delight as he sheltered her in his strong, cherishing arms.

"Oh, Alfred, it is like heaven, all this!" sobbed the penitent Sarah a little later, as they sat in the soft, soothing glow of the burning logs in the great fireplace. "I wish never to leave this. A glad, true wife, I will only ask to care for you, and please you, and love you."

"And pumpkin pies and doughnuts all the year round," rallied Alfred gayly.

"Yes, all the time, dear, if you wish it," replied Sarah, humbly and gratefully.

"Only in a little better home," said Alfred. "I have been away on account of a legacy left me by a relative. It means less toil and finer surroundings. We won't be too grand, though. There must always be your famous pumpkin pies and doughnuts on the bill of fare!"

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have a number of valuable cut glass tumblers that have stuck inside each other. Can you tell me how to get them apart without damage?

Helen H.

Reply—When you have trouble with tumblers or finger bowls getting stuck together, set the lower piece of glass in hot water and fill the upper with cold water. This will expand the one and contract the other enough to slip them apart easily.—Ed.

London, Aug. 23.—If Jack Johnson the American heavyweight pugilist, appears at a London music hall at which eh is booked to give a boxing turn on August 25, none of the other artists will perform, according to a statement issued to the newspapers here last night.

The engagement of a man under bail in the United States on the charge of being connected with the white slave traffic is regarded as a degradation to the profession.

The Variety Artists' federation is expected to act in the matter at a meeting to be held to-day. Several newspapers and a number of clergymen have voiced their strong opposition to Johnson's appearance on the English stage.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Slang, as a means of the proper description of baseball games in the newspapers, came out a little behind straightforward English, according to the verdict if several thousand readers in a Chicago newspaper.

Of a total of 3930 ballots recorded today, 2004 declared for tne English prescribed by the dictionaries and 1926 were in favor of the use of slang.

The figures in favor of the pure English were qualified by several thousand voters who expressed themselves in favor of the use of a moderate amount of snappy, idescriptive phrases. Many voted in favor of slang but advocated the elimination of nicknames.

Numerous college professors and educators declared in favor of slang, while a majority of baseball players, club owners and managers expressed a preference for pure English.

The Canadian filly had a rough passage at the turn, where the interference prevented her from coming through. Surprising, R. D. Carman's colt, had got the lead and though Southern Maid was wearing him down he lasted long enough to win. H. P. Whitney's Pennant, also a Futurity eligible, in his initial appearance, won the first race of the day, R. T. Wilson, jr.'s Montressor won the big race of the day, the Mohawk Selling Stakes, though Scallywag and Barnegat, ruled as equal favorites, with Montressor backed from 10 to 1 to 6 to 1.

Minstrels Wander About the Country Singing to the Peasants

"One of the most interesting characteristics of the Serb race," declared Professor Pupin of Columbia university, "is its imagination and poetic temperament. It is remarkable that a people deprived of education during 500 years of Moslem oppression and robbed of any knowledge of their ancient written language should preserve in the form of extraordinarily beautiful verse and folk lore the details of every important incident in their history.

"Goethe, the famous German poet, mastered the Servian language for the sole purpose of studying the wealth of Serb poetry, which is handed down from generation to generation. The University of Vienna has translated several hundred thousand lines of this poetry, and it is studied to-day with amazement by scholars and litterateurs.

"In Servia and Montenegro alike many blind, lame or crippled minstrels eke out a comfortable existence in traveling from town to town with the ancient one-stringed lute and singing to the peasants the deeds of their fathers and the ancient glory of Servia. From the fourteenth century to the present day every national hero has been immortalized in verse by humble epic anonymous bards. The authorship of this wealth of epic poetry must forever remain unknown, but the verses themselves have been preserved, not in the books or upon paper, but in the memories of the people."

Bridge of Suicides

A plan has been agreed upon for raising to a uniform height the parapet of Dean Bridge, Edinburgh, so as to make it difficult to commit suicide by throwing themselves into the valley below. Many models were made with the view of fixing upon one which would be unclimbable, which would excite no suicidal suggestion in men and women suffering from incipient mental disease, and which would preserve the view of the valley to the ordinary passenger. One morning a factory girl had a narrow escape while proceeding along Miller Row, underneath the Dean Bridge, as the body of a man fell from above in front of her.

CIGAR-BOX STORY

How Two Lovers Were Reunited by a Label on a Box.

By H. M. EGBERT.

It was in the splendor of the Florida sunset that Ned Murdoch told Dolores of his love.

He was resting upon his oars, half way between the mainland and Cypress Key. Under their boat the blue tides ran swiftly; the rustling palmettos filled the air with murmurs; the scent of the blossoming orange trees was borne out to them from the inland groves. And from west to east the sky was aflame with crimson.

"Dolores," said the young planter, "will you stay here and marry me?"

She started and looked at him intently. A warm red colored her cheeks, and the slanting, sidelong glance of her eyes became direct, and then her eyelids veiled it.

"Your wife!" she murmured, and her fingers clutched the rowlocks convulsively for a moment. "No!" she continued hurriedly. "You don't know who I am or anything about me."

"I don't care," Murdoch cried. "I know that I love you. It isn't much I offer you—it's very different here from what you have at home in Tampa—"

"At home in Tampa," she repeated mechanically, in her quaint Spanish accent.

She had drifted into Big Cypress in May, when the last of the tourists had left Florida and the hotel was closed. She had come from Tampa, she explained languidly; a touch of fever, a need for rest, for change. No, she had never been so far north before, or to so little a place. She rented a little cottage near the house.

Since then two weeks had passed, and on the morrow she was to go. She would never come back, they knew, that brilliant bird of passage who had lingered there, talking with the fishermen, petting the fat children upon the wharves, or reclining lazily in the shade of a palmetto tree, puffing at her vanilla cigarette—a habit admired by the men but made the subject of vicious comment by the fishermen's wives.

Framed in the Rustic Door.

It was thought at Big Cypress that she must be the daughter of some one of the Tampa cigar kings—men who had built up the prosperity of the town in a generation, and yet retained their Spanish speech and customs amid the ceaseless changes, the Americanization of the old Spanish city.

"No," she answered Murdoch in agitation. "I must go home. It is impossible."

Ned Murdoch rowed her back and left her at the cottage door. He raised his hat and went, turned at the end of the beach and looked back to see her standing there, watching him, a slight and graceful figure framed in the rustic door. Next morning she left for Tampa. He did not see her again.

She was gone, and Big Cypress swiftly forgot her. The summer passed; new tourists came in October; only Ned Murdoch remembered her. His loved increased with its hopelessness. Often he would timidly inquire concerning her from some Tampa visitor, veiling his inquiries discreetly; but none recognized his description.

Then the event occurred which changed his life. One evening, at the hotel, a tourist offered him a cigar from the box. He took one and then snatched the box from the man's hand and stood staring at it like a man hypnotized. For there on the inside of the lid was Dolores. It was impossible to mistake those features: the dark hair, the beautiful eyes, the mouth, drooping a little wearily, half petulant, half sad.

"I beg your pardon," he stammered, handing back the box. Then he could no longer restrain himself. "I know her!" he cried, indicating the portrait on the lid. "She was here last summer and—and—"

"And you want to find her again?" inquired the visitor in amusement. "Well, my boy, why don't you go to Tampa and inquire of the makers—Juan Desprochas y Ca? There's the name on the lid."

"She must be his daughter, then," said Murdoch eagerly.

"Without doubt," answered the stranger drily. "Take another cigar."

That cigar seemed the best that Ned had ever smoked. All night he paced the beach in an ecstacy of happiness.

He took the morning train for Tampa and made his way to the cigar factory. There, having obtained an interview with the manufacturer, he stated his case boldly.

"You are under a mistake, senor," said the Spaniard coldly, when Murdoch had finished. "I have no daughter. If I had one I might find your suggestion insulting, sir."

"But—" stammered the other.

"It is not our custom, sir, to place the portraits of our daughters upon cigar boxes for the inspection of the world. However, I think you are sincere, and, as I happen to know where you can find the Senorita Dolores, I will tell you. Go to number 193 Avenida Otranta at nine o'clock this evening and you will assuredly meet her there."

He bowed and, with a cynical smile, passed into his office, shrugging his shoulders. He was a very busy man, and whatever of sentiment there had once been in his nature had long ago been driven out by Americanization. Still, it was droll, very droll! He wished he could spare the time to go to the Avenida that evening in order to witness their meeting. However—he shrugged his shoulders again and spedily forgot the matter.

In Bull's cabaret, No. 193 Avenida Otranta, the usual throng was assembled at nine o'clock that evening. Senor Bull, an enterprising Yankee from Philadelphia, certainly knew how to cater to the tastes of his patrons. Senor Bull's wines, for example, had never seen any but European suns; they were not doctored, homegrown admixtures. And Senor Bull's singing and dancing ladies were no fifth-rate cafe chantant entertainers, but celebrities from New York and Havana. As for Senorita Dolores, he had picked her up in an obscure music hall, and it was shrewdly said that the ten days' scandal which had brought her into the lime-light had been actually engineered, if not invented, by Senor Bull himself. Certainly the senorita, whose portrait adorned cigar-boxes, bill posters, and other such places, justified her fame, for few could dance more divinely or set the hearts of Tampa's youths beating more wildly.

When she came forward on the stage that night the audience at the little tables broke into a storm of bravos. Attired as a matador, in short scarlet skirts, holding her dart with its fluttering banderole, she bowed and kissed her hands to the audience and capered forward and began her song.

It was a fine song and it went to the hearts of the Cubans who heard her. It told of wine and love and battle, so rousing their spirits that they saw in the senorita the vertiable incarnation of these things. They stood up on the floor, upon the chairs, waving their hats, shouting for an encore. And, whirling in the play of colored lights, until she seemed like a sea fairy entangled in masses of filmy drapery, the senorita spun.

Then, all of a sudden, she stopped. She stopped and stood perfectly still, her eyes fixed on the audience—no, on one of the audience; on a man who came forward, elbowing his way through the crowds and pushing forward toward the stage. He tossed aside the men who stood in his way, flung the ushers aside as though they were puppets; tables went crashing down, with their assembled glasses, and chairs sent spinning among the audience. And still he pressed forward; he gained the stage, leaping upon it over the footlights. Still the senorita stood dumb and motionless, but there was a look of horror in her eyes, and now she put up her hands as though to hide her face.

But Murdoch knew nothing save that he had found her again. He drew her into the wings, and, holding her hands, stood gazing at her triumphantly.

"Come!" he said.

"Come? Where?" echoed the senorita, for the first time finding her voice. But it was broken with tears and filled with shame. The banderole, fluttering from the lance which she still held, the spangled dress with its abbreviated, scarlet skirt, looked pitifully tawdry now.

"Why did you come here?" she sobbed indignantly. "Why couldn't you have forgotten me? You have no right to judge me because I am just a dancing girl."

"I haven't judged you," said Murdoch quietly. "I want you to come with me. Answer me one question, Dolores. Do you love me—or rather did you love me that day when I asked you to be my wife?"

"Yes, I loved you," she said. "But how could I tell you what I was—you, who would never have understood? You have never met women like me. Do you want to know why I went to Big Cypress? I hated my life, I wanted to be free. I wanted to forget myself and never remember what I was. But when I met you I saw how deep a gulf lay between. I knew then that I never could escape my destiny. I was just a Cuban dancing girl, making a spectacle of myself night after night for money, and if I had married you and not told you that I was the notorious Dolores Gracia some day you would have discovered it. I couldn't bring that dishonor upon you. So I came back. Now leave me."

Murdoch laughed rather grimly as he found her cloak and folded it about her.

"Come, Dolores," he said. "I haven't found you to lose you again. Perhaps you never had a chance to be anything else. But there's happiness enough in my heart just now to fill yours too." He raised her hands and pressed them to his lips.

Non-Productive Areas

Professor C. A. Zavitz, Guelph, in the course of an address, said that Canadian agriculture was showing more and more the effects of the work of a well educated and highly intellectual people. Turning to the high cost of living he said this was due in no small measure to the prevailing practice of few men operating farms of large area. The increase in the number of people engaging in non-productive occupations must necessarily be accompanied by a higher market price for products of the farm. It would be much better for the people themselves, the city and the country if many at present living in Canadian cities were back on the farms.

Occasionally there is a fourth prize, the hardships endured by the contestants and the weather conditions governing this award. Every man that enters the contest realizes he is flirting with death, and it is this risk that adds to the interest.

Every team has its admirers and a great deal of money changes hands on the result. Save for a stretch of thirty-six miles, says E. R. Hinman an Arctic explorer, the course lies through a barren, treeless waste and the contestants are compelled to cross a mountain range twice—going and coming—before the end of the journey. Loose, dry snow covers the course and the entire country as far as the eye can reach. Kept in a constant swirl by the bitter Arctic winds it blinds dogs and drivers and compels them to stagger along and trust to luck. The trail is staked with bits of bunting, but the shifting snow frequently buries these guides and the teams wander around aimlessly for hours at a time. Leaving Nome the first fifty-two miles of the journey lie across the ice of Bering sea. Candle, 202 miles away, is the turning point. Every precaution is taken to see that the race is honestly run. Each driver is photographed with his team at the starting point and he must bring under the finish wire all the dogs with which he starts, dead or alive. The receipt of any assistance on the journey disqualifies him and he must have all his dogs with him every foot of the journey. At Candle each outfit is photographed again and the pictures must correspond. The race is a go as you please affair, the teams being started within fifteen minutes of one another. There are nine dogs to a team. Most of the animals are the native dogs of Alaska, but occasionally there are teams of Siberian hounds and bird dogs in the trace. Teams composed of the latter breed won first and second prize five years ago, and that race was run under conditions that make it the most famous in the history of the event. Soon after the start a blizzard sets in which continued for two days, and it was feared that all the contestants had perished. The winning team covered the 404 miles in 61 hours 7 minutes and the actual travelling time, after allowing for brief rests, was 42 hours 16 minutes an average speed of 9½ miles an hour.

The Growth of Buenos Ayres

Of all the great cities, Buenos Ayres is said to be growing the most rapidly. The most artistically built of the cities of the new world, it reminds the visitor of Madrid or Paris. This magnificent capital of the Argentine Republic had in 1800 only 40,000 inhabitants; in 1852, 76,000; in 1869, 187,000; in 1887, 430,000; in 1895, 664,000; in 1904, 951,000; the census of 1910 brought it up to 1,303,117 while the population since that time has grown astonishingly. The Mayor, in a recent public speech, said that in four years the population of Buenos Ayres, at the present rate of growth would surpass that of Paris.

Whiskey in the Cradle

The eight-months-old child of Jos. Peloni, Cobalt, cost his parents a $100 fine. Provincial Constable Jerry Lefebvre was pretty sure that Peloni had whiskey on the premises, so when he searched the house he did not leave many places without scrutiny. Still he did not suspect that the firewater was in the cradle till he heard the frolicsome youngster crow and kick, and he heard the familiar clink under the blankets. Then he inserted his hand in spite of the woman's screams, and found three bottles snugly concealed under Baby's legs.

Two Whoppers

A pedigree greyhound, which attempted to keep pace with a fast train in which its master was travelling from South Norwalk, Connecticut, is reported to have run alongside the coach for a mile, but fallen dead from exhaustion after covering six miles. This, however, isn't nearly such a good story as that about the man who, falling from a steamer as it left Glasgow for New York, boldly swam after it and, dripping wet, managed to land at New York along with the other passengers.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

KEEP KNIVES LIKE NEW

Some Timely Hints About Table and Kitchen Cutlery

A word to "those about to marry." Don't buy cheap knives! It is an expensive economy, for in a very short time the handles will work loose, the rivets will come out, and the blades, being of inferior steel, will neither polish well nor sharpen.

The following hints, which might be cut out and pasted on the knife-board or machine, will, if followed, lengthen the lives of your table knives and keep them in good appearance for years.

Never wet a knife-handle other than those of the same material as the blade. Have a "knife-jug" of such depth that if filled to the top with hot water the knife-handles are untouched. Handles that are indiscriminately plunged into water, not only become loose, but the color of the ivory, composition, or bone permanently turns dirty.

Those who have to clean knives would find their work much lightened if they warmed the knife-board before using it. And if women would only realize that half a minute spared to wipe dirty knives as soon as they come from the table means much labor saved, they would gladly do it.

Stains on knives can be instantly removed if rubbed with a piece of raw potato dipped in brickdust or knife powder.

Knives that have been used for onions can be rid of the taste if the blades are run two or three times through a raw potato.

Handles that have become loose can be refixed by half-filling the hole with resin and quicklime, equal parts. Then heat the blade and insert it in the hole.

Knife-blades which have worn thin at the top—through bad cleaning—should be snapped off, and rounded with a file. Ivory-handled knives, if discolored, should be cleaned with lemon-juice and salt. To repolish the ivory, scour it with the finest sandpaper, make a paste of whitening and oil, and apply with a piece of flannel, rubbing it well, and polishing with a lightly oiled linen rag.

Bone handles should be sandpapered and polished; and pearl handles cleaned by rubbing with a soft cloth dipped in fine salt. Polish with a chamois leather.

"Reserve knives" can either be oiled and wrapped in brown paper before being put away, or dusted with finely powdered quicklime, and wrapped in flannel. This latter is the better plan, as there would be no suspicion of an oily taste if the knives were suddenly needed.

Special knives should always be kept for onions, bread, and for hot fat. The two latter will make the sharpest knife dull in a very short time.

Very good knives should be cleaned in charcoal powder. It gives a wonderful silver-like polish.

LOOK YOUR BEST

A statistics fiend in France the other day announced after years of investigation he could tell the average amount of time woman spends before her mirror between the ages of six and 70. The average per day he proudly announced was about as follows: Six to 10 years, 7 minutes; 10 to 15 years, 15 minutes; 15 to 20 years, 22 minutes, 25 to 30 years, 30 minutes; 30 to [illegible] years, 24 minutes; 30 to 40 years, 18 minutes; 40 to 60 years, 15 to 16 minutes. Then he proudly announced that the figures for a lifetime showed that woman spent the total of 242 days before her mirror. To which the answer is—Let her.

WHY WOMEN LIVE LONGER THAN MEN

Do Not Expend Their Vital Strength Unnecessarily—Their Figures Are Changing

Statistics prove that women live longer than men. From this point arises an extremely interesting physiological question—how is it to be accounted for that the sex which always has been considered physically frailer than men should in the majority of instances outlive men?

If we are to believe the latest authorities on the subject, we find that women are much more tenacious of life and resist disease much more readily than the average man. She is in many respects the superior of the two.

As a rule, she does not expend her vital strength unnecessarily, while the majority of men either in work, in play, or in pleasure are literally prodigal of their store.

One writer has turned out some instructive comparative figures with regard to the liability of men and women to disease and death. He says from 3 to 35 years of age the death rate between the sexes remains about even, but afterwards the scale turns in favor of women. At 40 a woman has seventy-eight chances to one against dying, while man has only forty-nine chances to one. At 60 the odds are nearly twice as large in favor of woman, and at 80 they are five times as great.

Prof. Sargent of Harvard says their figures are changing to resemble more the men: More height, deeper chests, smaller hips.

When His Auto Stuck.

A well known local lumber man was out in Cavendish last Friday. His auto, whether from seepage of the heavy rains or other cause went dead. The lumberman ploughed through the rain over ten acres of nice juicy ploughed land, and hired a farmer's team to drag his motor to shelter.

Bartender on Trial.

Peterborough's Biggest Diamond!.

The Clarke Jewelry store on George street, last week handled the biggest diamond ever brought to Peterborough. This stone, a pure white flawless jem of 3 and 3-16 and 1-64 carats was purchased in Amsterdam by Mr. Frank Clark, Peterborough's oldest (though not old) jeweller, for over $1000. The stone was ordered by and sent to a prominent Toronto man.

Bush Fires Under Control.

Mr. Dickson Davidson, President of the Peterborough Lumber Co., returned on Saturday from the company's limits in Cavendish. He reports that the bush fires up north are now under control. The company has decided that it is unnecessary to send out any more fire fighters. Whilst the fire is still burning in the "slashes," the recent heavy rain will prevent it spreading.

When a Nigger Was Indian.

The conviction, at Saturday's police court of Sam Nott, a Chemong Reservation Indian, for getting drunk, recalls a story of the late Crown Hotel. The late Mr. Croft, whilst conducting a hotel on the corner of Water and Hunter streets, had hired a new bartender, recently arrived from England. One day a negro, as black as Day & Martin's blacking, came into the bar and asked for whiskey. The vigilant English dispenser of wet goods replied. "No, we can't supply you." "Why not?" asked the darky. "Because the law prohibits the sale of intoxicants to Indians."

Wanamaker's Nephew Here.

Mr. D. N. Wanamaker, the well known cheese maker of Norwood, took in the ball game on Saturday. He mentioned incidentally, that if Belleville fans attempted to cheer and yell like the Peterborough rooters, they would be arrested. Poor little benighted Belleville ! It is not generally known here that the above named gentleman is a nephew of the multi-millionaire merchant of New York and Philadelphia, Hon. John Wanamaker. In conversation with The Times, Mr. Wanamaker told of a visit he took a few years ago to New York on personal business. He called on the great merchant, who was born in Prince Edward County, near Belleville. He describes his rich relative as aplain man without frills or swelled head from his wealth. Hon. Mr. Wanamaker presented his nephew, whilst the latter was in New York, with a handsome gold watch, which the latter still owns.

Edward Yorke Gets a Month.

At Saturday's Police Court, Edward Yorve was charged by Mrs. Smith with assault. Mr. McElderry for prosecution and Mr. Corkery for the defense. Mrs. Smith said she lived on Western avenue. She went out to look after her child and Yorke asked "What are you looking at you Scotch—" He threatened to leather her, after taking off his hat and coat. Yorke rushed on to her verandah. She locked the door. Yorke broke the door in and took her by the throat, and battered her against the wall. Yorke was drunk. He bruised her arms. Yorke's brother came in and took him out. Chief Thompson said Mrs. Smith complained of the assault. She had a black mark on her throat and her arms were marked. Mr. F. J. Knight said he saw two men under the influence of drink. He burst the door open. For the defense, Frank Yorke gave testimony, that the magistrate intimated he did not believe. Yorke was given a month on the hill.

HOW TO BANISH WRINKLES QUICKLY

(From the Guide to Beauty)

If the average woman only knew it, it is not so difficult to preserve the youthful contour and velvety smoothness of complexion. Every woman hates to see her face wrinkled or baggy, and practically every one has experimented with some sort of patent remedy in the effort either to remove such condition or ward it off.

As a matter of fact, the most effective remedy in the world is one that any woman can easily make up herself at home, in a moment's time. Let her take one ounce of pure powdered saxolite, which she can purchase at any drug store, and dissolve it in a half pint of witch hazel. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day. The result are surprising and instantaneous. Even after the very first applications a marked improvement is apparent. The wrinkles are less in evidence and the face has a comfortable, smug feeling of firmness that is most delightful.

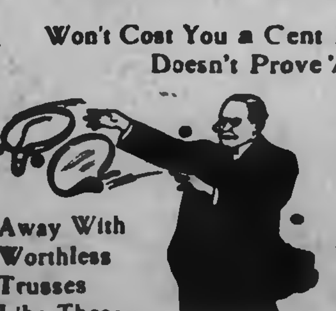
Do You Realize What This Means to You, Mr. Business Man?

This Invention for Rupture Sent on 60 Days Trial

Won't Cost You a Cent If The Two Months Test Doesn't Prove All Our Claims



Away With Worthless Trusses Like These

You can make a thorough prove-it-to-you test of this guaranteed rupture holder without having to risk a single cent.

We'll send it to you for sixty days trial—practically lend it to you that long—just to let you see for yourself how it takes all the misery out of being ruptured.

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way—in spite of any work you do or any other strains—then it won't cost you a penny.

The Only Thing Good Enough To Stand Such a Test

A mere try-on—like at a drugstore—can't possibly prove whether a truss or anything else for rupture is going to do any good.

Neither is just a few days trial a safe test. A truss may seem alright the first week or so and then prove utterly worthless.

But you can't possibly make a mistake after sixty days' trial.

And there is only one thing of any kind for rupture that you can get on such a long trial —

Only one thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test —

That is our guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss.

Made on New Principles

The Cluthe Truss is so radically different from everything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents. Made on an absolutely new principle — far more than just a truss.

It has so thoroughly proved its merits in nearly [illegible] cases that surgeons in the U. S. Army and Navy and physicians in all parts of the world now recommend it instead of advising operation.

Will Save You From Operation

A rupture can't possibly be relieved—can't even be kept from growing worse—unless protected against all strains and constantly kept from coming out. Just as a broken bone can't "knit" unless constantly held together.

And that is the curse of wearing elastic or spring trusses—not one in twenty ever holds successfully—they sooner or later make operation absolutely necessary instead of preventing it.

But remember the Cluthe Truss is guaranteed to hold—and won't cost you a cent if it doesn't.—And in addition it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

It does that entirely automatically—without any attention whatever from you.—and has thus brought complete recovery in thousands of cases that seemed almost hopeless, and has saved thousands of people from having to risk their lives under the surgeon's knife.

No Belt, No Leg-Straps, No Springs

The Cluthe Truss does away entirely with the curse of wearing belts, leg-straps and springs. People who have tried it say it is as comfortable as their clothing. And it is waterproof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof. Easily kept clean.

Get World's Greatest Rupture Book

Don't send any money—don't take any risk. Just write for our free book and find out all about it. This sensational book—cloth-bound, 96 pages, 20 separate articles, and 23 photographic illustrations—is full of facts for the ruptured never before put in print.

It shows why elastic and spring trusses are a crime—how they are the ruptured man's worst enemy—why the law should stop their sale.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "systems," "plasters," etc.

And it tells all about the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss — gives names and addresses of over 5,000 people in all parts of the country who have tested it and have voluntarily endorsed it—and tells how you can get it on sixty days trial, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Simply use the coupon or say in a letter or postal "Send me your book"—that will take only a minute and may save you from paying out a good many dollars and save you from years of misery.

MR. BORDEN TOUCHED BUTTON EXHIBITION DECLARED OPEN

As Usual Dairy Building Was Packed for the Formal Ceremonies President Kent Welcomed Premier

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Once more the great Canadian National Exhibition is in full swing. Premier Borden pressed the button in the Dairy Building at 2.30 this afternoon, and started everything going.

As in past years, the building was overcrowded by the time Mr. Borden and President Kent arrived to take their places on the platform for the formal opening ceremonies.

Welcome to Premier.

In extending the welcome to the Prime Minister, President Kent said: "Sir—We deem it a real privilege to welcome to-day Canada's first citizen to the Exhibition that is national in scope, and thoroughly representative of the prosperity which the expansion period has brought to our Dominion.

"You will see here to-day, Sir, gathered within this exhibition Park, those natural resources that have made the twentieth century peculiarly Canada's own; you will see undoubtedly proofs of industrial progressiveness that guarantees the sure and speedy upbuilding of our commerce; you will see a gathering o happy, prosperous and contented people such as no other country in the world can produce. These, Sir, will be your welcome—a welcome such as only one in your high office can really appreciate."

"Let us add to this, Sir, our pleasure at having you with us."

MANY STAY IN NORTH IRELAND TO BE THERE WHEN FUN BEGINS

While Immigrants Crowd Steamers From Emerald Isle Some Hate to Leave if They Would Thereby Miss a Fight

London, Aug. 25.—A special correspondent wiring from Londonderry regarding the present unrest, says the Allan Liner Scandinavian, yesterday carried 200 immigrants from Londonderry to Canada. Every birth in the boat leaving for the West has been booked up from now until October. Some of this traffic represents returning holiday makers, but immigrants are in much higher proportion than usual. The local manager of the Allan Line said this had been one of the biggest years for emigration he had known. Next spring the rush West is expected to be bigger than ever.

"I ascertained," he said, "that many immigrants were farmers sons and agricultural laborers. The latter earn about thirteen shillings weekly.

"In North Ireland work is irregular.

"I do not think," the correspondent concludes, "that the exodus from Ulster is to be attributed in the main to fear of trouble so much as to economic circumstances. Both sides try to keep every vote they can in their own interests and one knows of people who will remain in Ireland because if there is to be some fun, as they term it, they are too fond of a fight to wish to be out of it."

PROMINENT A. O. U. W. OFFICER WAS IN CITY

Mr. A. S. Morrison, District Deputy of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, was in the city on Thursdeath claims during the last 35 Lodge No. 135. He was accompanied by Mr. W. H. Blair, organizer for the society.

Mr. Blair is the right man in the right place. He is a fluent and convincing speaker and made a big impression whilst in the city. A.O.U.W., No. 135 meets every 2nd and 4th Tuesday in Foresters' Hall. The A.O.U.W. according to Mr. Blair, is the oldest, strongest and best fraternal beneficial society in the world.

Mr. Blair, the organizer, will be in the city for some time. The A.O.U.W. gives insurance at cost. The society has practically adopted the Hunter rates of insurance, those rates having been in force for the last eight years. The society is now on a sound basis and can give every person from age 16 to 44 years first class, safe insurance.

The A.O.U.W. has paid out in Ontario about 18 million dollars in death claims during the last 35 years in Ontario alone.

LONDON SURGEONS BUTCHER THEIR PATIENTS NEEDLESSLY

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Remarking that in London Hospitals he saw some of the bloodiest surgery in his experience, Dr. W. Stanfier, of St. Louis, on his way home after attending the International Medical Congress in London, declares that the medical science in Canada and the United States is ten years ahead of Great Britain.

The better organization in North America, as well as the greater opportunity for research work, said the Doctor, were the principal reasons. The operators said the Doctor, although men of no small fame, allowed their patients to bleed unnecessarily, thus often weakening the sufferer when a little care might have obviated such contingency.

In Great Britain, said the Doctor, there is little or no organization in the medical profession.

RAILWAY NEWS

Items of Interest in Connection With Canadian Railways.

The old-time Telegraphers' Historical Association of the United States are planning a visit to Mount Clemens, Mich., on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway System. Among the prominent members of thi Association, who will be at the convention are Andrew Carnegie and the Wizard of Electricity, Thomas Edison. It is planned to have Mr. Edison, who learned telegraphy in the Grand Trunk Station at Mount Clemens years ago, send amessage to President Wilson, from the same instrument he used at that time.

An official of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is in receipt of a letter from Rev. Robert Johnson, D.D., pastor of the American Presbyterian church, Montreal, dated at Portland, Oregon, and in which he enthuses over a trip recently made over the Grand Trunk Pacific through the Yellowhead Pass to Tete Jaune. He says in part:

"There are splendid possibilities there. The valley of the Athabasca is so wide that the mountains do not crowd in upon you asupon some other routes, but you get such a splendid and continuous view, and the panorama is so constantly changing that the effect is indescribably grand. The boat trip too, up to Prince Rupert and Stewart, was particularly pleasant."

ONLV 21, BEAUTIFUL, RICH, ENDS LIFE IN AEROPLANE

Remarkable End of Lia Scheschin, Most Lovely of All Czar's Subjects

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—Lia Scheschin, wife of the millionaire, committed suicide by disarranging her flying apparatus and causing it to drop to earth at a terrific rate.

Lia was only twenty-one years old and—a most unusual thing in Russia—had twice asked and secured a divorce. She was the most beautiful woman in Russia, and every one of her three husbands were rich.

At the outset of her career she went as a nurse to the Japanese-Russian war, being then a child of twelve or thirteen, but large for her age and attracting attention everywhere by her beauty.

At fourteen she married a St. Petersburg society man and a great sport, she divorced him two years later to marry a purveyor, who had made millions through the war. But she wanted only his money, not him. He was not permitted to accompany his beautiful wife when she went into society and she went to public restaurants alone as a rule. Yet there was never a love affair between Lia and her many admirers.

Gave Her $5,000,000.

Then came a second divorce and soon afterwards Lia was introduced as Madame Schenschin. Her third husband was so in love with his young wife that he gave her five million dollars outright to do as she pleased with. She elected aeronautics as her new diversion, and spent great sums on airships and similar paraphanalia. She withdrew from society and went into the country to live, so she might visit her friends on wings.

OTTAWA HAS PRACTICALLY GOT PENNANT NAILED TO MAST

Won and Tied With Deneau's Cockneys on Saturday—Robertson's Timely Hit

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—In the first of Saturday's double-header Ottawa rallied in the ninth and defeated London by 6 to 5. Two runs behind and with two out, Bullock and Crowder singled off Deneau and Rogers doubled, scoring Bullock. Heck then rushed to the rescue of his manager and purposely passed Powers, a pinch hitter. Robertson had two on him and London stood within one strike of the game when the Ottawa outfielder laced the ball over Smith's head for a double, scoring Rogers and Crowder and ending the game with Ottawa victorious by 6 to 5.

In the second game Kabat and Steiger fought twelve innings to a scoreless tie. Ottawa had several chances to score, but Steiger was invincible in pinches. Kubat was equally good, and sensational fielding by Reidy and Rogers saved both men. The double-header was witnessed by 6,000 people, despite the fact that the weather was dark and threatening.

At St. Thomas yesterday, the Petes defeated the home team by a score of 20 to 8. Belting did the twirling for the Pestes and touched for 14 hits, while St. Thomas' pitcher gave the Petes 15 hits. There was a fair-sized crowd of fans present.

VERY MUCH LIKE IT.

WEARY BOARDER:—"Can you not inspect the boarding house prunes also, Doctor?"

N.Y. STATE IN CHAOS WITH TWO GOVERNORS

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 25.—New York's governmental wheels cam almost to a standstill to-day whil the rival governors sat in different parts of the Capitol, neither seemingly able to administer the affairs of the State.

There was no clash of authority, no issuing of statements, oo signing, of extradition papers, "no nothing" as one disgusted Tammany man expressed it.

Department heads hesitated about doing this thing or that thing, apprehensive of complications that might follow. Ordinarily employes from deputies and head clerks down to a $15 a week stenographers and$5 a week office boys diplomatically side-stepped orders fearing that one misstep might result in the loss of a position.

Immured in the inner room of the Executive suite on the second floor of the Capitol, Gov. Sulzer figuratively laughed up his sleeve at the Tammany Legislature which had impeached him from office. Stripped of practically every power, Mr. Sulzer retained possession of his offic,al citadel and continued privately to proclaim himself the "real Governor."

On the floor above and occupying the temporary quarters provided for him in the Assembly parlors, sat Acting Governor Martin H. Glynn prepared to steer the ship of state out of chaotic waters but minus the compass and other official instruments necessary to make the voyage a safe and satisfactory one.

THAW COIN USED TO BUY JUDGES?

Madman's Army of Lawyers Wait Till Crown Shows its Hand

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 25.—Neither William Travers Gerome for the State of New York, nor Roger O'Mara, for the Thaw family had arrived at Sherbrooke this afternoon and counsel for both sides marked time with further conferences. The general understanding still prevailing was that Thaw would be arraigned in the Superior Court Wednesday morning on the commitment under which he has been held a fugitive from Matteawan turned over to the immigration authorities and ultimately deported to Vermont.

Thaw had a row with the jail authorities to-day because his breakfast from a hotel had arrived late. It was the worst show of temper since his detention here.

J. Parkinson, of Montreal, connected with the Dominion Secret Service reached Sherbrooke to-day to keep in touch with the case. Stories of Thaw money corrupting courts, judges and immigration officials—baseless all of them, so far as anyone can learn—were being discussed in the hotel corridors and on the streets at noon.

LAW MUST TAKE ITS COURSE.

Ex-Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, characterized all such rumors as "absurd."

"The law will be allowed to take its course in this case," said the ex-Governor. "All we ask for is simple justice."

W. K. McKeown, of the Thaw legal contingent, explained this afternoon one of the reasons why they had not yet announced a definite plan of action.

"We are waiting for the other side to show its hand," he remarked. "It has never been made clear to us just exactly what the attitude of the Canadian authorities is in regard to Thaw.

TWENTY-FIVE BRIDGES WERE WASHED AWAY

Extensive Damage Done by Friday Night's Deluge in Hamilton and Haldimand Township Mill Carried Down Stream

Cobourg, Aug. 25.—For weeks farmers have been crying for rain, but Friday night's deluge was rather more than they were prepared for. It is estimated that fully twenty-five bridges were carried away in last night's flood in Hamilton township alone, and that at a small estimation it will cost that municipality $8,000 to repair them. The water had been so low in the creeks that mill-owners were not prepared for a freshet.

The gates of the dam at the fine private fish pond owned by Mr. W. J. Crossen, of Cobourg, at Baltimore, five miles from here, were carried away and the water washed lakeward in a perfect torrent. This has put the mills owned by Mr. J. Ball, at Baltimore, out of business. A huge elm tree that was a landmark at Baltimore was carried away, and the remains of bridges, trees, barn doors and a heap of debris were carried on down the creek.

A small mill at Baltimore, with machinery and all, was actually moved a short distance down the stream. Among the bridges carried away was a cement bridge at Canborne, recently erected by Hamilton township Council at acost of $800. At Pratt's mill, near the town the gates of the dam were opened and men worked all night to preserve the property. Water streamed over the road for a long distance at the bridge below. Old residents state that there has been nothing like it for twenty-four years, the date of a similar flood. Roads in some places are gutted out until they are almost impassable.

MODERN-DAY DANCES ARE VERY STRONGLY CONDEMNED

Canon Newbolt, in St. Paul's Cathedral, Says They Are Disgrace to Civilization--Society Novel is Also Denounced

London, Aug. 25.—"Evils which flourish unrebuked" was Canon Newbolt's reference to modern dances, which he strongly condemned, preaching this afternoon in St. Paul's Cathedral. Canon Newbolt asked, "Would an indecent dance, suggestive of evil and destructive of modesty, disgrace our civilization for a moment if professed Christians were to say, 'I will not allow my daughter to turn into a Salome even although Herod were to give me half his kingdom, and admit me to the much-coveted society of a world which persuaded itself that immodesty is artistic, and that anything is permissible in society which removes intolerable monotony of its pleasures.'"

The Society Novel.

It was also so with books. They knew the bitter cry which went forth regarding the character of books which found their way to drawing room tables. An age which was shocked at a marriage service welcomed for its sons and daughters the sex problem dressed up in the nauseous unreserve of the society novel, and this in spite of feeble protests which no one regarded. A few more consistent, God-fearing lives would yet save England from the deadly peril which waited upon Godless materialis .

FELL OVER FIFTY-FOOT BANK WITH HORSES ON TOP OF HIM

Teamster Thomas Sutton May be Internally Injured, But Would Not Hear of Hospital--Pole in Horse's Mouth

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Thomas Sutton, a teamster living at 222 Berkeley street, was badly shaken up and bruised this morning when his team and wagon went over a 50 foot embankment at the fill-in on Pendrith avenue, near Clinton, just north of Bloor street. Along with several other teams, Mr. Sutton's horses were hauling earth for the fill. The lever refused to dump when the wagon was near the edge of the fill and the loose earth began to give way, precipitating wagon, horses and driver down the slope. One of the horses rolled over Sutton, bruising his face and causing possibly internal injuries. The man who is about 55 years of age, protested that he was not badly hurt and refused to be taken to the hospital. The ambulance took him to his home instead.

The wagon tongue in some way ran into the mouth of one of the horses and hurt it badly. The other horse and wagon got off without apparent injury.

COLUMBUS' FLEET TO SAIL DOWN LAKES

Sarnia, Aug. 25.—Canadians who frequent the waterfront along the St. Clair and Detroit Rivers will be afforded an opportunity next week of viewing at close range duplicates of the caravels Santa Maria, Pinta and Nina, from the decks of which Christopher Columbus and his sailors first sighted America in 1492. They may stay over in Detroit for the Perry Centennial celebration September 12 and 13. The three caravels are to leave Chicago next week for San Francisco. They will follow a route through the Great Lakes, out the St. Lawrence River to the Atlantic Ocean, through the Panama Canal, and into the Pacific Ocean. They will reach San Francisco for the Pan-American Pacific Exposition in 1915. Built in Spain and exhibited at the World's Fair, the ships have been lying off Chicago since 1892.

An army of carpenters is working to put on copper bottoms and make the ships ready for an early start so the St. Lawrence River may be reached before the fall storms.

SO EASY TO HAVE SMOOTH, HAIRLESS SKIN

(Beauty Topics)

The new home treatment for removing hair or fuzz from the chin, lip or cheek is justly popular, because it is devoid of pain and requires very little time. Get a small, original package of delatone and mix enough of the powder with water to cover the hairy surface; apply and let remain for 2 or 3 minutes, then remove and with it will come every bit of hair. The skin should then be washed to take off the remaining delatone and it will be soft, firm and free from blemish.

Thick, glossy eyebrows follow the use of pyroxin and if it be applied at lash-roots the eyelashes will grow long and have a delightful curl. Use caution, and don't get any pyroxin where hair is not wanted.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 3[illegible] George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

The Face Value of Smiles

In bad weather, in good weather, in summer or in winter, at work or at play, perhaps there is nothing of greater value than a smile.

"She always has a smile for us," is constantly heard. Also: "Her smile lights the room and makes us all feel cheerful," is frequently said. Furthermore, it is well known that no disease is quite so catching as the happiness created by the man or woman or child who greets us with a smile.

Not only do our smiles cheer others, but if we are sad and try to shape our faces into a smile we begin to feel better and happier immediately. This is a fact—and a valuable fact, too. Let us try the experiment, then, of smiling when we don't feel like it, and see what a differerce it will make.

The so-called "Smile that won't come off" may be tiresome sometimes, but at the risk of being tiresome it is well worth while to diffuse about one's self an atmosphere of good will—much better than wearing the frown that won't come off, warranted to make for general unhappiness and a loss of friends.

Ended Appropriately

The Scottish National Song Society Conference in Edinburgh was in a slanging mood. The Free Church hymn-book was designated the most awful conglomeration of nonsense, and the bagpipe stigmatised as the instrument of barbarians. Appropriately enough, the conference wound up with a lament.

The Quiet of the East

Writing of the rush and turmoil of city life in the Occident, a Japanese woman, Madame Osaki, says:

"What room was there for the love of the sunlit heaven, the song of birds, the leisurely cultivation of a favorite flower, or the reposeful enjoyment of friends and of nature? As I gazed at the men and women rushing past me, I felt that the simple-lived Japanese, in his one-storied house and bamboo-fenced garden, watching for the first plum blossom in the moonlight, or tending his little pot of morning glories at summer dawns knew more of the secret of happiness and contentment than many a millionaire in his palace home."

Breeding Hedgehogs for Bounty

In Vermont, United States, a bounty of 30 cents is paid for every hedgehog killed. Some farmers have added considerably to their income by raising hedgehogs, and the Legislature will probably be asked to repeal the Hedgehog Bounty Bill. The bounties paid per year amount to $30,000 representing the killing of about 100,000 hedgehogs.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE

Few men have made a deeper and more permanent impression upon the world than David Livingstone, who came of humble parentage, but whose contributions to sociology, geography, commerce, philanthropy and Christian missions placed him among Britain's greatest heroes and leaders enrolled in Westminster Abbey. Dr. Livingstone's explorations opened to the world nearly aff of Africa from the Equator to the Tropic of Capricorn. The lakes Ngami, Bangweolo, Mweru, Nyassa, and Tanganyika, the Victoria Falls, the Zambesi River and the southern affluents of the Kongo are some of his contributions to geography. In his travels of nearly 30,000 miles on the continent, by scientific observations, he was able to prove to the nations that beyond the Kalahari desert and beyond the fever-stricken coast swamps, there were well-timbered highlands and fertile soil. One of his great objects in life was to strike a blow at the horrible slave traffic. Toward this he directed his energies. David Livingstone's efforts brought freedom to more people than those of any other man who ever lived. However, the supreme object of his life was to open a highway to the heart of Africa for Christianity.

SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS

Latest Type of Roller Skates Being Tried in Switzerland

Swiss soldiers have recently been experimenting with what have been humorously dubbed the new seven-league boots—but what are virtually roller skates.

The skate they are using consists of two pneumatic tired wheels, connected by a mechanism by means of which the weight of the body in stepping causes the skate to propel itself forward. The foot-rest is hung in a frame made up of tubing jointed together at the center and attached to the wheels at the ends.

By operation of a spring in the gearing of the rear wheel and a strand of wire from it to the hub of the forward wheel, the two wheels are drawn toward each other, whenever there is no weight upon the jointed framework. When the skater throws his weight upon the foot-rest the wheels are forced apart, the wire strand is drawn out and the gear, ratcheted to grip the driving mechanism of the rear wheel as the wire strand is drawn, propels the wheel in a forward direction.

By alternately lifting and setting down his feet, as in walking, or as in skating, the wearer can move very swiftly and easily. The skate is strapped to the foot and leg, much as a stilt is attached, and it is light enough to make the effort of using it little more than that of ordinary skating, while the distance that can be covered in a brief time is remarkable.

Good Ways of Other Days.

Not by a great deal are all the old-fashioned things admirable, but by no means are they all inferior and out of date because they are old-fashioned. The best of them may strain all our modern resources to equal, and not do it. The best products of old-fashioned training and education are still models for co-temporary seminaries. As far back as we can reach into the history of mankind we find great people, easily the equals, and often the superiors, of our very best in mental and moral qualities. Our good luck is not that we are superior to them in our human material, but that we have at our service an immensely greater accumulation of knowledge, mostly about material things. Thanks to that, we understand the laws of nature much better than our fathers did, and that has helped us to make wonderful machines, and put them to doing, after their fashion, what used to be done by fingers, brains and brawn. But spiritually we got our highest inspiration 2,000 years ago, and have been trying ever since to reach up to it; and mentally, though we use better tools, we are no better, surely, than Pythagoras or Aristotle or the author of the Book of Job and hundreds of thinkers who must have long preceded any of them.—Harper's Magazine.

Man's Body in Cement Block

A human hand protruding from tons of cement, the frames of which were removed recently, was found in one of the concrete pillars of the Government dam across the Mississippi at Keokuk, Iowa, and explains the disappearance several weeks ago of one of the laborers. The man's body is embedded in the solid concrete, and is likely to stay there, as to blast it out would destroy not only the body but a great part of one of the [illegible] blocks of cement [illegible] the dam.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

The Borden Government in two years has done more for the practical development of Canada than any other Government ever thought of.

The Examiner says: "There is nothing in the split skirt, anyway." Yes there is, brother Yokome. Look again and be happy in the realization of your error.

It appears that many people have been kept very warm on both sides of politics by arguing over the naval question this summer. But judging by the weather reports it is possible for them to keep warm without that help.

The Toronto professor who pompously declared that women had never discovered anything of benefit to the human race, ought to have known that if there had been no women he would never have been discovered.

We see that women are beginning to get back at us in a telling way. They declare that a middle-aged man in a bathing suit in not a thing of beauty, and as much as this g.f.j. to do it, it is compelled to agree with them.

What's that, the Liberal party sawing wood? Quite so. They're cutting up the planks of that old platform of '93. These planks have been giving them a lot of trouble in the last few years.

A very few exhibitions like that of Saturday afternoon on Riverside Park would go a long way towards putting Canada's favorite game on the "rocks." To the credit of the locals, let us say that never in their two years' record in the Canadian League have they furnished a farce for the fans such as that dished up by the Berlin aggregation on their last game here. And here's hoping it will not be repeated again by any team.

NOTHING TO DO BUT WEAR CLOTHES

The claim is made for one of the leaders of "society" at a popular summer colony that she has about sixty-five outing dresses.

Supposedly away for recreation and rest, she is burdened with the annoyance of keeping track of an assortment of gowns that, in numbers and variety, would do credit to a girl's boarding school.

Cured My Cough In One Night

Relieved Me of a Throat Weakness That Resisted Every Treatment.

"SUFFERERS, FOLLOW MY PLAN"

"After being loaded down with a chronic hacking cough for months, you can imagine my joy at finding even a relief from it," writes Mrs. O. A. Tooker, of Monson, Mass., U.S.A. "I was troubled with an irritable throat weakness and asthma that simply defied every medicine I ever used. I was discouraged until a friend recommended Catarrhozone so strongly that I bought a dollar outfit from my druggist. I breathed in the healing fumes of Catarrhozone very deeply—used the inhaler five minutes every hour. After the first day I was better, and next morning my cough was gone. My asthma is cured, my throat weakness is gone, and I am well. For two years indeed, with the aid of Catarrhozone, I have kept perfectly well. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pills for constipation with grand results, and consider your remedies have done wonders for me."

Thousands of wonderful cures are reported every year. Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it, and is certainly most efficient for colds, bronchitis, throat trouble, asthma and catarrh. The two months' treatment (large size), price $1.00, is guaranteed, smaller size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Poor thing. Nothing to do but wear clothes. A butterfly without the butterfly's freedom from worry about its coloring and down.

Did you once make the mistake of envying the rich? Don't repeat it, please. Rather pity them for the emptiness, vanity, and isolation of the lives of most of them; for the crushing burden which their having to live up to a socially established standard puts upon their better nature; for the barriers which their dollars build around them to interrupt and distort the natural play of human brotherhood.

Sallie Ann, the carpenter's daughter, with one gingham gown and her toes peeping out, is closer to happiness, closer to the loving heart of old Mother Nature, far more to be envied for her possibilities of true human fellowship, than this gilded society "bud," despite her sixty-five dresses, at least sixty of which must be a nuisance and bore.

A NEW CHINESE ALPHABET.

In line with the attempt making by the leaders of the Chinese people to bring that great country into touch with the civilization of the rest of the world is the proposed scheme to represent the language by a modern alphabet. At the present time the language is represented to the eye by about 8000 ideograms, which have to be learned and kept distinctly in the mind. The problem of English spelling is child's play compared to the tremendous intellectual task of remembering all these complicated figures which are modified or conventionalized hieroglyphics. It has been found that without great practical difficulty the sounds of these words can be represented by 42 characters—20 vowels and 19 consonants. The alphabet suggested is made up of selections from the Greek, Russian and Latin. If English had a character for every sound which we express there would be fully as many; as we all know we use the same letter to express sometimes half a dozen different sounds, as, for instance, the vowel e which ranges from the broad ah (in clerk) to o in yelk (yelk). If we had a strictly phonetic alphabet we should require as many letters as are to be assigned to the new Chinese alphabet. Many observers attribute the superiority of German education to the fact that German children can begin their real training at least a year earlier than English and American children do, not being handicapped by an absurd, illogical and cumbersome method of spelling fastened on the language by a narrow-minded old lexicographer and kept in vogue by a still more narrow-minded conservatism. It will be interesting to see if the self-satisfied and ultra-conservative Chinese will be as eager to adopt the new alphabet as they have been to take up with western methods of education.

THAT BERLIN FIASCO.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As a spectator at Saturday's ball game I was thoroughly disgusted with the spoilt child tactics followed by the Berlin team in the second innings. When several of their players, for good cause, were ordered off the grounds, and when one of the men, before more than a thousand people threatened Umpire Daly, with a club, and when the man so expelled would not obey orders. Mr. Daly was fully justified in forfeiting the first game to Peterborough.

When the second game was called, the Berlin team seemed to deliberately try and punish Daly by changing players so that they could not possibly play ball. Does not the manager of the Berlin team realize that the big audience present, the public, who keeps the game going by the gate receipts, realize that those admission tickets were bought to enable their purchasers to see baseball, and not a pusillanimous exhibition of spite work. It is to be hoped that baseball headquarters will mark their disapproval of such methods by declaring Berlin's share of Saturday's recipts forfeited. Such cowardly tactics as pursued by Berlin disgust all lovers of clean "Sport."

RATS IN MANITOBA

Efforts to Stamp Out Pests Which Cause Immense Losses

The Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba estimated the damage done by the brown rat at a million dollars a year. According to the report of the government inspectors, the rats in the province move in a radius of fifteen miles each year. A few years ago the Department produced a virus that it was thought would eliminate the pest. There was quite a considerable amount of interest at first, and many applications were made for the virus. Thousands of rats were destroyed by its use. But, by and by, the public interest lagged.

At Gretna, Mr. J. J. Golden conducted some interesting experiments in order to determine the amount of food a rat would consume per day, and at the same time to test the virus.

A number of rats were caught alive in the traps and fed, and, while the amount of food consumed varied, Mr Golden demonstrated beyond peradventure of a doubt the efficacy of the virus in the following manner.

Two rats were caught and one of them received an injection of the virus. Within two days it died while the other rat, not having been provided with food, proceeded to devour its dead comrade. Within twenty-four hours it had consumed all of the dead rat, with the exception of half an inch of the tail, and it succumbed within a few hours, to the poison which had been injected into the other rat.

Among other interesting experiments, Mr. Golden found that the rats, while mainly confining themselves to the cities and towns, made frequent visits into the fields and destroyed quantities of grain. Near the southern border of Manitoba a farmer found sixteen rats in a shock of corn in the spring, which demonstrated that this colony had lived in this particular place throughout the winter, and had fed upon the grain and the cornstalks.

Working For Jim Hill

One of the pioneers in the development of the northwest tells a story illustrative of the great prominence of James J. Hill in the early days of the building of railroads and settlement of the northwestern states. The story is of a Swede attending a revival meeting of the old-fashioned kind, one in which the revivalists excited the emotions, got the converts shouting, and resorted to personal exhortation. The Swede sat stolid, while half of the audience was weeping, confessing, or shouting hallelujah. One of the preachers tried a personal appeal.

"Work for the Lord!" he shouted. "Come forward, Ole! Come forward. Won't you work fo the Lord?"

"Naw," drawled the Swede impassively. "Aye dank not! Aye ban got good yob by Yim Hill."

ELECTRIC CLIPPER

For Horses, Not Men, and Does its Work Easily and Swiftly

One of the latest of electrical appliances is the electric horse clipper. The clipper has a long cord which is reinforced by a heavy string coil to keep it from twisting or breaking and no special wiring is necessary to use it. Just plug into a socket that has 110 volts and there you are. A thick handle affords a firm, comfortable grip and as the jaws work automatically all the user need do is guide the implement. The carbon brushes are accessible and easily replaced, adjusted or cleaned. The housing is dirt and dust proof, which prolongs the life of the motor contained within. Incidentally, this housing is of aluminum, which is strong enough for such a purpose, yet light enough to make easy handling. Furthermore, the motor is short and handy to clip the horse's feet.

The Aborigines of Australia

The aborigines of Australia are of a distinct race from that which inhabits the Indian Archipelago, and are black, with some slight variety of shade from brown-black to jet. Their hair is curly, but is not the crisp wool of the negro. Their faces are well developed broad at the base; their lips less protruding than those of the negro. Their bodies are deficient in muscularity and strength, but are capable of great endurance. It is said that they readily adopt European habits. These natives seldom build huts or other fixed dwellings, but use as a shelter a strip of bark or a large bough. The Australian aborigines are said to be rapidly decreasing in number, and it is thought that many years will not elapse before they are extinct.

PLAYS FOR THE BLIND

Complete Edition of Shakespeare For Unfortunates in Darkness

Before very long those who are afflicted with blindness will be able to read the whole of Shakespeare's works in Braille.

"The blind," says Mr. Henry C. Preece, the [illegible] secretary of the British and Foreign Blind Association, 'find a great solace in reading, and are especially fond of plays. Hitherto they have had about half a dozen of Shakespeare's plays at their disposal.'

Blind people are poor, as a rule, and cannot afford to spend much on their literature. Each of these plays will be sold at about 15 cents, which will cover the cost of paper, embossing and publishing.

The cost of preparing the zinc plates from which the pages of 'pits" and "dots" are embossed, will be about $1,750 to be met by public subscriptions.

"People do not realise," Mr. Preece continued, "that there are over a million blind in the British Empire. There are 33,000 in the United Kingdom, 150,000 in Egypt, and 650,000 in India.

Nine plays have been finished, the last to be finished being "Midsummer Night's Dream." All the work is done by the blind at the association's headquarters in London.

Mr. Preece, though totally blind himself, is a man of remarkable versatility and optimism. Formerly a lecturer at King's College, London, he had to leave a good position at the India Office in 1907, owing to falling sight. He played cricket at one time for Cheshire and Essex. He is a lay reader in the diocese of London.

Moonlight Makes Fish Bad

Strange powers have been always assigned to the moon, and it is not surprising to learn that a South African belief is that moonlight hastens the decomposition of fish. But it is surprising to find this belief brought forward as more than a superstition. D. E. Hutchins, of England, claims to have obtained experimental proof of this action of the moon, and suggests that it is due to some low form of life called forth or stimulated to action by moonlight.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Eddie Durnan received a letter this morning from Mr. George E. Darby, enclosing the articles for the race between Greer and Durnan on Toronto Bay, September 27.

Durnan wired Greer again last night and got the articles first mail this morning. The race will be rowed for $1,000 a side, and Durnan will allow Greer $100 for expenses.

A cheque has been sent for $250 to the Toronto Globe, by Greer, being the first instalment due on his signing of the articles. Durnan has not signed the articles yet, but expects to return them on Monday.

AN INCORRIGIBLE BOY

Diminutive Delinquent Told Judge He Smoked a Pipe

As Judge Choquet was interrogating a youngster in the Juvenile Court at Montreal, prior to sending him to the reformatory for three years at the request of the lad's father, the question was put to the prisoner: "Do you smoke cigarettes?"

"No, a pipe," chirped the wee delinquent, and the audience struggled to repress a smile, for, while he came within the juvenile court age limit he looked much smaller than his years would indicate.

"I found him smoking cigarettes and supplied him with pipe and tobacco and let him smoke in the house," said the father, "on condition that he quit the cigarettes."

"I have tried everything but he won't work nor come home until late at night. Two days ago I was burying his little brother, and told him to stay in the house until I came back and then to come with me to the cemetery, but he ran out, and this is the first time I have seen him since. It is my wish that he go to the reformatory. I can do nothing with him."

EXPENSIVE NEWSPAPERS

Century Ago Fifteen Cents Per Copy Not Uncommon Price

The history of the London "Times" which now sells at 4 cents per copy provides a remarkable illustration of the fluctuations in prices of newspapers during the last hundred years. The cost of the "Times" on its first issue in 1788 was 6 cents; but eight years later it was raised to 9 cents and in 1799 to 12 cents. Ten years later another cent was added to the price, while in 1815 it rose to 15 cents.

This was due to the fact that during the reign of George III. the Press was subjected to several heavy imposts. At the beginning of the reign the tax on newspapers was 2 cents a copy. In 1766 it was raised to 3 cents, other increases following till in 1815 it had reached 8 cents per copy. This caused a general rise in the price of newspapers to 14 cents a copy, a condition of things which lasted untill 1836, when the duty was reduced, the tax being entirely abolished in 1855, when the price of the "Times" was 8 cents. It was reduced to 6 cents, six years later and remained at that price for half a century.

It is generally thought that the "Times" is the oldest London daily but the "Morning Post" was in existence in 1772. The oldest Sunday newspaper, the "Observer," was established in 1791, when it was sold at 16 cents a copy a price which was also charged for the "Weekly Dispatch."

The result of these prices was that the average person could not afford to buy a newspaper, but used to pay for the hire of one.

NEEDED A WOMAN

When She Came Business Picked Up and He Decided She Should Remain.

BY MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRICH.

"Business is bad, very bad," said John Moore to a passing townsman, and struck a still more dejected attitude in the doorway of his little store. He posed there, staring gloomily out into the fast darkening street, thinking how very bad was business, indeed, and wondering why he had ever brought his little stock of dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes and notions to Riverton.

"I would go to a real live, wide-awake town," he ruminated, "and here I am—trade dull, stock dead, and I don't seem to make many friends. Heigh ho! I suppose being a crusty old bachelor keeps away the ladies' trade. As to others, maybe I'm too slow and old-fashioned. Guess I'll close up. Hello!"

Starting to pull up the awning, the storekeeper's foot touched a moving human object crouched back in the hallway side entrance to the building.

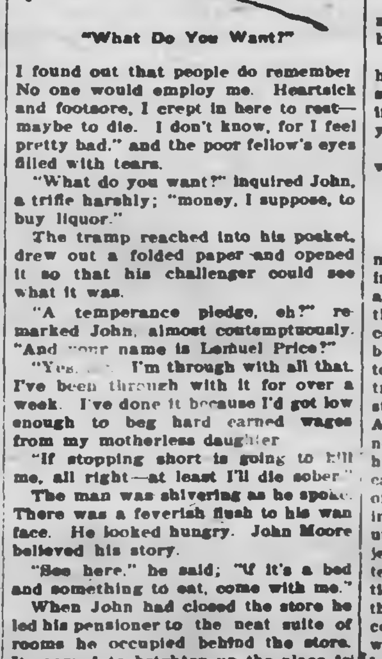
"Here, wake up!" called out John, with a frown. "What you doing there, anyway?"

"I'm not asleep," responded the faint, quavering voice; "and I'm here because I'm too sick and weak to go any further."

The speaker got to his feet with a painful effort. As he came more fully into view John regarded him closely.

"Oh, I see," he said, rather distastefully; "you are the man who was here a month ago, and got in trouble with a riotous crowd down at the tavern."

"That was me," assented the tramp, for such he seemed. "I was arrested. I hoped it was forgotten, for I came back here this morning to find work.



"What Do You Want?"

I found out that people do remember. No one would employ me. Heartsick and footsore, I crept in here to rest—maybe to die. I don't know, for I feel pretty bad," and the poor fellow's eyes filled with tears.

"What do you want?" inquired John, a trifle harshly; "money, I suppose, to buy liquor."

The tramp reached into his pocket, drew out a folded paper and opened it so that his challenger could see what it was.

"A temperance pledge, eh?" remarked John, almost contemptuously. "And your name is Lemuel Price?"

"Yes, [illegible] I'm through with all that. I've been through with it for over a week. I've done it because I'd got low enough to beg hard earned wages from my motherless daughter.

"If stopping short is going to kill me, all right—at least I'll die sober."

The man was shivering as he spoke. There was a feverish flush to his wan face. He looked hungry. John Moore believed his story.

"See here," he said; "if it's a bed and something to eat, come with me."

When John had closed the store he led his pensioner to the neat suite of rooms he occupied behind the store. It seemed to brighten up the place to have company, even poor but grateful company, as Price was.

It was as a new man that the latter entered on the next day. John had fed him on nutritious soup and gruels, he had given him a comfortable bed. Out of his stock he selected a neat, unsalable suit of clothes, and the ex-tramp went out on the street, clean-shaven and encouraged, to again look for work.

"If you don't make it," said John, "come back, and I'll give you board and lodging for helping around the store until you get something better to do."

Price reported that afternoon. He had found a chance to work as a teamster, he said, but, be added, he had decided first to submit a proposition to the storekeeper.

"All right, what is it?" asked John in his usual crisp, businesslike way.

"Well," replied Price, "I don't want you to be offended, but I've been trying to study out why you don't do more business than you do. You have got the stock. Other stores are just rushing. Saturday's, especially, the trade is big. You haven't got your share."

"I have realized that for some time," said John, bitterly.

"Now, I've been thinking up matters for your good, because you have been so kind to me," continued Price, humbly [illegible] sincerely. "I amounted to something once. Had a business, and but for drink would have succeeded. If you will let me do a little advertising for you, I'll guarantee results."

Slow-going John Moore was dubious, but finally he agreed to try the experiment. The next day Price cleaned up the show windows. The next he repainted the front of the store in attractive colors. After that he brought a big brass bell and secured it on a standard over the store doorway with a chain running to the inside of the store.

Early Friday morning a sign appeared above the bell reading: "Every twentieth purchase free—announced by this bell."

Just at noon the bell rang. The excited customer, a farmer, was informed that his purchase would be handed to him free of charge. As he left the store John came rushing back to Price.

"Say," he exclaimed, "you'll ruin me! Why, that was a twelve-dollar overcoat!"

"Never mind," replied Price, confidently. "The average will come out right."

This proved to be true. Curious people came in, making only small purchases. The news got around town. The crowd kept up till midnight. Tired out, but elated, John reckoned up the gains of the day. Counting in the presents given, he was over fifty dollars to the good.

The next week Price had a new scheme, the distribution of a free paper cap to children, advertising the store. The rush kept up.

"Mr. Moore," said Price one evening, "the night business is better than the day. That is because you don't get the trade of the ladies. I've a new suggestion to make. You need a woman behind that dry goods counter. Let me send for my daughter, Martha. We can use the two empty rooms upstairs, and you needn't pay either of us a cent of salary unless we earn it."

So this came about. The result was magical. Martha Price, bright, modest, obliging, brought in the female customers in groups. The pleased old bachelor began to humanise himself with pleasant words instead of frowns. Fortune smiled upon him. In turn he smiled upon Martha.

"It's no use denying it, Price," he said to her father one day, "you two have managed to transform a crusty, self-opinionated, behind-the-time, crusty old bachelor into a real human being. As to you, I'm proud of you."

"Some good in the world after all, am I?" responded Price. "I'm so glad, and Martha is happy as the day is long."

John Moore did some deep thinking the rest of that day. In the early evening, when Price was eating his supper, he went over to the counter where his daughter stood.

"Martha," he said, "I'm going to tell you something that I never told any other woman. Having had no experience, I must be rather plain and blunt."

"Yes?" murmured Martha. Her color heightened.

"I love you, and I want you to be my wife. Of course, a crusty old bachelor—"

"Don't call my father's best friend hard names," interrupted Martha sweetly. "I am only a poor girl, but if true love and devotion will satisfy you—"

Then it was his turn to interrupt—with a kiss.

On Style.

Idiosyncrasies of character tell even more than variety of subjects in their influence on style. No two persons are cast in the same mould. Clearly, therefore, the dress which is very becoming to one writer or speaker may be very unbecoming to another. Yet, to the end of time, in defiance of this truism, packs of imitators dog the steps of genius, as the courtiers of Alexander copied the conqueror's wry neck, or the courtiers of George IV. his bulging cravats, or as the under carter apes the slouch and shamble of the wagoner. This peculiar style in which Carlyle clothed his oracular utterances suited him and them, the jerkiness and joltiness of his sentences startling the world into attention, and the difficulty of unwrapping the mummy from the cerecloths necessitating the effort of Will, without which the thought cannot be grasped. In fact, the style of Carlyle is part of the man and of his temperament. But it was good advice of the dying critic to his friend, "Avoid Carlylese." And what is true of Carlyle and his copyists is true widely. Can any great writer be named who has not had a herd of servile imitators at his heels? Is not the old saying doubly, trebly true in this application, "The best, if corrupted, becomes the worst?"—I. Gregory Smith, in the Oxford and Cambridge Review.

Too Much of a Luxury.

A friend of ours tells us that he went to consult a doctor last week.

"I have some queer pains," said our friend.

"I see," said the doctor, looking wise. "Do you feel a sharp pain low down on your right side?"

"Doc," answered our friend, "I only get $12 a week. Don't go lookin' for any symptoms of appendicitis."

The case was immediately diagnosed as indigestion.

THRIFT IN FARMING

Too Much Land Taken up in Roads and Fencing

An agricultural writer says that the country roads are too wide; that 220 acres in each township is devoted to roads which if made into a farm would yield some one a comfortable income. He says farmers should set their fences out twelve and one-half feet. Upon this the Emporia Gazette makes the comment that farmers do not utilise all the land they have enclosed. There are, it says, numerous and sundry patches which, if cultivated, would add materially to his income. "Suppose he gets after those wastes before he goes in for turning the beautiful wide lanes of the prairies into mere courts."

Both these suggestions are signs of a change in agricultural methods. In the United States, as in Canada, farming has been done with careless prodigality. For this the farmer is not to be blamed. There was plenty of land, and therefore, no apparent need to husband its resources or restore its fertility. In the early history of the United States, the farmer moved from place to place, tapping the wealth of new regions, very much as miners flock to a district where gold has been discovered.

Although this involved waste, it was not altogether evil in its influence. It fostered the pioneer spirit, hastened the development of the country and the building of railways.

But now it is perceived that the resources of the country are not inexhaustible. Although all the land has not been occupied, there are no new and vast regions to attract the pioneer. Conservation of resources becomes a watchword. Desert lands are made fertile by irrigation. Attention is paid to the Southern States, which so long lay under the blight of slave labor.

In France every foot of soil is utilized, and wonderful results are achieved. A country not as large as Texas produces a third as much wheat as the United States, large quantities of other grains and roots, while there are nearly four million acres of vineyards yielding grapes which are manufactured into 627,000,000 gallons of wine. The whole country presents the appearance of a garden.

Of course the United States and Canada are a long way off from this stage of agricultural development, which is due partly to thrift, partly to necessity. But we are bound to move in that direction.—The Star.

The "Cubist" Frock

This design is called the "cubist" gown and is made of Bulgarian brocade plus [illegible] satin, and ribbon black velvet. You see that the designer has followed the cubist idea thus far, that the two sides are not alike. The neck trimming is longer on one side than it is on the other, and the drapery is high upon one hip and low on the other.

Mexican Idea of News

Mexico, despite its revolutions, is one of the most conservative countries in the world. Few of the poorer people can read or write, and the "public newspaper reader" makes a comfortable living by going the round of the drinking places of the city and reciting the news of the day. News, however, is generally stale before it reaches print in a Mexican paper. "Good news," said one Mexican editor to a traveler, "is like good wine: it improves with age. It is always better to hold news over for a week. If it is true, we get more facts; if it proves false, why should we print it?"

Careless Writers

The worst and most careless of all writers are said to be college professors, doctors, ministers of religion, and professional artists.

Watch on the Wrist

It is stated that, as a general thing, the kind of man who wears a watch on his wrist doesn't need all his pockets to carry his money in.

The consumption of cigarettes in Germany has doubled in the last four years.

THE FAMILY CAPITAL

Health the Most Important Factor of Everyday Life

Every wife ought to feel it her duty to take the best possible care of the family capital. The money? Oh, yes, that is the family capital in one sense of course. But in a broader, bigger sense, isn't the true capital of the average family the health of the earner of the income? There are few houses comparatively speaking, where the daily needs are brought from the proceeds of invested money. They are the outcome of invested labor—labor that, to bring in the money regularly, must be reinvested steadily day after day.

Few wives seem to understand this fact quite as fully as they ought. They are apt to use their capital a bit recklessly, making it work for cash returns all day down town, and then forcing it in extra use for social display during the evening. Very little capital of any kind will stand a double strain. Money used for flowers and gowns is not apt to bring in interest for the purchase of the prosaic but necessary pot roast. And as the good housekeeper looks to the providing of household necessities before she spends money on luxuries, so the good wife will look to her husband's health and strength before she spends a bit of either in the acquiring of social pleasures.

The wage earner of a family is of necessity that family's greatest cash asset. It behooves the women of the house to see that he is able to do his best work, with his strength unencumbered by mortgages to lack of sleep, unnecessary weariness or nervous strain. The wage earner of the family is, from the very fact of his being the wage earner, the most important person in it.

It is the duty of his home partner to keep his machinery, both mental and physical, up to its very best mark, or everyone concerned may suffer in that most tender spot of modern anatomy—the pocketbook.

The Middle Child

Whenever there is company
And mother sends for us,
It's always 'bout the baby that
They make the biggest fuss
They say, "She's sweet as she can be!"
"Her hair, just see it curl!"
They never say such things to me,
'Cause I'm the middle girl.

And then they say to sister, "Why,
Is this the oldest child?
She'll be a woman by-and-bye!"
And after they have smiled
And held her hand, they look at me.
Mamma says, "She's begun
To lose her teeth," and then they laugh—
'Cause I'm the middle one!

Then baby speaks her little piece,
And sister's asked to sing;
But no one ever seems to guess
That I do anything.
Although my name is Marguerite—
And Marguerite means "pearl,"
Nobody thinks that I'm sweet,
'Cause I'm the middle girl.

When I grow up, and when I have
A family of my own,
I'll send up for the middle girl
To come downstairs alone;
And I shall let her speak and sing
And have a lot of fun,
I'll not deny her anything
'Cause she's the middle one!

"MUSIC HATH CHARMS"

German Band Ousts Bailiff in Friend's Behalf

A novel method of getting an objectionable caller out of one's house has been invented by a Copenhagen gentleman who had a bailiff sent to his flat. His sympathetic friends at once arranged for a German band to go to the flat, too. Arrived there, the band played with such energy that the poor bailiff, after enduring the "music" for several hours, inquired when they were going to stop. Being told that the band had an engagement "for lifetime," the bailiff urgently requested that another officer should be sent at once, as he could not stand the noise any longer. The relief bailiff was welcomed with a funeral march, and with this tune the band went on practically without interval for five hours. The police were asked to interfere, but answered that they had no power to do so, as the "concert" took place inside the house. The siege was ultimately raised, as it was found impossible to get another bailiff to go near the house, and the band marched out playing, "See the Conquering Hero Comes."

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

WHIRLWIND COURSE OF PARIS BANDITS

How a Gang of Criminals Operated in the French Capital—The Real Villain in the Case

Four Parisian bandits were sent to the guillotine, and another batch went to prison. Carrouay, one of the most desperate of the desperate band, committed suicide in his cell after being sentenced to prison. Three other died "with their boots on" in resisting arrest. The demand of Paris that she be avenged upon the murderers who terrorized her for more than a year was thus met. At the trial it was made reasonably plain that these twenty odd criminal or desperate men or crazy men, and the equal number of women who loved them or protected them or helped them, according to the intelligence of the women, were inspired by a woman. Her name describes her. It is Rirette, which means Little Laugh. She is always laughing, is Anne Maitrejean; laughing at the judge, at the crowds in the court room, at the prisoners, at law and everything else.

Breeding the Bandits

She and her husband, Kilbalchiche, provided the centre round which the terrible bandits performed their death's dance. How they first met the leaders of the bandits is not clear but it is plain that Garnier, Carrouay, Dieudonne, Monier and Raymond used to visit Rirette and her husband and discuss anarchy with them. They were, in fact, taught anarchy by the slim laughing woman, and after they had mastered the general principles which were very agreeable to them, Rirette pointed out that they might put them in practice very easily. She taught them the "individual taking back" notion, as the Anarchists call it, or robbery, as the law calls it, and as they needed money, and were opposed to working hard for it, and had no such ideas of right and wrong as most people entertain there was nothing to check them but the absence of a good plan. It was Raymond who looked at the problem from a purely scientific point of view, and concluded that use should be made of these inventions of science, the automobile and the automatic pistol. Before the bandits became the automobile bandits, however, they committed several burglaries to acquire the the necessary technical experience. According to the diary of Garnier, these jobs netted them from $60 to $80 each. Then at the right moment, after the brilliant idea of Raymond's had been discussed, Rirette introduced to them Bonnot, the incomparable chauffeur. Having Bonnot and the automatic pistols, the next thing was to secure the car.

Crimes of the Bandits

They marked down a likely car and stole it. Then they hid it for a week, and in the meantime picked out their victim, who was a bank runner, with $1,100 in cash and securities amounting to $64,000 in his satchel. They shot him down in the street and escaped with the plunder. The abandoned auto was found next day at Dieppe. There was no clue to the robbers, who separated, some going to Belgium to negotiate the securities and the robbers returning to Paris. Their next robberies were committed upon stores dealing in firearms, and they secured a valuable haul of pistols, rifles and ammunition. Other crimes followed with stirring rapidity. With Bonnot at the wheel of a powerful car it was possible to murder a man in the morning and in the afternoon assassinate another man a couple of hundred miles away. The bandits appeared to be without fear, and the knowledge that they would rather kill than not helped them out of many a tight hole.

Their reign of terror lasted probably fifteen months. Well equipped with money, with disguises and false documents and passports and accomplices, they eluded pursuit for so long, but at length the coils were tightened round them. An indiscreet letter led to the capture of a couple, and supplied a clue to some of the others. The time came when they were known, when it was no longer a matter of hunting men the police would not recognize unless they saw them committing a crime. The cordon closed in. Several were captured; others were shot down. A regiment of soldiers shelled the house where Bonnot turned at bay, and he was destroyed. When Paris saw the others in the dock, she was amazed. They were all mere youngsters, none of them out of the twenties. They are of two kinds, the "tough" and the "dude," and of the two the dude was the deadlier. Most remarkable of all was Rirette, who taught them crime and incited them to murder. She was permitted to go her laughing way.

Over a Camp Fire

An old woodsman gives this method of cooking potatoes over a camp fire: Two frying pans of exactly the same size are used. First fry sliced bacon in one pan. The potatoes sliced or minced are poured over this then more strips of bacon laid on top. The other pan is used as a cover. When the potatoes have browned on one side the pans are held firmly together and turned over and the potatoes are browned on both sides.

Vigorous Health Restored To Run-Down Women

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. Norman La Pierre, wife of a well known resident of Labeniene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow rich and red blood I could never make. When I married I took great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made up by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates and renews health and spirits like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

DID NOT REMEMBER ARREST.

Great Is the City!

The taxpayer who paid for the local waterworks is fined if he uses the water during the day. The taxpayer who maintains the public parks must see the grass grow yellow because men won't work after hours to put the water on. Still the city uses the water forbidden the taxpayers all day for its own purposes. Great is the city!

When French Auto Died.

One of the largest cars in Peterborough, of French vintage, and owned by a George street merchant, is stalled in front of the Gospel Hall, four miles this side of Buckhorn. This auto, when on its way to Buckhorn, in front of the tent gave a sigh, a splutter and died. A staff of mechanics are now out trying to inject ozone into its lungs or put motion into its machinery. It is understood that the shaft is diagnosed as the seat of that automobile's disease.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, William and Allan at home and Frank, of Detroit, and three daughters, Mrs. Blackburn, of Peterborough Mrs. Carveth, of Douro, and Miss Eleanor at home.

The funeral will take place to-day from the family residence to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

Lax Methods Barnado Home?

Before the police court opened yesterday morning, Special Police Officer Miller, of the C. P. R., told The Times that the local Barnado Home is very lax in looking after children arriving for the Peterborough home. He noted that a little girl arrived here on Saturday from Orillia at 7.25 a.m., per the Port McNicholl line. There was no one present to meet the child who had to wait until 10 o'clock when, after repeated telephone messages, the little one was taken in charge at 10 o'clock. He also reminded The Times of another boy who arrived here at 11.43 a.m., from Toronto, some days ago and was not met. The officer was not acquainted with the child's delay, at a strange depot, until 11.30 He then took the little boy out and bought him a meal. The child, some hours afterwards, was sent for.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

G. H.: Your friend was right when she said you can dissolve the fatty tissues and thus regain your symmetrical figure if you use simple parnotis for a while. To prepare, dissolve 4 ounces parnotis in 1½ pints hot water and when it cools take a tablespoonful before each meal. You will require no dieting or rigid exercising and while parnotis quickly removes the burdensome fat, it in no way distorts the figure. When your weight is where you want it, you can safely discontinue the treatment and your skin and flesh will be smooth and firm.

Mrs. A: It is foolish to countenance that fuzzy growth on your chin. Get a small, original package of delatone and with a little water mix enough of the powder to make a thick paste, then spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Be careful it is delatone you use.

Mrs. P. M.: You can greatly add to your beauty by applying pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. This makes them grow long and slightly curly. Rub a little pyroxin and eyebrows and they will come in thick and lustrous. Be very careful and don't get pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

Anna: As I have before said, an excessively oily scalp or one covered with dandruff, indicates a deceased condition which eventually causes the hair to lose its life and lustre and then fall out. The recipe for my quinzoin hair tonic I am giving you will correct these faults and keep the scalp healthy so that a luxurious growth of soft, fluffy hair naturally follows. Into ½ pint alcohol pour 1 ounce quinzoin, then add half pint water. Use this tonic frequently and you will not be bothered with dandruff or excess oil and the color of your hair will be rich and even.

Hope: You are quite right, powder does not protect the skin. It smothers the small pores and causes many complexion troubles. I have found the very best thing to use is a home made spurmax lotion prepared as follows: In ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, dissolve 4 ounces spurmax, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. I apply sparingly after washing and drying the skin and am always delighted with the rose-tint and velvety smoothness my complexion assumes. This spurmax lotion is ideal for hot, windy days, because it really protects the skin and assists nature in its beautifying process.

Florence: Your hair will regain its rich lustre and soft fluff if cleansed occasionally with a mild shampoo. The best thing I know of for this purpose is plain canthrox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in a cup hot water is sufficient for the thickest growth of hair. Canthrox creates a wonderful amount of white, thick lather that cleanses and invigorates and insures a healthy condition. Dry, itchy or profusely oily scalps are soon put in a healthy condition by shampooing frequently with canthrox, and dull, "stringy," brittle hair grows bright and even in color and will be ever so soft and fluffy.

Laura: I think your eyes will be both cured and beautified by a crystos eye-tonic, made by dissolving 1 ounce crystos in a pint cold, clear water; then, put 2 or 3 drops in each eye occasionally for a few days This will relieve the smart and ache and is very restful to tired eye muscles The crystos eye-tonic is absolutely harmless and should be kept handy to use when you get any foreign particle in the eye.

Christine: Your sallow, yellow skin indicates a liver upset, and if I were you I should make up and use the old-time kardene blood, kidney and liver tonic. This is prepared by pouring 1 ounce kardene into ½ pint alcohol (do not use whiskey) and then adding ½ cupful sugar and hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before meals and your skin will soon be clear and beautiful. The kardene tonic is good for all skin troubles, because it eliminates from the system the poisons causing them, and its timely use frequently prevents serious sickness.

Cora: I cannot say what caused the wrinkles and lines in your skin—probably extreme dryness. Here is a preparation which I make up for myself, which quickly removes the wrinkles and restores the softness and natural tone to the skin. Get an ounce of almozoin at the drug store and dissolve it in ½ pint cold water, adding two teaspoons glycerine. Apply before retiring and leave over night. This will remove wrinkles, prevent crow's feet and make your face soft and satony. It clears and whitens the skin, too, and you feel and see the effect immediately.

Local Blacksmith Hurt.

Shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday, Comstock's ambulance went at full gallop, east on Hunter street to the shop on this thoroughfare occupied by Mr. Bathgate, blacksmith. It seems that Mr. Bathgate, whilst repairing a pump had it on the fire. Some water in one of the cylinders had no means of escape, and an explosion resulted. Pieces flew in all directions. One piece struck Mr Bathgate in the stomach and threw him up against a bench. He received many scatches round the face and arms, and when Dr. Sutton arrived he deemed it advisable to have him sent to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Lindsay Cops Knocked Out.

Lindsay, Aug. 25.—Halley Kellett, from Toronto Junction struck town and after getting a comfortable jag on prepared to clean up the frequenters of the Hotel Benson. Kellett is possessed of a boney frame and an abundance of muscle. It was about 8.30 o'clock p.m.. Nigh constable, John Short, was informed that a bad man was making himself disagreeable to the management of the Hotel Benson. The constable at once repaired to the scene of the disturbance. On entering the bar, Constable Short remonstrated with his man and prepared to arrest him. The two men grappled and fell to the floor with the policeman on top. The second round was an uppercut delivered upon Constable Short's dome of thought in the region of the right temple. This blow left the great big policeman hors de combat and he lay for several minutes with his adversary bending over him rubbing his gean and endeavoring to revive him. Chief Chilton later on arrested the man after getting a severe blow in the face. The prisoner was remanded until Wednesday.

BIG POLITICAL SCANDAL LOOMS UP OVER A LEASE OF ISLAND

Deadman's Island Matter to be Aired in The British Columbia Courts

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—A notorious Liberal scandal will be aired shortly in the Dominion Exchequer Court, when several ex-cabinet ministers will probably be called to testify in a suit over the disposal of Deadman's Island, a valuable island off the City of Vancouver and which is needed in the new scheme of harbor construction being carried on by the government at the coast city.

Leased to Favorite.

This island which is worth some four or five million dollars was leased to Theodore Ludgate, a well-known Liberal politician by the old government in 1889 for the paltry sum of $500 a year. This lease was for twenty-five years and was renewable. The land is military property and it is claimed now that Sir Frederick Borden had no right to sign the lease and that it was never properly passed by council.

City Protested.

The City of Vancouver from the first vigorously protested against the property being practically given away in this manner. The city in addition to wanting the island for harbor development purposes was anxious to retain it for a park and claimed that it was part of Stanley Park which the city owns. Ludgates lease was really for the Vancouver Lumber Company which proposed to ruin the beauty of the island by cutting all the timber.

There has been a long legal fight over ownership of the island and since the Borden government has come into power the federal authorities have tried through the courts to get repossession of the property of the people.

May Be Interesting.

The Vancauver Lumber Company claims that after consultation with Sir Frederick Borden in 1900 amendments to the lease were made that proved the title of the company. Sir Frederick and a number of other cabinet ministers will probably be called upon when the case comes up in the court of Exchequer on Sept. 8 to tell what they know about the scandal and there promises to be some interesting developments.

HON. R. ROGERS REVEALS HYPOCRISY OF LIBERALS IN OPPOSING CLOSURE

Sir Alan Aylesworth Had Prepared Measure Which Was Far More Drastic Than Bill Passed by The Conservatives Last Session

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—The hypocrisy of the Liberals in opposing the closure measure and in shouting that free speech was gone and parliament gagged was effectively exposed by Hon. Robert Rogers in a speech at Vancouver last week. Not only did Mr. Rogers show that the Liberal ex-Ministers had nearly all spoken strongly in favor of such a measure, but he produced a bill which Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, who as Minister of Justice had charge of legislation, had actually prepared. ...

AYLESWORTH CLOSURE BILL

The Aylesworth closure bill as drawn up for introduction into the house was as follows:

That the following be adopted as additional rules of the House of Commons, adopted July 10, 1906, immediately after rule 42, to wit:—

42 (A) 1—After a question has been proposed, a member, rising in his place, may claim to move, "that the question be now put," and unless it shall appear to the chair that such motion is an abuse of the rules of the House, or an infringement of the rights of minority, the question "that the question be now put" shall be put forthwith, and decided without amendment or debate.

2—When the motion "that the question be now put," has been carried and the question consequent thereon has been decided, any further motion may be made, the assent of the chair as aforesaid, not having been withheld by which it may be requisite to bring to a decision any question already proposed from the chair, such motions shall be put forthwith and decided without amendment or debate.

3—Provided always that this rule shall be put in force when the speaker and chairman of committees referred to in rule 13, sub-section 2 of these rules is in the chair.

42 (B)—Questions for the closure of debate under rules "closure of debate" shall be decided in the affirmative, if, when advisation be taken, it appears by the numbers declared from the chair, that not less than thirty-six members voted in the majority in support of the motion.

GUILLOTINE OF THE WORST KIND

This closure which the Liberals proposed to introduce and which makes their position so much the worse, was a guillotine of the worst description being even more arbitrary than that in force now n the British house.

Under the Conservative closure bill action can only be taken by a member of the government and at least twenty-four hours' notice must be given, which permits a continuation of the debate for that period. The Laurier-Aylesworth bill would have permitted any member of Parliament to demand the closure, and as thirty-six members in a House of nearly 230, constituted a majority in its favor, the debate was at once strangled. ...

LIBERALS FAVORED CLOSURE

Discussing the question at Vancouver Mr. Rogers said:

"These assurances were endorsed by the then Minister of Justice, Sir Allan Aylesworth, who assured the people of Canada that Mr. Fisher was not only speaking for the late government, but he was speaking for the whole so-called Liberal party when he gave his positive and definite assurances of the introduction of a closure measure. And it is quite evident that Sir Allan Aylesworth knew exactly what he was italking about, and, as the officer responsible for the legislation in Parliament, he had prepared a bill to carry into effect the pledges made to the people of the country in the matter of closure, and the bill so prepared by Sir Allan Aylesworth makes clear it was the intention of Laurier to bring in closure with a vengence, because they were adopting the English form in its entirety, where they make it possible for any member of the House to rise at any given moment, in his place, and demand that a vote be immediately taken on any question under discussion. If he could carry a majority, and have thirty-six members out of a House of 230 to support him, then their guillotine would drop.

"The unfortunate part of our closure bill is that we have not the power to extend it to the Senate chamber. If we had Canada would be saved the humiliation which resulted in the action of the unpatriotic majority of that body. For this humiliation the Liberal party in Canada are to blame in that they allowed their principles to be replaced by Laurierism, a political creed, evidently willing today to sacrifie the needs of the country and the Empire for the ambitions of its founder."

B.C. COURTS NOW FACE A BIG WEEKS WORK

Some 100 Men to Be Placed on Trial For Rioting and Assault.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 26.—To-day will begin the biggest week in the forensic annals of British Columbia, perhaps Canada. At least 100 men, and that number will be augmented each day, will be placed on their preliminary hearings on charges of rioting and assault, in the Nanaimo and Ladysmith courts. The previous record in the Province was 135 men and the preliminary charges in those cases occupied 38 days.

The cases will be heard in record quick time. Owing to the fact that the offences charged are to a great extent the same, the men will be tried in batches and it is thought that five or six batches will cover the lot.

A DIFFICULT LEGAL POINT

Port Hope, Aug. 26.—The by-law granting an exclusive ten-year franchise for light and power to the Seymour Power Company carried here to-day by a vote of 418 to 14. The total vote in the town is about 1,200.

A peculiar situation has arisen in connection with the voting. Chief of police Gummerson, acting on instructions from Police Magistrate White, made a round of all the hotels and ordered them to close the bars, it being election day. Some of the hotelkeepers complied, but W. Peifer of the St. Lawrence, and L. Bennet of the Queen's, claiming that it was neither a municipal, provincial nor Dominion election, refused to comply with the chief's orders and kept their bars open.

They were served with summonses this afternoon to appear in court to-morrow morning. If they are fined they will appeal and make a test case. If they are discharged the other hotelmen who closed down their bars will take action against the town for damages compelling them to close.

SHERBROOKE, QUE., NEWSPAPER MECCA

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 26.—This city has more newspaper men per capita of its 20,000 population than any other city in the world. If it has been the legal Mecca of America for the past week, it has been far more so the newspaper Mecca of an interested continent; and the quality of the journalistic element represented is as high as its numbers. The best men from the biggest papers in the United States and Canada are straining every nerve and muscle to "beat the other fellow." They have followed Thaw through his hectic, mottled, career, they have covered the biggest things when the press has had to cover, and once again they are coping with Harry K. Thaw millionaire, murderer, lunatic.

Frank Besler, of the Associated Press, who left his position as City Editor in New York, with a special operator and two assistants, one from Boston and one from Montreal, arrived on the scene last Wednesday the vanguard of thirty others, the best of New York's reporters.

Although only 27 years old, Besler handled the gruesome Halifax end of the Titanic disaster. The funeral ship, it will be recalled, docked at Halifax.

Adonis From New York Sun.

The Adonis of the newspaper army is L. S. Walbridge, star reporter of the New York Sun. He handles his job alone. A tall, blue-eyed, fair-haired giant, Walbridge, known all over the United States as a color or descriptive writer of exceptional ability, is easily the social favorite.

Edward Becker, of the New York World, commonly known as the "mystery" man, jumped over to Europe where he spent six months in quest of the missing Dorothy Arnold, the New York heiress whose disappearance has never been solved.

Roy Winkler, of the New York American staff, is another reporter whose activities are much feared by his brother newspaper men.

12,000 ENTER NEW YORK

Record in Steamship Passenger Traffic Made Yesterday From Eight Lines.

New York, Aug. 26.—The beginning of the heavy autumn passenger traffic from Europe brought more than 12,000 passengers to New York on eight trans-Atlantic liners that made port between yesterday's sunrise and last midnight. The number is one of the largest ever recorded here for a single day. The customs service was swamped with work, more than three thousand of the travellers being of the second cabin class.

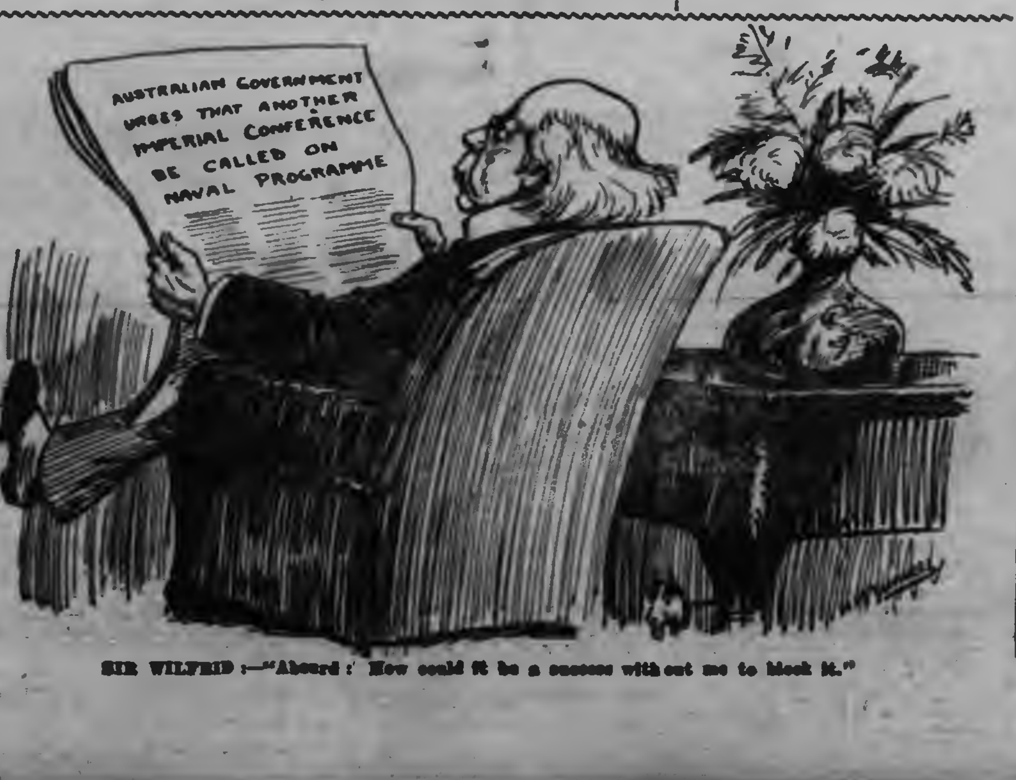
PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT TO BE NEXT GOV.-GENERAL

Unofficial Announcement Made in London Paper--The Duchess May Not Return to Canada With the Duke

London, Aug. 26.—The Daily Graphic claims to-day to be in a position to state that Prince Arthur of Connaught will succeed his father as Governor-General of Canada, and that the Duke will formally hand over the office and introduce him to the heads of the Canadian executive before returning.

On leaving Canada the Duke will regard his public career as having definitely ended, and he will settle at Bagshot Park, devoting his time to the development of a stud farm scheme for the rearing of horses suitable for use by the army.

The paper adds that it is by no means certain the Duchess will accompany the Duke and her daughter to the wedding of Prince Arthur will entail a certain strain upon her Royal Highness, and not until the end of the next few weeks will the decision as to Canada be definitely made. Should a further stay in England prove necessary for the Duchess, Princess Patricia will act as hostess during the whole of the official ceremonies in the Dominion, and will accompany her father upon an extensive farewell tour that he hopes to take through Canada prior to leaving for good.



AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT URGES THAT ANOTHER IMPERIAL CONFERENCE BE CALLED ON NAVAL PROGRAMME

SIR WILFRID:—"Absurd! How could it be a success without me to block it."

U. S. LEGAL LIGHT WOULD PUNCTURE IMMIGRATION LAW

Ex-Governor of Pennsylvannia Devises New Lever on the Thaw Millions

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 26.—"The snow will be deep on Canadian soil before Harry K. Thaw will be forced out of the country," was the remark made by William A. Stone, former Governor of Pennsylvania, and now the recognized directing genius of Harry Thaw's battle with the Canadian courts and the Dominion Immigration Department.

That Thaw will make an international question of his rights and will bring up for interpretation the treaty which now exists between Canada and the land to the south, is inferred by Mr. Stone's declaration.

The present immigration laws are only three years old and according to the former Governor have never been really tested in the courts.

"The treaty now existing between our nation and Canada," continued Governor Stone, "guarantees the same rights to an American citizen as to a Canadian."

American May Enter by Stealth.

Governor Stone then declared that a Canadian who enters Canada by stealth would have the right to appeal to the courts if an attempt was made to put him out of the country, and Mr. Stone was positive that an American had the same right.

Thaw's counsel, it is understood, will appeal to the Minister of the Interior on the Immigration Court of Inquiry to sit probably on Thursday in Coaticook. Should the Minister of the Interior sustain the decision of the board of inquiry, the question of a citizen of the United States having the right to demand a civil trial of his case will be forced.

"Should Thaw finally be deported," said William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney of New York State, who arrived here to-day "his extradition of New York will be in the hands of the Governor of the State to which he is sent. Politics have sometimes something to do with cases of this sort."

Thaw issued a statement to the press to-day written in his own hand.

TRIED TO SWIM ACROSS BAY WITH HANDS AND FEET TIED

Margaret Quincy Did Not Succeed in Effort--Weather Was Not Propitious for the Hazardous Attempt--A Classy Swimmer

Toronto, Aug. 26.—The hazardous attempt of Margaret Quincy to swim across the bay from the foot of York street to Hanlan's point with her hands and feet tied ended in excusable failure. The fault was not the young woman's, but that of the weather.

She started bravely at 10.30 from the Toronto Motor Boat Club with her hands and feet locked by two handkerchiefs, and swam for half a mile, but the choppy seas brought up by a stiff northwester forced her to stop when strifle over half way.

Mrs. Quincy is a classy swimmer, and on a smooth day would undoubtedly make the journey successfully, but after half an hour's fighting against the short choppy seas which struck her in the face, she desisted and announced her intention of making the journey later on. Mrs. Quincy showed enough on her half mile journey to convince the onlookers that under favorable canditions she could accomplish the feat.

Mrs. Quincy, who is a modest little woman of only 125 pounds, is not at all cast down by her failure, and will attempt the feat on Thursday again. She swims on her breast, swinging her tied hands from side to side, and helps herself on with a straight drive with her tied feet. The stroke is a very tiresome one, and tired several men who have tried it in less than 100 yards.

AFRAID OF PROFESSIONALISM WON'T GIVE TO OLYMPIC FUND

British Public Holds Back From $100,000 Fund to Train British Olympic Team, Fearing to Destroy the Spirit of Amateur Sportsmanship

London, Aug. 26.—The British National appeal for a hundred thousand pounds for the Olympic Fund, has been a surprising failure despite a letter of support from the King and the enthusiastic advocacy of leading newspapers. So far, after eight days' hard work, the fund is only £5,226, of which the Duke of Westminster gave £1,000, Lord Northcliffe and his newspapers gave £2,750, and members of the committee of the main, part of the remainder. The general public is only contributing a few hundred pounds This failure is partly due to the Fund being launched at the wrong time, when everyone is holidaying, but mainly to British distrust of the professionalism which people consider will be fostered by the present tactics. Frederic Harrison declares today that the whole affair stinks of gate money and professional pot hunting. "For what is all this money wanted," he asks. "In order to meet on equal terms foreign athletes who are not real amateurs, some of whom cannot be trusted to play the game with absolute fairness as competitors, nor as spectators behave like gentlemen with good humor, decency, or self-control? The blackguardly yelling of graft and sharp practice will soon degrade our Olympic to the level of a mob at an old fashioned prize fight, the brutalities of which Jack Johnson is coming over to teach us." Harrison suggests that England should decline to enter the Olympic games, and then challenge the world to meet us at cricket, football, or steeplechase.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 388 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

STRONG LEADER OF DOUKHOBORS

Peter Veregin Practically Despot Although a Benevolent One to His Strange Followers

Out of a lengthy official report emerges the figure of an empire builder in a small way—Peter Veregin, leader of the Russian Doukhobors in British Columbia. The report was made to the British Columbian Government by William Blakemore, who was appointed to inquire into the desirability of the Doukhobors as colonists. It has many interesting things to say of them, but its striking feature is the picture it sketches of their leader.

Back in Russia in the time of their persecution they were led by a woman, Lukerya Vasylyvna Kalmykova. On her death Veregin succeeded to the office. The sect split, Veregin's enemies had him exiled to Siberia and sleighs travelled 2,000 miles [illegible] the snow to maintain communication between him and his people. After the Doukhobors were enabled to migrate to Canada things went badly. Therefore the Russian Gogernment was induced to liberate Veregin, and he became the actual ruler of the Doukhobors.

He is described as a benevolent despot, absolutely devoted to the interests of the Doukhobors, at all times plotting, planning and scheming to advance their cause, not enriching himself, ruling with a rod of iron, exacting implicit obedience and exercising rigid discipline.

He is a big man in every sense of the word; the history and traditions of his people, his own suferings, his contact with great men have been his education. He inherits the characteristics of his race, among which are strong reasoning capacity, diplomatic skill and subtlety. The greatest evidence of his ability is the manner in which he has for years been able to hold together his people in an environment entirely alien to their ideas, their cherished beliefs and their ambitions. In the freest country in the world, where individual feeling is the keynote, says Mr. Blakemore, he still holds six-sevenths of the original settlement in the thrall of community life, with individuality extinguished except for his own personal control. He is in fact a theocratic czar; he possesses not only the genius but the capacity for governing.

His personality is both attractive and impressive. He is tall, broad, muscular, massive, with a fine head, great natural dignity of carriage and the atmosphere of strength. Yet, like many such men, he has a remarkably gentle manner.

His people yield him the utmost deference and obedience, due, perhaps not altogether to his great personal endowments and magnetism but partly to their religious belief, which invests him with almost supernatural attributes.

The final conclusion of the report is that the real problem is not the Doukhobors, but Peter Veregin, "for through it all the figure of Peter Veregin looms majestic and all powerful."

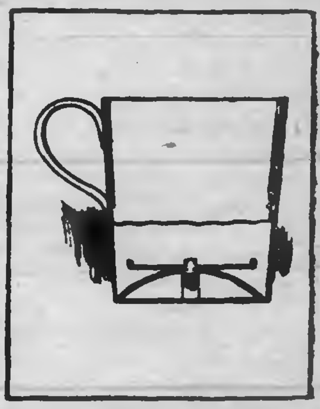
As for the Doukhobors themselves, the report spoke favorably of what they have accomplished. The chief ground of complaint against them is that they refuse to comply with certain laws, the school laws among others, and that they will not be naturalised. There were also questions raised as to their general morality and their community system, in the working out of which supplies are purchased at wholesale, and very little trade is enjoyed by local retail merchants.

The report found that the Doukhobors were desirable settlers from the standpoint of their personal character, farming skill and general industry. It recommended that the government follow a policy of patience toward them and put pressure on the leaders to secure compliance with the laws, resorting in case of prosecutions to the imposition of fines rather than imprisonment, which the Doukhobors regard as persecution. It opposed the admittance of Doukhobors into Canada in future save on the clear understanding that no exceptions of any kind will be allowed in the matter of observance of laws.

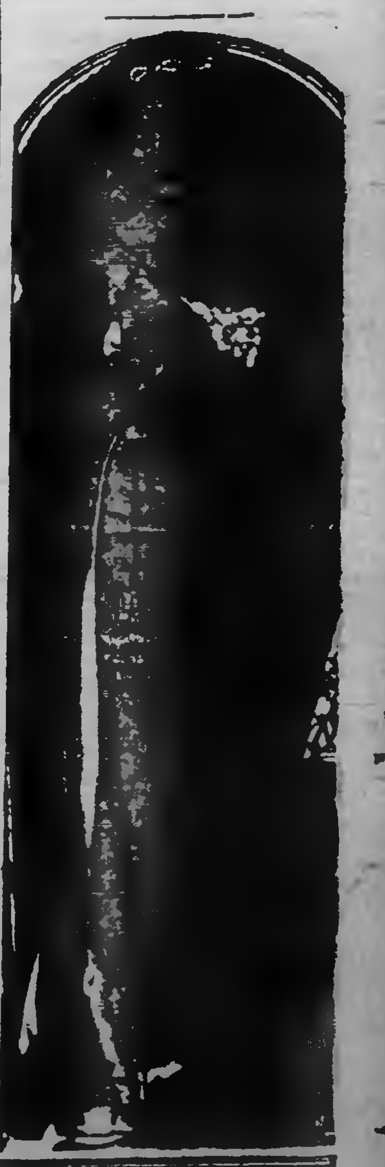
SHAVING SOAP HOLDER

Keeps Soap High and Dry Above Bottom of Shaving Mug

An ingenious barber designed a simple and effective holder for shaving soap in the cake. A metal platform has a pair of bowed springs, crossing each other at right angles, mounted under it. The ends of the springs project beyond the edge of the platform. To place the contrivance in the shaving mug, all that is necessary is to bend in all four ends of the springs, lower it to the bottom of of the mug and release the springs. They fly out and engage the sides of the cup, holding the platform firmly several inches above the bottom of the receptacle. The edge of the platform is turned up at points to keep the soap from sliding off. The advantage of this device is the saving of soap, which, when it lies in the bottom of the mug in the midst of water and lather, wastes away to a large extent.



MAKES SOAP LAST LONGER.



For Special Occasions

"Simple but elegant" is an expression often used in describing women's clothes. It exactly suits the full-length model pictured here.

Every woman and girl likes to have one really nice dress in a season which she feels she can wear at any special affair and look well.

It may be made, like the illustration, with low neck, short sleeves, and semi-train. Or it may be easily converted into a high neck, long-sleeved costume by the use of a separate guimp with sleeves attached.

The foundation of the dress is apricot-pink satin with a tunic of green chiffon.

Other materials or color combinations may be substituted to suit the individual taste.

The handy needlewoman will do all the embroidering on the tunic.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

A Toronto paper asks "how much talk is too much." If it should attend the session of the Dominion Parliament for one day it would have no trouble in reaching a decision.

A Nork Dakota man became insane over a mock marriage. We mention the fact because it is such a trifling incident compared to the thousands of men who became insane because their marriage was the real thing.

"Money is might" is rather bromidic, but it seems to be most appropriate aphorism with which to describe the escape of Harry Kendell Thaw from the mothering arms of Mattewan.

Not only Sir Wilfird Laurier but Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux attacked the Closure Bill at the recent St. Hyacinthe meeting, and yet Lemieux just two years previously on the same platform had vigorously advocated closure, and solemnly announced that if the Liberals were elected a closure measure would be introduced.

BEEF HANGS HIGH.

The announcement comes from Chicago that beefsteak will go to 40 cents a pound next winter, and may possibly reach 50 cents. The people, we are sure, will read the news with a philosophic resignation born of experience. It is not more harrowing than a prophecy of 25-cent beefsteak would have been twenty years ago. Our evils, like our joys, are comparative, and the masses of consumers hav? become so accustomed to high prices for choice cuts of beef that they have cultivated a feeling of grim indifference to any further turning of the screw.

They have cultivated also a growing partiality for substitutes for meat and many hearty meat-eaters of other days are now converts to what we may call near-vegetarianism. Doubtless they feel physically as "fit" as they ever did before in their lives. While we must guard against condemning the Beef Trust for natural conditions of supply and demand for which it is not responsible, at least directly we can still decline to wear its yoke. Forty-cent beef steak may appeal to the palate, but we can get along without it. We cannot increase the supply of beef, but we can decrease the demand by eating substitutes for it

Stuffy Feeling About the Nose Relieved at Once

Tells How to Cure Hawking and Spitting, and Drive Out Catarrhal Colds.

Isn't it miserable to have a stuffed-up feeling in the nostrils — to be scarcely able to draw a full breath. When Catarrh gets into the nose you're bound to know something is radically wrong.

A dead sure cure, and a simple one to use, is Catarrhozone; you just breathe it—that's all. You see Catarrhozone Inhaler sends healing piney vapors through the nose, throat and lungs, and these antiseptic soothing vapors are death to colds or Catarrh.

Thousands testify every year that nothing ever discovered will cure a cold, or help the throat like Catarrhozone. Mr. Everett L. Wassan, of Blair, N.B., writes:—"About five years ago I took a cold in the head, and Catarrh set in. It kept increasing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything unt I at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, "Catarrhozone," and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catarrhozone to all who have Catarrh, etc."

Catarrhozone is the greatest remedy for colds, etc., since people began to have colds. Get the dollar package and let the whole family use it. Medium size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

SEPTEMBER AN IDEAL MONTH

In the Algonquin National Park of Ontario, the month of September is one of the most beautiful of the year. The "Highland Inn." situated on Cache Lake, 2,000 feet above sea level, offers all the comforts one may desire at reasonable rates. The region is a natural playground of over 2,500,000 acres, and those who love Nature and the wild things that live in her confines can enjoy themselves to their heart's content. Algonquin Park Station, where the "Highland Inn" is situated, is only 168 miles west of Ottawa and 200 miles north of Toronto. For anyone whose nerves are troublesome, or, through over-work needs a rest, or whose health is run down, there is not a more delightful place in America. The log cabin which was operated this year on Smoke Lake has become very popular and has been patronized by a large number of people. The camp is called "Nominigan," the Indian word for Balsam, and is situated in a delightful spot in the centre of one of the best fishing districts, and surrounded by beautiful scenery.

Write to J. E. Colson, Manager "Highland Inn," Algonquin Park, Ont., for all particulars and illustrated booklet.

RAN BASES IN CORSETS

Clymer Turned Tables Nicely on Practical Jokers

Manager Bill Clymer of the Buffalo International League team has somewhat of a reputation as a comedian on the coaching lines. Regardless of the fact that he is permitted to do things that others are not he is considered a favorite in Toronto, having formerly been a member of the Leaf team.

Shortly after he left the Toronto team some of his friends put up a joke on Clymer and through the umpire made a presentation to Bill along about the seventh innings, when the Leafs were leading by two runs. As Bill came to the plate the umpire handed him a large cardboard box which was carefully wrapped up and looked very promising. Closer inspection disclosed a pair of corsets. Nothing daunted, Clymer calmly put them on, stepped up to the plate, and hit the first pitched ball over the left field fence for a home run, scoring two runners ahead of him and putting Buffalo in the lead.

FIFTY YEARS MORE FOR MONTE CARLO

Famous Gambling Resort Renewed Lease With Prince of Monaco Who is a Carefree Monarch

It is a little over fifty years since Francois Blanc made his deal with the reigning Prince of Monaco and set up his Temple to the Goddess of Chance, the most famous gambling rooms in the world. Even fifty years ago public sentiment strongly condemned gambling, so an out-of-the-way spot had to be found by Blanc when he determined to establish gambling on a grand scale. In Prince Charles III. of Monaco he found the man he had been looking for. Charles was a bonafide prince at the head of a free country, and he was also in very hard luck, being so badly pressed for money that he had been obliged to sell part of his territory to France.

So Blanc was able to make a bargain that was profitable to both. He paid a large sum of money down, agreed to pay all the expenses of the principality, and to hand over a certain percentage of his winnings in exchange for the exclusive privileges of gambling in the principality of Monaco, the rights to extend for fifty years.

New Agreement Made

The lease came to an end recently, but in exchange for a bonus running into the millions the Prince of Monaco extended it for another fifty years. This was a breach of faith, for it was only on the understanding that the bargain should be terminated at the end of the original lease that the present Prince of Monaco was recognized and received by Queen Victoria by Emperor William and by some other monarchs, who saw in him merely the agreeable protector of a gambling game. The Prince, however, is so absorbed in his scientific studies that he is indifferent to the praise or censure of the world. Since his people pay no taxes and are all well fed and contented, they have no complaint to make, and since the gambling tables add yearly to the Blanc millions, he, too, is satisfied.

Blanc's Strange Career

Francois Blanc, the founder of the gambling industry, had a remarkable history. He was a Frenchman, and a broker. When he attempted to secure a seat on the Stock Exchange at Bordeaux his reputation was so unsavory that his application was rejected. Shortly afterward he moved to Tours, and he and his brother were placed on trial for bribing semaphore operators to transmit wrong messages. In those days the despatches on which the Stock Exchange business was transacted were sent by means of semaphores, and by bribing the men operating the signals the Blanc brothers put through what would now be called a wire-tapping game. The operators were convicted and imprisoned, but the Blancs escaped on a technicality. Francois, however, realizing that his reputation was against him in France, moved to Germany, and there went boldly into the business of running a gambling establishment. He operated a resort at Homburg for some time, and made a lot of money.

Gambler by Nature

Sentiment against the game was growing, however, and Blanc realised that it would not be long before the petty States that permitted gambling would be wiped out as political entities. So he began to look elsewhere for a site, and hit upon Monaco, a tiny principality which no other country envied save for its wonderful climate, and, finding the ruling prince in straits made the deal. Old Blanc is said to have been an inveterate gambler, and for hours would dice alone, his right hand against his left. Frequently he would play against his own tables, not stopping to realize that whether he won or lost he was playing against his own money. He acquired an immense fortune, and some of his children married into royal families. The only son, Edmond Blanc, is now the head of the gambling establishment.

Patron of the Turf

He is famous as a patron of the turf, being by far the most important breeder of racehorses in France. It was he who paid a record price for Flying Fox. He made several vain attempts to win the English Derby, and has been a frequent starter on the English turf. In France he has won all the great races, the Grand Prix at Longchamps no fewer than nine times. In spite of his wealth and his racing success he has been unable to secure admittance to the French Jockey Club. He is said to feel the slight very keenly.

A Handy Chicken Fount

Small chicks, in order to do well, require access to good drinking water at any time they want it, and in such a manner as to prevent their getting into it, fouling it or drowning themselves. This can be done at small expense. Take a clean tin can, such as a baking-powder can, and punch a small hole through it near the rim. Then fill the can with water and place a dish over it, the diameter of which is about two inches more than that of the can. By turning the can and dish over quickly, the fountain can be set anywhere desired, for as fast as the chicks drink the water out of the dish it will be automatically filled from the tank.

Government Gave Land

The Ontario Government gave two hundred feet of land off the Institute for the Blind grounds to be used under Parks Board auspices for recreation purposes. Conditions are attached that no buildings are to be erected on the ground without the consent of the Minister of Education.

A Boston man visited the Trent Valley looking after the thousands of logs that are submerged in the water. He stated that with the present high price of lumber, there is money to be made in raising the sunken lumber.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

During the cold weather the skin on the hands is liable to chap and the finger nails are liable to become brittle and break off. Both give the hands a very neglected appearance, which with just a little care and time can be avoided.

Before retiring for the night rub cold cream or a preparation of rosewater and glycerine on the hands till it has been entirely absorbed, also after washing the hands rub on a bit of cold cream, not enough to make them oily but enough to soften the skin. This will prevent chapping.

DANGER IN ATHLETICS

Wide Difference in Healthy Exercise and Machine Work Says Physician

Athletic recklessness is a grown health menace, says a widely known physician. The enthusiasts for physical education have hitherto failed to emphasize the important distinction between these strenuous performances which tax the body to its utmost (comprehended in the term "athletics") and that exercise of the bodily functions more appropriately included under the designation "physical education."

Europeans have a happy expression for the employment of their bodily activities in the word "sport," which implies the combination of a healthy spirit of pleasure and satisfaction with which we call exercise. "Athletics have long been under the dominance of so-called "trainers," frequently men of keen judgment and technical skill but usually persons without any systematic acquaintance with physiological truths. Their sole concern is to turn out a winning team or a victorious athletic giant.

Universally athletics and the conduct of intercollegiate contests should receive a more serious consideration from those who assume responsibility for these features of college life. This is a most timely moment in which to inaugurate a campaign against athletic recklessness. If college athletics of to-day are a menace to health, they cannot escape the attack of those who are alert for every evidence of human extravagance and waste.

The best intellectual feature of rival contests—the encouragement for each man to put forth the best that is in him and to exercise his own ingenuity in the development and maintenance of an efficient superior body—is superseded by the advent of the guardian saint the trainer. It can be freely admitted that the cultivation of physical intelligence furnishes a valuable asset to man in developing co-ordination and promoting health and happiness.

But when the results of vigorous sports or exhausting struggles are involved, something more than a "pardonable pride in an expanding chest and swelling biceps" should furnish the guiding motive. The obvious abuses of athletics must be threshed out.

A Soda Lake

Signor Caviechioni in his official report upon his visit to Lake Magadi, in East Africa states that the lake in question is a lake of pure soda, and although at a distance it appears to be of water, its surface is solid and dazzlingly white. The lake comprises 30 square miles, and at present a considerable quantity of soda is daily taken from it, while a railway is under construction from the lake to the Uganda Railway. When the railway is completed it is expected that Lake Magadi will supply soda to the world.

FISH HATCHERIES ON GREAT LAKES

Nearly everyone in Canada is aware of the enormous amount of fish of all kinds that is taken from the Great Lakes during the fishing season, which extends from early spring until late in November. Thousands of men are at work every day cleaning out the nets and preparing the catches for shipment to the big markets throughout Canada and the United States. A trip over the waters of the lakes will reveal the homes of these fishermen scattered along the shores from Kingston to the head of Lake Superior.

To offset the heavy drain on the resources of the lakes, the Dominion Government established at various points fish hatcheries, where the little minnows are hatched from the eggs and later put into the lakes. A number of these stations are in Ontario, the chief plants being at Sarnia, Sandwich, Collingwood, Ottawa, Wiarton, Southampton, Newcastle and Port Arthur. The United States Government also has a number of these stations along the American shore where a very large number of fish are also turned out.—Rod and Gun.

Memorial Stones

In every part of Palestine, along the roadside and in the fields, particularly on the hilltops, may be seen piles of stones, usually not over three feet high. If we should question a native about them he would tell us that they are "memorial stones" set up in recognition of some special providence of God. If we should examine the stones closely we would discover that they are blackened with oil, which indicates their sacredness, as they had been anointed. These stone heaps actually became objects of worship so common that Moses issued edicts against them.—Christian Herald.

CRICKET.

The Yorkshire Society were victorious in their game with St. Edmund's C.C. on Saturday. St. Edmund's batted first for a total of 74 runs, Wakelin's 22 and Stroud's 16 aiding materially. C. Jennings (3 for 29), Joy (3 for 41), and Priestley (2 wickets for 1 run) divided bowling honors for Yorkshire.

Pugh, for Yorkshire, had a well-played 40, and Rastrick's 23 comprised Yorkshire batsmen who entered double figures. Jones (6 wickets for 42 runs), Wakelin (3 for 46), and Matson, the slow bowler, with 1 wicket for 5 runs, performed well on the crease.

Dovercourt Cricket Club won from Woodgreen C.C. at Riverside Park, 81 to 36. Parkes (29), Peacock (20) played forceful cricket. Gray took 8 wickets for five runs.

The Olivet eleven defeated St. Cyprian's at Riverside, the Saints having to bat three men short. 68 to 43 was the final reckoning. Matthias, for the Saints played clever cricket, for 29, while Horswell (14), McMurray (11), Lyons (15), and Clarkson (31) were top for Olivet. Matthias was the star for St. Cyprian's, securing 6 wickets for 24 runs in addition to his good hitting.

Old Country defaulted to St. Cyprian's in their C. and M. fixture at Willowvale on Saturday. The home club were fully represented, and were disappointed at the non-arrival of their competitors.

ENGLISH CRICKET

On Saturday Kent beat Hampshire by 158 runs, the principal run-getters being Hardinge, 117 and 105; Humpgreys, 106; and Seymour, 85. Bowell, Hampshire, 79.

Warwickshire collapsed completely before Middlesex, who won by an innings, and 37 runs, 136 of which were added by Tarrant.

Worcester-Surrey match ended in a draw. Surrey's first innings was declared at 503 for five wickets, Hobbs and Hayward scoring 184 and 146 respectively. Pearson, Worcester, 113 not out.

BASEBALL

New York, Aug. 26.—John Evers, manager of the Chicago Nationals, considers Charles Murphy, his club owner, to be a jinx. "That's why I left Murphy in Chicago on this trip," said Evers, "for we are anxious to finish at least second in the race. We won seven straight games in Boston and Philadelphia. We are not saying anything about the Giants, but we are going to keep on plugging until the end of the season."

RING.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—Tom McCarey has scheduled or has under contract a long string of first-class fighters for bouts at her Verona Arena that will fill the best of the dates practically up to the Thanksgiving Day battle. The first warriors to have a chance will be the big fellows when Jess Willard and "Bull" Young meet Thursday, August 22.

Cross and Rovers have the Labor Day engagement. This is one of the best summer dates, and McCarey expects these old rivals to fill the bill. The two disputed ten-round scraps have put the public on edge, and there is a good deal of betting already being done.

Following the lightweights will come Arthur Pelkey and Charlie Miller on September 23. The San Francisco heavyweight hardly ranks as a top notcher and Pelkey's record is not very good, but there is naturally a good deal of interest in what Pelkey can show.

A real battle, however, is promised for October 7 when Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette are scheduled to fight 20 rounds to settle once for all the long disputed question of supremacy.

A WAGNER STORY

Veteran Player Thought More of Admirers Than Himself

Of Hans Wagner, the baseball star a story is told a tale that shows how the German had a heart that was purest gold. A few years ago Hans Wagner, rich in this world's goods and even then weary of the game announced his retirement. No hold out, no demand for money or privilege—just determined to quit and take things easy, that was all. Panic prevailed in Pittsburg—and Harry Pulliam, now dead, came up to see the German. He found Wagner obdurate, immutable, immovable. "I'm through, that's all," growled Hans. "I've got money—and sore muscles. I need no more money—I can't stand much more ball playing. I'm done."

"Hans," said Pulliam, "this old smoky town is full of hard-working honest toilers, men of the mills. Little pleasure is theirs in life—mighty little. A Saturday afternoon, a few hours under the blue sky—and the chance to see Hans Wagner play ball. They go out there to that field by thousands, just to see you. That's a joy and a real delight to those poor fellows—and you don't want to take that pleasure away from them?"

"Give me that pen," growled Wagner; "I'll sign it, Harry, and I'll play as long as they want me to!" No hold-up, no hold-out—only a sacrifice of the strained body that yearned for rest and ease—only a sacrifice to please a gentleman and to please the smoke-grimed thousands that made Wagner the idol of their leisure hours. That was all—but it showed the golden weave of Wagner's heart and soul.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

Written by
DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
Chicago, Ill.

NATURAL DIETETICS: Part 1)—I think I have been very fortunate in securing for the Home Health Club readers, a series of articles from Dr. Henry Lindlahr. The matter will later be published by the Doctor in book form. It gives thoroughly practical instruction as well as proven theories on diet in the treatment of disease.

Someone interested in Nature Cure dietetics has expressed a great truth by the striking epigram, "Starving America." The paradox has caught the ear of the press people and aroused their curiosity.

"Starving America!"—It sounds rather strange. Is it possible that this glorious country of ours, blessed more abundantly by Mother Nature than any other, the richest on God's footstool can be starving amidst a plethora of all that human beings need to live and thrive on in comfort and in luxury? (Providing its products were justly distributed).

Yes, it is not only possible, but an actual fact that America is starving amidst plenty; not only its inhabitants, but in many localities the soil as well. What is strangest of all, those who have the greatest abundance in lands and money are starving just as much and possibly more so than the underpaid and overworked wage earner. In many instances, the wealthy are worse off than the poor, because they are not only starved, but also poisoned by their overabundance of food and of leisure.

You ask, "What is the meaning of all this nonsense?" It is this: The people of America, have been overfed with shatches, sugars, fats and nitrogenous foods (meat and eggs), but starved from lack of the all important mineral elements, the organic salts on which absolutely depend the normal structure and functions of the body, and that means physical and mental health.

The public in general and the medical schools in particular have been absolutely ignorant on the subject of true food values and of true food chemistry. Laymen and doctors have labored under the mistaken idea that the only foods worth considering on account of their nutritious value are the starches, sugars, fats and proteins. The most recent work on dietetics, used in our most prominent medical schools, take into consideration these foods only. They have nothing to say on the importance of the mineral elements in the economy of the human body.

They are not as yet aware of the fact that certain alkaline mineral elements, though present only in minute quantities in foods and in animal and human bodies, are essential to life and health. If these "tissue salts" are lacking in the food and if, as a result of this, they are deficient in the body, disease is bound to arise; and in this event overfeeding on the "nourishing" starches, sugars, fats and proteins will only serve to make matters worse.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor:—Seeing the good suggestions you have given from time to time in the Club Notes, I thought I would write you about my trouble. It is trifling, to be sure, but nevertheless, annoying, for I find Icannot stop the habit of biting my finger nails. It may seem strange to say "I cannot," but it is the hardest habit to break that I have ever had. I am 17 years old, and clerking, so do not get much out of door exercise. Have never been sick, except possibly a little nausea, or headache occasionally.

I have put bitter powders on my nails and tried everything that I ever heard of. I did stop it for about two weeks, but the other day I found myself again gnawing my finger nails. I feel ashamed of myself, and will thank you in advance for any suggestions that you may have to make.—L.H.M.

There have been quite a number who have written me about the habit of biting the finger nails. I know that they cannot help it, and through their own efforts alone will never be able to overcome it. In the majority of cases it is due to a condition known as phimosis, which causes extreme nervousness, and by removing the cause the result will disappear. I would suggest that you have this condition gone into by a competent and reliable physician and surgeon.

The placing of bitter powders on the nails is not very satisfactory, for it will wear off. A good plan is to have the nails manicured twice a week for several months. This necessitates some expense, of course, but that cannot be helped. The first named treatment will be the best, and it will help your general health as well. I would advise it by all means.

Dear Doctor:—I am a young lady and am troubled with cold feet while doing housework, often in the morning and in bed toward morning. Have plenty of exercise and fresh air and am apparently well, though somewhat nervous.—O.S.

Every night just before retiring take a glassful of sweet milk, add to it an equal quantity of boiling hot water. Keep it hot by placing the container in hot water. Sip all of it slowly with a teaspoon. Every morning as soon as out of bed plunge your feet into a pail of cold water while you slowly count to 25, then rub them briskly dry. Make the rubbing very thorough so that they begin to feel warm and red. Then dress and they will soon feel warm. Keep both these practices up, night and morning for three weeks and your feet will not trouble you and your general health will be much better.

THE DUST NUISANCE AND HOW TO CURE IT

Abandon the Feather Duster and Use Cheese Cloth Slightly Dampened

Oh, that we might know where all the dust comes from, then we might be able to send at least some of it back to its "native heath." We have made great strides in the manner of disposing of dust. Time was when the turkey feather duster simply stirred up this great menace to health, set it in motion and allowed it to settle again in new or old places, to be again disturbed as soon as the sun shone in the room, making it seen again. Dusting in this manner means only moving the dust from one place to another, often with windows and doors closed.

Dust seems to be an ever-increasing product, and if you cannot take it out of a room altogether you had better let it alone. If you are the possessor of a feather duster forget it and open the windows. Cheese cloth makes the very best dusters. A damp duster is much better than a dry one. Dampen a piece of cheese cloth about one yard square with tepid water, using as dry as possible, and turn a little coal oil over the cloth. Do not have it wet—just damp. This is a perfect duster for large pieces of furniture that have no upholstery. Go over every bit of woodwork in the room. A small paint brush is helpful to clean cracks, open work or carving. If the furniture has tapestry or any cloth on, it is better to use gasoline in place of the oil. Dust walls and ceiling with a cotton flannel bag tied on a broom. Don't forget in dusting to dust the duster. Shake it out of doors. Don't go to the window that is conveniently open and shake the dust cloth, for if you do you scatter much of the dust and it will be carried back into the room.

Two or three dusters are helpful. Use one until you feel it has reached the limit of holding dust, put it aside, take another and so on, and when you are finished hang these pieces of cheese cloth on a line out in the yard and let the breezes carry the dust on to the next victim. Rooms that are not constantly used should also be carefully dusted often. A layer of dust is unwholesome and dangerous in damp weather. It decays and becomes poisonous. Dampness and dust are to be avoided if good health is desired.

To Preserve a Bouquet

When you receive a bouquet sprinkle it lightly with fresh water, then put it into a vessel containing some soapsuds, which nourish the stems and keep the flowers as bright as new. Take the bouquet out of the suds every morning and lay it sideways in fresh water, the stalk entering first into the water, and keep it there a minute or two then take it out and sprinkle the flowers lightly with pure water. Replace the bouquet in the soapsuds and the flowers will bloom as fresh as when first gathered. The soapsuds need to be changed every third day.

By observing these rules a bouquet can be kept bright and beautiful for at least a month, and will last still longer in a very passable state.

Wash-day Hints

When rinsing flannels and woollens, it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them harden also, when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even, and prevents them getting torn so easily.

Renovating Cane Seats

When cane-bottomed seats sag, sponge both sides of the cane with hot soapsuds in which a handful of salt has been dissolved, then stand the chair in the open air. Treated like this, the seats will become as firm as when new, shrinking into place.

Better Than Chopping

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Wash Basin for Sink

While a wash basin is an important adjunct to the kitchen it is frequently a nuisance—because it doesn't seem to have any particular place. Make a place for it by getting some stiff galvanized iron wire and bending it in a wide loop over the edge of the sink, and you've always a convenient place to put the basin.

For the Tool Box

The best method of keeping small screws, brads, and tacks from rusting is to place them in small, wide-mouthed bottles, tightly corked. The bottle should be perfectly dry before using. Sandpaper can be kept dry and in good working condition by rolling it and keeping it in a wide-mouthed jar and screwing down the lid.

The Least of These

Dago and Sheeny and Chink,
Greaser and Nigger and Jap;
The devil invented these terms, I think,
To hurl at each hopeful chap
Who comes so far over the foam
To this land of his heart's desire,
To rear his brood, to build his home,
And to kindle his hearthstone fire.
While the eyes with joy are blurred,
Lo! we make the strong man sink,
And stab the soul with the hateful word,
Dago and Sheeny and Chink.

Dago and Sheeny and Chink,
These are the vipers that swarm
Up from the edge of Perdition's brink
To hurt, and dishearten and harm.
O shame! When their Roman forbears walked
Where the first of the Caesars trod;
O shame! when their Hebrew fathers talked
With Moses, and he with God.
These swarthy sons of Japheth and Shem
Gave the goblet of life's sweet drink
To the thirsty world which now gives them
Dago and Sheeny and Chink.

Dago and Sheeny and Chink,
Greaser and Nigger and Jap;
From none of them doth Jehovah shrink;
He lifteth them all to His lap,
And the Christ, in His kingly grace,
When their sad, low sob He hears,
Puts His tender embrace around each face
As He kisses away its tears,
Saying: "O, least of these, I link
Thee to Me for whatever me hap,"
Dago and Sheeny and Chink,
Greaser and Nigger and Jap.

REDUCING FLESH

Jockeys Have to Take Particular Care of Themselves

During the winter, a jockey's holiday-time, a jockey has got to be as careful about putting on weight almost as during the days when he is actually riding.

However tempting food may appear, one of the first rules a jockey must learn is to say "No." Mornington Cannon, the famous English jockey, was once staying with a leading horse-owner. When Cannon came to breakfast, a formidable array of silver dishes met his eye. He lifted cover after cover, and saw kidneys and bacon, fishcakes, eggs and bacon and many other appetizing dishes. With a stern resolve to do his duty—and starve!—he rang the bell and asked the butler to bring him two small slices of toast and a glass of soda-water!

Turkish baths form a very general method of keeping down the superfluous flesh; walking, cycling, and golf are indulged in to keep a jockey fit. When a jockey sets out to walk, however, he dons a thick woollen jersey, and literally sweats his weight off. Maher, when on one of his training walks, thinks nothing of putting on three or four jerseys in order to get in trim.

Sea-shell Windows

In the Philippine Islands sea-shells are used for window-panes in the same way that glass is used in other countries. The sunlight streaming through these shell-panes gives a beautiful, soft, glowing iridescence, which is particularly noticeable in the large windows of the grand old churches with which the islands abound.

The most magnificent sea-shell windows in the world, however, are those of the General Hospital at Manila. In Manila alone no fewer than 5,000,000 Kapis shells—the largest of which are about 3 inches square—are used each year for making windows. Windows made of sea-shells are much stronger than those made of glass.

"You know, there was something I wanted to say to you, but it has quite gone out of my mind. I can't remember what it was."

Maiden (hopefully): "It wasn't good-night, was it?"

According to an Italian scientist a square mile of the earth in six hours of sunshine receives heat equivalent to the combustion of more than 2,000 tons of coal.

Experts have decided that the new diamond mines in German South Africa will prove productive for decades

A Little Heroine

A twelve-year-old girl, Doris Truman, of London, Ont., saved her ten-year-old brother, Alfred, from drowning when the boy fell off the dam at Blackfriars' bridge. The firemen were summoned, but before they arrived the little girl had the boy out of the water, and a companion had rolled the water out of him.

TRAGEDY OF HER LIFE

Young Fisherman Worked Fourteen Years to Win Prima Donna for Wife.

BY GEORGE MUNSON.

"That big white house on the cliffs yonder, mister?" asked the old guide. "That's Hiram Smith's place. He's one of the richest men round here and we think a deal of him. We called that 'Hiram's Folly' once, but folks don't call it that any more, for now it's a house, and then it was a barn without a roof, and nobody thought Hiram would get the money to finish it. Besides, what did he want with a house like that, a single man, earning his living with his lobster pots as his father had done before him, and boarding with Widow Gregg? That bit of an old wreck there was the 'Patagonia' once, and she was a fine ship in the days when she used to ply between Boston and Portland. It was when she went ashore that we stopped speaking of 'Hiram's Folly.'"

In his vivid speech he drew the man's picture until I could visualize him—Hiram Smith, the young fisherman, baiting his lobster pots or acting as guide, during the brief summer months, to the visitors at Rundle's Bay. One summer there came a party composed of foreign-looking men, who wore resplendent rings and curled their mustaches and sang all day for the most unexpected reasons, and women in dainty dresses, wealthy, evidently, and yet curiously dissimilar to the prosaic holiday makers who spent their summers at Rundle's Bay. And soon it became understood that this was a party of opera singers from New York who had taken the strange fancy to pay a week's visit to this little coastal village of Maine.

But even there the fame of Marian Kempner had spread. It was not her genius that was admired, but the fact that she, a girl of twenty-five, born in Iowa of simple farmer stock, had been so endowed by nature that she earned thousands of dollars in one evening by the gift of her voice. When Hiram Smith first took her in his boat he stared at her till he nearly lost his oars. She was the most beautiful woman whom he had ever seen. And when she sang, the world seemed suddenly a thing of crystal and fire to him.

The Most Beautiful Woman He Had Ever Seen.

Marian Kempner was at first amused and then interested in the devotion of the young fisherman. To her, a woman of the world, who had won the homage of noblemen in all the countries of Europe, who had been the sensation of seasons in Paris and London, it seemed astonishing that he should presume to love her. She played with him, aping the ingenue with skill that concealed something of real emotion. In that week at Rundle's Bay she regained a little of the first freshness of her mind; it was a new world that she encountered when she returned, and that winter she was the sensation of the operatic world.

And on the last evening Hiram Smith offered her "his heart and hand." Those were his words, she told the laughing crowd at the hotel. He wanted her to share his cottage and his lobster pots! And when she had shriveled his self-esteem with a few kindly, yet cutting words, he said simply:

"I will win you yet."

That was the climax of her story, and the opera stars yelled as they heard it told in Marian's inimitable way, and clutched at one another to keep themselves from falling. Early next morning the party went away. Rundle's Bay never saw them again.

Hiram Smith never followed the sea again. He disappeared for two years. When he returned he deposited a thousand dollars in the bank and bought the piece of ground on which, stone by stone, he erected "Hiram's Folly." It grew as his bank deposit increased, for Smith became known as a master of finance, in a small way, the greediest man in New England and the shrewdest at bargaining. He built a store that ousted all other stores. He bought the land that the New England railroad was compelled to purchase at ten times the value the following year. And every dollar went into "Hiram's Folly."

The years passed slowly. Hiram was a man of thirty-five, and Marian about his age, when the tragedy of her life happened. For ten years she had been a "star." Now her voice failed her. It became known that she would never sing again. A cold, some inflammation of the larynx, an ignorant Italian doctor—and the mischief was done. The voice that had charmed the world could only speak now. Marian's money had been spent royally. She had never married. At first she lived in the hope of regaining her vocal powers. Then, forced to earn a living, she went on the stage. Slowly the memory of her charm waned. None would have known the wonderful singer in this second-rate actress, now verging upon middle life, who played with small stock companies in all the towns of America.

One day, when she was at the end of her resources, a stranger introduced himself to her. He wished to start a company of his own. It was a hobby of his, he explained. Would she be the perpetual "star" and let him bear the expense and take what profits there were? She consented. From that moment her company became a feature of all the second-rate cities. The stranger's money liberally supplied the annual deficit. His checks came with due regularity. Marian Kempner had become the pensioner of an unknown man.

About this time "Hiram's Folly" was completed. The empty house stood on the hill. Hiram lived in a cottage below. He had suddenly abandoned all his enterprises; with a comfortable income, he lived a solitary life in Rundle's Bay. He was often to be seen upon the cliffs, spy-glass in hand. People said that he was waiting for some ship that never came in.

The summer after his retirement the order went out that Marian's company was to tour New England, especially the coast towns. It played from Newport to Bangor and back again. The next year the same itinerary was scheduled. And that was when the "Patagonia" found her end upon the rocks of Rundle's reef.

Now, whether Smith had known that some day the treacherous rocks would find the vessel's keel, or whether the captain had been bribed to run his vessel ashore, was never known. But it was a wild winter's morning when Marian's company found their vessel stranded off shore, in danger of breaking up. Hiram Smith was first to volunteer in the lifeboat crew. And the first person whom he encountered upon the vessel's deck was Marian. He drew her to one side

"There's plenty of time," he said. "The ship don't look like breaking up for awhile. You wouldn't be sorry if the company broke up with her, I reckon?"

"No," she said, looking at him. "No."

"Some folks' lives break up like ships," said Hiram, and that was the wildest flight he ever made into metaphor.

"Yes," she said, laughing, and shivering in the wind. "You're right."

"You don't remember Rundle's Bay?" asked Hiram. "You were never here before?"

"Yes," she answered, with sudden remembrance. "That was long ago, though—fourteen years and more."

"It's been longer for me," answered Hiram Smith. "You don't recall that boat ride down by the reef and how I said I'd get you again? I've got all I've wanted but you, Marian. Now I'm going to have you as well. That's our house on the hill. Now we'll get into the boat."

That was all the guide's story. But, knowing the depths that underlie the calm exterior of the New England nature, I suspected that there was more. And I pictured Hiram, whose fourteen years were rewarded, and his relentless quest that was crowned with success. Then, looking up, I saw children on the steps of "Hiram's Folly" and heard their distant laughter, and then I knew that the story had not been told in its completeness.

TRIBUTE TO LAJOIE

The Detroit News printed the following tribute to Napoleon Lajoie, the veteran second baseman of the Cleveland Club, under a cut of the famous Frenchman wearing a hat similar to the one in which the great warrior of 100 years back is usually seen in pictures:

For 17 year, long tam ain't it—very long tam; she's been playing dat long. She nevaire was a flash on de pan, but she was beeg bright star all tam.

Many she's come and many she's gone, but 'Polean she's still in de feeng an she's fgoin' be there long tam yet. She's got de applause from de peep from de Nort', de Sout', East an' West, an' she's always been de same, always play de good, honest game an' every tam hees bat heets de ball she always make a clean heet sam lake heem.

To-day you see heem standing at de bat or playing aroun' de bases; every move she's make is jus' sam lak wan leetle French girl of sixteen year ole, graceful an' nice no mattaire if sometam she's been defeat or sometam she's got hurt. She don' make heem no difference. She's square on heem self an' she's square on everybody else.

'Polean de peep she's all proud of you, always have been, and always will be an' we'en you go way 'Polean, to dat place from where no wan come back no matter how good she was, de peep will still remember you, 'Polean Lajoie.

White Paper Glare

An electrical authority has attempted an analysis of glare from paper. It is well known, he says, that glare in any of its forms diminishes the effectiveness of an illumination. We are able to see printed letters because of the contrast between the dark letters and the bright back ground. The reflection from commercial papers is a combination of diffuse, or widely spread out, reflection and specular, or mirrorlike, reflection. The greater the amount of diffusely reflected light compared with the specularly reflected the less is the annoyance from glare. Those who have difficulty in forming an idea of these two kinds of reflection can construct a model of a semi-diffusing paper by placing a clear, plain sheet of glass over a white mat surface, such as a blotting paper. The glass will reflect specularly, while the blotting paper reflects diffusely.

Pigeons Tell of Fish

A carrier pigeon service is operated out of Prince Rupert to enable the Atlin Fisheries to know how the catch is going, and whether it is large or small. Fifteen pigeons were familiarised with their new quarters preparatory to being taken out to sea aboard the fishing boats and released from time to time with messages. This service is something entirely novel to the fishing industry, in North Pacific waters at least.

Pimpernel petals open in the morning during fine weather usually between 7 and 8 o'clock and close in the afternoon between two and three. Should they fail to open in the morning, or close earlier than usual, rain may be expected.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

"Return Trip East," $18.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from all points east of MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton to Winnipeg.

SAWDUST UTILIZED IN DOZENS OF WAYS

Former Waste Product Valuable as Mercantile Commodity Raw or Manufactured

Sawdust, when moderately dry, has the same heat value as the wood from which it originates, provided it is used in a furnace which provides a proper distribution of air.

Abroad, says a writer in The Canadian Engineer, experiments have been made to form this dust into briquettes but the large lumber concerns on this side of the Atlantic considered it more profitable not to bother with such a process, claiming that these briquettes can be used only to a small extent and could not compete with other fuels in which this continent is so rich. More interest in the matter was shown by the smaller concerns, where the loss of such valuable wood wastes demands serious consideration. Many owners took up the proposal, but dropped it when they earned the cost of such sawdust briquetting plants.

Related to the briquetting of sawdust is the manufacture of artificial wood. This material is of great tenacity and strength, does not decay and is less susceptible to the action of the atmosphere than is natural wood. All this artificial wood can be sawed, planed and cut, but not split. Decorations for walls, ceilings and furniture are manufactured from mixture the essential part of which is sawdust. These ornaments rival carved work and are a great deal cheaper, replacing those made of zinc, papier mache and artificial stone or cement.

Sawdust is the essential part of a stone-like material used for building purposes and also for paving blocks. These paving blocks are said to outlast the regular creosoted wood blocks.

Sawdust is pulverized and used instead of sand. In this state it can be colored, perfumed and used for many purposes, such as for sachet bags and the like.

It is not so long ago that fine sawdust was used in offices instead of sand and blotters. Its polishing qualities in the pulverized state for gold and silverware are well known. Further, from fine dust of colored wood, such as mahogany, etc., stains can be made to be used in imitating other woods. With linseed oils one can make a filler. The material for this filler is best obtained from the kind of wood on which it is to be used. Sawdust and shavings are used for packing glassware, porcelain and other ceramic articles.

The use of sawdust for cleaning floors is too well known to need mention; not so generally known is its property of preserving eggs. Any person handling oily and painty tinware should know that it is an excellent means for cleansing fresh paint from such tinware, rendering the vessels perfectly dry and clean.

Sawdust is used in the manufacture of insulating material for steam boilers and steam piping, and as insulating filler in fireless cookers, ice boxes, walls, etc.

It can be laid in cement floors instead of sand, rendering these floors warmer and more porous. It is used for roofing material instead of sand, making roofing paper lighter for transportation and so reducing the cost.

Charred sawdust is an excellent means of filtration of liquids and has disinfecting qualities, making it more suitable for this purpose than ordinary charcoal. Added to brick it makes a more porous brick. Mixed with clay it can be used for the manufacture of filtering articles; this has proved to be an attractive process.

Sawdust is used to absorb moisture in building walls that are exposed to water. In the manufacture of cheap wallpaper and artificial flowers it is used in the form of a fine dust. Other uses are for cementation in steel mills, for cleaning purposes in the production of gas, in the manufacture of calcium carbide and carbonundum, and, in foundries for pickling, in the manufacture of powder and explosives, for the manufacture of paper, for slippery streets in winter, and for bedding in stables. Sawdust improves soil mechanically, and, when saturated with stable manure, it also works chemically on the soil and so improves it.

Is Your Back Full of Aches All Day Long

THAT STAB-LIKE PAIN IN THE BACK IS SURE INDICATION OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Mrs. Anna Rodrigues writes as follows from her home in Valencia:—"For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs become bloated and shaky. I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence liver, bladder and kidney trouble. Heavily Fined at Lindsay.

Lindsay, Aug. 26.—Halley Kellett, who on Friday night last beat up a large section of the town police force before he was lodged in the lock-up, appeared before P. M. Jackson this morning and is $69.60 the poorer for the interview.

S.A. Band for Toronto.

The local Salvation Army Band will leave for Toronto on Saturday morning next, and will return on Monday night. This will be the return visit to the Dovercourt Band, which gave so much pleasure to the citizens of Peterborough during the period it was here.

Belleville Boy Fatally Hurt

Belleville, Aug. 26.—Frank Wellington Russell, a little boy aged six years, was fatally injured this morning about ten o'clock on the road near Rednersville when a horse became unmanageable. At 11 o'clock, the unfortunate lad breathed his last in Belleville Hospital, never having recovered consciousness.

Hydro Cables Laid.

The Hydro-Electric cable was yesterday completed, as far as its burial is concerned, on both sides of George street, from the C.P.R. Depot to Hunter street. This cable contains one copper wire. It as noted is underground and will simply be connected at the Hydro poles, thus saving danger in case of fire. Mr. Johnston Greer, the foreman in charge is certainly accomplishing a good work.

Moving Picture Man Pinched.

Robert Maddiford, a local man, better known to the people of Peterborough as Fiske O'Claire, has been arrested in Oshawa for the theft of some instruments from the Royal Theatre. This is the man now under suspended sentence for stealing a saxaphone from the local band hall. When Maddiford comes before the court again, he can be sentenced on the former charge.

Turner & Sons Get Big Order.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have received an order from Hon. Dr. Pyne, for a life-sized painting of Lord Nelson, to be used in connection with the educational exhibit at the Toronto Exhibition for which the firm had already painted, as previously noted in The Times, a picture of the Battle of Trafalgar.

Joy Riders to Appear

On Monday night two local joyriders are alleged to have driven their car across the corner of George and Charlotte streets without having their "tail" lamps alight. They will appear at to-morrow's court. Those in the auto allege that their lamps had been alight, but that possibly in going over a road crossing, the jar put the lights out.

Charles Thanked Magistrate.

A yesterday's police court, with Magistrate Harry Rush presiding, Chas. Healy was charged with being drunk in a public place. The magistrate remarked "You made an awful row last night. We'll fine you $2 and costs, or $5.75." Charles remarked, "Thank you, sir." George Flynn, who had one eye in mourning, pleaded guilty to having been drunk and was fined $2.

He Wanted His Line.

In The Times a few days ago we gave a story of how the propeller of a locally owned gasoline launch got tangled up by a lost trowling line, having a 'lunge still alive on the hook. The owner of the launch was yesterday addressed by a local citizen, as follows: "Mr. ——, I saw in The Times a report of your propeller getting tangled up by a trowling line having a big 'lunge attached. Now, I lost a trowling line in the Little Lake and bait a few days ago and I am convinced that it was my lost line you encountered. You may keep the fish, but I want my line back."

Why the Story Was Told.

In our issue of yesterday appeared a story of a local French car, belonging to a George street merchant getting stalled near Buckhorn. Now there is a sequel to that story. The owner of the car yesterday whilst having a laugh over the report we gave, said: "I know where you got that story, Mr. Times. You got it from Mr. ——, a local chauffeur. The reason he gave that story away is that we had carried off some fair young ladies that the chauffeur wanted to take out in his own car."

THE OPENING PERFORMANCE AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Will be the celebrated musical gaiety, "Little Miss Fix It." This sparkling operetta has to its credit a season's successful run in New York, where it appeared at the Globe Theatre, following which it was presented for a long engagement at the Chicago Opera House, Chicago. All the original song hits of Nora Bayes will be introduced including "I've a Garden In Sweden," "Staying Out Late," and "Turn Off Your Light, Mr. Moon Man." The original scenic production will be seen here Saturday next, August 30th, matinee and night.

Mimico School Boy Arrested.

Yesterday evening as Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R. was on duty at Chamberlain street, he saw a 17 year old boy acting suspiciously on the railway property. On investigation, Mr. Weller placed the youth under arrest. At first the boy said his name was Spence, and then Spencer, of Lindsay. The officer, however, would not stand for an evident prevarication, and demanded the right name. The boy confessed his name was Murphy and that he with two others had escaped from Mimico Industrial School, on Aug. 17. He was locked up in the police station. Chief Thompson communicated with the Mimico authorities.

EDISON TALKING PICTURES.

Thomas A. Edison's Kinetophone, which will be presented here for the first time at the Grand Opera House, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 1, 2, and 3, with matinee each day, is a masterpiece of craftsmanship and the entire civilized world is marvelling to-day at the result of Wizard Edison's genius. The Kinetophone, or Talking Pictures, marks a new era in theatricals, furnishes a world of thought for producers and managers and—in short—a revelation that has come to stay. Marking as it does the climax of other remarkable discoveries by Edison, it is one that has immediately won popular favor with theatre audiences. Wherever these talking pictures are shown the "sold out" signs are early placed in the lobby.

AN INSTANTANEOUS WRINKLE REMOVER

(From Eastern Styles)

The average woman is always surprised to learn, after experimenting with all sorts of patent so-called "wrinkle removers," that the most effective remedy in the world is a simple face wash which she can make herself at home in a jiffy.

She has only to get an ounce of pure powdered saxolite from her nearest druggist and dissolve it in half a pint of witch hazel. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day. The result is charming—marvelous. Even after the very first treatment the wrinkles show less plainly and the face has a nice, firm, comfortable feeling that is thoroughly delightful and lends self-confidence in one's appearance. This harmless home remedy is used by thousands of women to obliterate the unwelcome traces of time.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

The programme for Monday, Labor Day, is the best yet presented for that holiday in Peterborough.

The Peterborough Lumber Company's fire fighters have returned, having been brought in by Mr. Tom Eastwood, of Buckhorn.

Robert Maddiford, who stole a saxaphone from the band hall here, and when on suspended sentence is alleged to have robbed the Royal Theatre, was brought to the city last night from Oshawa.

Port Hope has had another burglary. This time it was $2 in coppers and a box of biscuits stolen. It is alleged that some Port Hopers are keeping their reputations in cold storage lest said reputations be stolen.

When the sudden rainstorm of yesterday afternoon, followed so quickly the bright sunshine, it demonstrated that the understanding of such ladies of Peterborough is fully on a par, if not superior to that of ladies elsewhere

BUILDING A CANOE

Interesting Process of Making Dug-out by Old Method

When the red man of the old type wants to construct a canoe, he fells a cedar tree or else seeks a prostrate trunk of the dimensions he fancies. In either case he proceeds to cut out a section of the desired length, peels off the bark and hollows out the log leaving a smooth surface upon the sides and bottom from end to end. Next the log is turned over and the outside fashioned. The log is hollowed by burning and chopping. A fire is built on the top and is so carefully watched and so skilfully directed that when the burning is finished the big piece of timber is neatly hollowed with wonderful symmetry from bow to stern. The whole concave surface is left so evenly and nicely charred that when the surface is worked down to the sound timber by the use of a buckhorn adze there remains but little alteration to be made. The log is turned over, with the hollow side down. A slow fire is employed to shape the exterior and once more the surface is neatly worked until the sound timber appears. Since the coming of the white man the Indians have for the most part, felled trees for their canoes with axes; but in the old days this was accomplished by burning and by stone implements, the fire being so handled as not to injure the portions of which the canoe was to be built.

When the interior and the exterior of the canoe have been finished to the liking of the builder, his next step is to "stretch." Without this operation the craft would be entirely unseaworthy. To make the canoe seaworthy it is set level on a firm skid foundation and filled with water. A fire is then built and stones of a red heat are thrown into the canoe until the water boils. This boiling is maintained until the walls of the canoe which are more than an inch thick become as pliable as sole leather and capable of being stretched a foot or more beyond their normal width.

The builder's attention is now turned to the adjustment of cleverly fitting sticks put in transversely along the gunwale, increasing in length from the ends to the middle. By reason of these stretchers a cedar log of, say, two feet and a half in diameter will furnish a canoe of three or four feet in beam. The width of the canoe varies, of course, with the length.

The sides of the canoe having been brought to the desired curvature, the water is then emptied out and the shell allowed to dry thoroughly, but without cracking. The finishing touches consist of a smearing, inside and out, with fish-oil, together with artistic decorations in brilliant colors.

Players' Fraternity Looks to Elevate Game and Secure Justice

It is but a matter of a very short time until the Baseball Players' Fraternity branches out to include the minor leagues. And, as power lies in force of numbers, it becomes evident that this fraternity will very shortly be in a position to force recognition. There is absolutely no idea of unionism in the fraternity, its advocates declare. Rather the association stands for a strictly interpretation of the laws governing organized baseball. But the organization proposes to see that laws and regulations shall be fairly applied; that the magnates shall not be favored one whit over the rank and file of players who have built up and made the great game the popular sport which it is.

Ultimately, no doubt, players will have some sort of representation on the national commission, the supreme court of the laws governing the game. At present the triumvirate is made up of a national league club owner and the two presidents of the major leagues. In their favor it must be said that on the whole the work of this national commission has been above reproach.

Telephones in Canada

A copy of telephone statistics shows that the total number of telephones in service in Canada is 370,884. The total number of miles of wire is given as 889,572. This is divided into urban and rural as follows: Urban, 636,961; rural, 252,610. This indicates that there is one mile of telephone wire in use for every 8.1 of the total population of the Dominion one telephone for every 19.2, and one telephone for every 2.3 miles of wire.

VOL. XL, NO. 201 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUG. 28, 1913 PRICE TWO CENTS

BORDEN GOVERNMENT'S RECORD REGARDED AS A BRILLIANT ONE

Programe for the Developement of the Dominion--Much Accomplished in Last Two Years

(Special to The Times.).

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—In less than two years of office the Borden Government has to its credit a magnificent record of national development. Incompetence, characterised the Laurier administration from its beginning and had become a public scandal years before the party was turned out of office. Succeeding this long period of reckless use of public money there has come a new order. The growing needs of Canada call for and require an ever increasing expenditure. The present Government has made a generous provision for all legitimate needs but at the same time has taken due care that in the expenditure of all moneys voted, business methods must prevail, capable officials must be employed and for every dollar of expenditure there must be a dollar's worth of return to the people of Canada.

For All Canada.

Upon that basis the Government has undertaken and is pressing forward a programme of development covering the whole of Canada. Important and long-needed harbor improvements are in progress on both oceans and upon the great lakes, the canal system of Canada is being extended and improved to meet the imperative demand for better facilities of water transportation, the National Transcontinental Railway leaks have been stopped, the road pressed to completion and the difficulty arising from the Quebec bridge disaster overcome by the establishment of a car ferry. The Hudson Bay Railway and terminals are to be completed in 1915.

Parcel Post.

A system of public-owned elevators is being established in Western Canada. A parcel post system will be in operation by the end of the year. The Atlantic steamship service has been improved and the cable service cheapened. Trade within the Empire has been extended and is being further extended. The Intercolonial Railway system is being improved in all its branches. Agriculture is being fostered and encouraged by the expenditure of millions of federal money in co-operation with the provinces. The St. Lawrence steamship route is being safeguarded and drydock facilities provided for the accommodation of the largest ships. An investigation of ocean freight rates has been undertaken.

Blocked by Laurier.

To this, but for the action of the Laurier partizans in the Senate, would have been added provision for the construction and maintenance of good roads in all the provinces of Canada.

These are some of the outstanding achievements of the Governments. The list is by no means exhausted. Yet with all this, the abounding prosperity has made it unnecessary for the Government to place the resources of the Dominion under the slightest strain. On the contrary, wise administration of the country's finances have resulted in a material reduction in the public debt and the credit of Canada never stood higher before the world than it stands today.

Liberals are Hopeless.

The people of Canada do well to look on this picture and on that of the Laurier administration which left unmet the most pressing of the country's needs and hopelessly bungled those works which it did undertake. The Laurier Government, as represented by those who are now leading the party, will never be restored to the office. It is the knowledge of this which has embittered these leaders to such an extent that no measure is too popular and no policy too patriotic to be free from their attacks. Their fight is a reckless one because it is hopeless.

MEXICO, THE MONROE DOCTRINE, RESPONSIBILITIES OF AMERICANS

The United States Must Abandon Policy or Take Responsibility to Ensure Safety of the People of Other Countries in Unsettled Republic

Toronto, Aug. 27.—It is stated in a despatch that the policy of friendly mediation in Mexico having failed, "the United States will remain aloof, hoping that moral suasion eventually will prevail, that Americans will be assisted to leave the country, and that the United States will patiently wait the establishment of a secure, stable, and constitutional government before extending recognition."

But how about the citizens of other countries? Are their respective governments to take steps—such as the despatching of warships, for instance—for their protection? And, if so, would not the taking of such steps conflict with the Monroe Doctrine? It is true that the Monroe Doctrine was directed first, at foreign intervention in the affairs of independent American states, and secondly, at future European colonization on the American continent. But while measures for the protection of its subjects by a foreign power may not, perhaps, strictly amount to intervention, it is such measures, nevertheless, which have, in all quarters of the globe, paved the way for British intervention, and subsequent occupation. Hence, if the United States permits other powers to take steps of the kind mentioned the Monroe Doctrine will no longer stand wholly where it did.

INTERVENTION IS NOW ONE STEP NEARER ACCOMPLISHMENT

The Latest Developements of the Situation Over Mexico Hopes For Peace Almost Abandoned

Washington, D.C., Aug. 27.—The Mexican crisis still exists. Although information received over night from John Lind, President Wilson's special adviser, in connection with the effort to establish peace in the southern republic, has caused the President to defer until to-morrow the delivery of his momentous address reviewing his efforts for peace, the situation remains practically unchanged. There is only the faintest hope among officials that the Mexican Government will so modify its attitude of opposition to the American proposals as to permit a re-opening of the negotiations, with a prospect of their conclusion in a manner acceptable to the United States.

[illegible]

Mr. Lind's departure from Mexico City for Vera Cruz this morning, as [illegible] ... this Government has [illegible] the President [illegible] the delivery of his Mexican address to Congress will result [illegible]

Mr. Lind, it is understood, [illegible] Foreign Affairs [illegible] the delivery of the President's address would be [illegible] ed and that if the Mexican Government desired to communicate with him further he would be glad to receive its message at Vera Cruz.

This action of Mr. Lind was intended as a hint that unless Mexico had something definite to suggest toward an agreement with the United States that would furnish the foundation for restoring normal conditions in the country Mr. Lind would regard his peace mission as a failure, and would return to the United States.

THAW REMANDED BACK TO PRISON

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 27.—Judge Globensky, taking his seat at 3.10 to-day denounced the forenoon outbreak as the "most disgraceful scene" he had ever witnessed and threatened a jail sentence to any repetition. He made his announcement first in French, then in English. Judge Globensky granted the plea for discontinuance of the habeas corpus writ and remanded Thaw to jail. This was a complete victory for the Thaw lawyers.

Every nook and corner of the court room, jury box and grand jury box, chairs, benches, aisles were jammed at 2.45 o'clock. Women, most of them well dressed made up at least a third of the throng. At the back of the room they were [illegible] standing on chairs.

COCAINE PEDDLERS THRIVE IN ONTARIO DESPITE THE LAW

Toronto, Aug. 27.—"Over two thousand ounces of cocaine was sold in Ontario during the past year, and that is far more than is necessary for surgical use and prescriptions. Somebody has suffered at your hands financially, physically, mentally and morally."

Such was the emphatic statement of Mr. W. B. Graham, Registrar-Treasurer of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, and Provincial Inspector at the Druggists' convention yesterday, which is being held at the Ontario College of Pharmacy. He declared that too much of the habit-begetting drugs is being imported into this country by degraded agents, who distribute them like any other commercial commodity. "They barter them on the highway and in secret places for the sake of gain, which is a disgrace to humanity," said the speaker. Mr. Graham told his fellow-pharmacists that the only source of detection and imprisonment of such unscrupulous persons was by the appointment of a Dominion Inspector, and his remarks were greeted with applause. Mr. J. H. MacKenzie, past president of the association, and now a member of the Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa, also declared that "Cocaine is not such a commercial commodity as to require the distribution af such large quantities at the Canadian ports, as is the present practice."

Speaking of the Dominion Drug Act. Mr. Graham said that he would not care to put all the information at his disposal in print.

MAN STRUCK WOMAN AND KILLED HER

Toronto, Aug. 27.—As the outcome of a petty quarrel over some kitchen duties at Smith's Hotel, Queen and Simcoe streets, this morning, the body of Lucy Ives lies in the morgue and Jas. Dickinson is in a cell at police headquarters held responsible for her death. It is likely that the man will be charged with murder. The parties were both employes of the hotel, Lucy Ives being a kitchen woman and Dickinson the porter.

The tragedy which occurred about 8.20, was witnessed by three other domestics whose story is to the effect that Dickinson was seated at a table eating his breakfast, when the woman came in and told him that the iceman had just arrived and was depositing the ice outside. She asked Dickinson to bring it in.

He refused on the ground that he wished to finish his breakfast first. She appeared to have kept on badgering him, repeatedly asking him to go out and fetch the ice in, but he turned a deaf ear to her and kept on munching his breakfast. Finally the others say, she lost patience and dealt him a sharp slap on the side of the head.

Knocked Her Down.

It seems that Dickinson then and clinching his fist caught the woman a resounding blow on the right side of the jaw hurling her to the ground and then rushed out through the doorway. The woman lay where she had fallen, making no attempt to rise. The three other domestics who had been witness of the occurence ran over to her aid and on raising her from the floor found that she was unconscious.

Thinking that she had taken a fit as a result of the blow they administered some brandy. [illegible] alarmed one of the domestics went out for a doctor and meeting Dr. A. G. Poole, of 166 Simcoe street, who just happened to be coming along Queen street, in company with a friend, called him in.

Making a hasty examination of the body, the doctor found that life was already extinct, and that death had been almost instantaneous.

RUSSIAN WAYS OF LOCAL POLICE

Yesterday's Juvenile Court Reached the Pinnacle of Absurdity—Seemed a Farce

The French have a saying, which put into English is "It is to laugh." The Juvenile Court of yesterday demonstrated that local police methods, as regard Juvenile courts here, are not only "a laugh," but should awaken the Peterborough public to the dogmatic way such secret tribunals are conducted in Peterborough. It is time that the Czar and the Sultan of our local Juvenile Courts should recognize that free born Canadians, who pay them, are living neither under the double headed eagle of Russia nor under the Crescent flag of Turkey.

As noted before, in The Times, the Juvenile Courts of Toronto are open to the press. The intelligence of Toronto magistrates and police impels them to the realization that such secret practices as obtain here would not be tolerated in that city. The Toronto magistrates and police are not so keen to retain their piffling authority that they debar the mothers and daughters of Toronto from "being put wise" as to what threatens them.

Magistrate Dumble in his objection, made in open court, to The Times's demand for such courtesy as is accorded the press of Toronto, asked "Would you have women witnesses tell their evidence before the gaping police court audience?" This argument, to use a slang expression, was "hot air." The Times never contended that "the gaping crowd" crowd" should be present. We simply asked, for the purpose of warning mothers and daughters of Peterborough, that the press here, like that of Toronto, be able to tell, in a modified way of threatening dangers.

YESTERDAY'S COURT.

Yesterday, a Juvenile Court was held in secret session. Now what was the the trial about? Simply a number of kids were charged with playing baseball on Sunday. Incidentally, we might mention that all the delinquents charged with this heinous offense were not entitled by law to be treated as juveniles, as some were older than 16. If we are wrong, we would ask either the Czar or the Sultan to issue a ukase contradicting us. Are the police here enabled to break the law as well as fracture the quality of common sense? Now that terrible charge against a lot of kids for playing ball! It would be something horrible for the mothers and daughters of Peterborough to learn that such iniquities exist!!! Such piffling usurpation of authority; not exercised in Toronto, is rank in the nostrils of thinking people.

The Times has no fault to find with either the local police or the local magistrate. Both the Chief and the magistrate fill most efficiently their respective positions. What we do object to is the back number, village, obsolete system attaching to the secret tribunals of the Juvenile Court. Our mothers must know facts, put in readable form, for the protection of their children. Those in charge of the Juvenile Courts here seem to agree with the late Commodore Vanderbilt, "the public be d——!" so long as petty authority is enforced. Toronto and other places will not stand for such arrogance. Why should Peterborough?

JACK'S BEAN STALK HAS NOTHING ON THIS

Welland, Ont., Aug. 27.—Stretching up towards the sky like the fabled bean stock, two potato vines in the yard of Elias Burgar, 18 Albina stret, have already reached the unusual height of seven feet and are still soaring upward as if to set a high altitude record—in which they are succeeding very well.

The potato from which these giants sprouted was taken from his kitchen early in June by Mr. Burgar and planted in his back yard in soil that heretofore had a reputation for unproductiveness. In a week or so two stocks came through and before long began to show signs of a vigorous growth. As a rule a potato vine spreads out and is seldom, if ever, more than three feet long. Not so with this curious freak of nature. It has long since passed that mark and with the aid of a few strings to hold the stalks in a perpendicular position is now towering a foot over the six-foot fence and rapidly growing higher.

When the stalks were measured they were allowed to follow their natural bent and were not straightened. Just a trifle over seven feet from the ground to the top was shown. The blossoms are just beginning to come out and the whole has the appearance of a young tree.

Mr. Burgar cannot explain its wonderful growth and would like to consult some authority. He says he has never heard of a similar growth of a potato vine.

SWINDLED THE LADIES JUST FOR THE FUN

"WANTED — A young lady nurse to leave the city for special work. Salary $50 per month and board."

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Such was the advertisement which Stanley Francis alias Stanley Jenkins, inserted in several papers some days ago. The answers received were numerous, but only three or four were selected. When interviewed by the would-be employer, statements of a fruit farm in Sunny California and light duties for an invalid father were mentioned.

Jenkins asked one of the nurses to go to Buffalo, alleging that the contract would not be valid unless made in the United States, as the Alien Labor law is strictly enforced.

Investigation showed that the prisoner had been engaged at the General Hospital as an orderly and that the fruit farm was a myth.

Francis was remanded for a week.

POLICE TRACKING SUSPECTED MEM IN MARTIN CASE

Dougherty is Convinced They Will Land Them Ultimately --Martin Intestate Father Will Apply

Toronto, Aug. 17.—That the New York police are still doing their utmost to track down the two men suspected of murdering William Grieve Martin, the Carlton street milliner, was the information conveyed to Martin's father in a letter from Deputy Commissioner Dougherty. He also said that they have a first-class clue and that they were leaving no stone unturned in their endeavor to locate them, that they have been properly identified, and that there was no doubt whatever of their being ultimately arrested.

An effort is being made to dispose of the stock and fittings of the Carton street store by Mr. J. G. Martin. He has had an expert milliner take an inventory and wants to get rid of it as soon as possible before it is too late in the season. Already several inquiries have been made and Mr. Martin does not think that he will have any difficulty of disposing of the business for a good price.

In going over the books it was found that Martin had been speculating in land and holding lots in Calgary and other points in the West, as well as in Toronto.

WILSON BARES THE U. S. EFFORTS TO RESTORE PEACE

Appears in Person Before Congress to Give Facts to Nation and World

Washington, Aug. 27.—President Wilson appeared in person before Congress to-day and laid bare to the world the details of this nation's efforts to bring about peace in Mexico, the facts concerning Huerta's rejection of the peace proposals and the policy to be pursued now by his Government.

The President announced the position of the United States to be as follows:

No Armed Intervention.

Strict neutrality "forbidding the exportation of arms or munitions of war of any kind from the United States to any part of the Republic of Mexico."

Not Even Act as Umpire.

Under no circumstances to "be the partisans of either party to the contest that now distracts Mexico, or constitute ourselves the virtual umpire between them."

To urge all Americans to leave Mexico at once and assist them to get away in every way possible.

To let everyone in Mexico who assumes to exercise authority know that this Government "shall vigilantly watch the fortunes of those Americans who can not get away and shall hold those responsible for their sufferings and losses to a definite reckoning."

"That can and will be made plain beyond the possibility of a misunderstanding," declared the President.

Negotiations for the friendly mediation of the United States are open to resumption at any time upon either the initiative of this Government or of Mexico.

GERMANY BARRED FROM A TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Japan's Insistence That Anglo-Japanese Interests Were Indentical Prevented Germany From Joining Powerful Nations

London, Aug. 27.—The revelation that the diplomatic negotiations which finally resulted in the Anglo-Japanese alliance first contemplated an Anglo-German-Japanese triple alliance and that Germany was largely instrumental in starting them, but was shut out by Japan, is made in the dairy of the late Count Tadasu Hayashi, former Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain and twice Foreign Minister, part of which was recently published.

The Jiji Shimpo of Tokio printed portions of the dairy, but the Japanese Government prohibited further publication and the censor suppressed telegrams sent by foreign correspondents in Japan reporting details.

The dairy showed that the British Government under the Premiership of the late Marquis of Salisbury was in favor of the inclusion of Germany but that Japan opposed it. Count Hayashi in order to bring about the Anglo-Japanese alliance, hinted that Japan was ready to ally herself with Russia if Great Britain was unwilling.

Baron Hermann von Eckhardstein, at the time Charge d'Affairs of the German Embassy in London, according to the dairy, made several visits to Count Hayashi during the spring of 1901. In proposing the formation of a triple alliance between Great Britain, Germany and Japan, he said he knew that the British Government and such personages as Jos. Chamberlain, Arthur J. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, the Duke of Devonshire and the Marquis of Salisbury were in favor of it. He said that the German nation was strongly anti-British, but not the German Government. He added that King Edward, Emperor William and Imperial Chancellor Von Buelow had recently had long conversations on the subject at Osborne in the Isle of Wight, and were anxious for such a triple alliance.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c., and well worth it. It is better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are composed to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 9c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 382 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

WHALE INDUSTRY

About 20,000 Whales Are Killed Every Year

The exports of whale oil from Canada, the produce of the Dominion, last year were 2,422,845 gallons, of value, $988,189, as compared with 1,353,253 gallons, valued at $874,402, previously. In Newfoundland, however, the whaling industry showed a decrease. The yield of oil was 8,237 barrels, as against 10,420 barrels the previous years, and the output of guano, 445 tons, against 618 tons. All that is left of the large fleet which formerly operated on the Newfoundland coast are seven vessels, and an attempt to revive whaling of the St. Lawrence River last year was anything but satisfactory. The Newfoundland catch was 294 fish. Ten years ago, the average kill for about sixteen ships was about 1,200 fish. An especially constructed steam whaler was sent into Davis Strait with orders to pursue the white whale. The result was the capture of twenty-four finner whales, and it is not expected that the experiment will be repeated. In the Northern Pacific there are still a number of old-fashioned whalers which pursue the right whale into the Behring sea and neighborhood, and which hail from San Francisco. The most lucrative business in whaling in recent years has been done off the coast of British Columbia. The seas there have proved well stocked with the finner variety, and two or three new companies have been formed to operate off the coasts of islands of Alaska. The kill there last year was some 700. Whalers are also finding a foothold in Japan, where the greater part of the carcasses is used for food, the Japanese being partial to it. Some 130 vessels are estimated to have been engaged in whaling north of the equator, including Japan, and the catch was about 5,000 fish, yielding about 154,000 barrels, or some 20,000 tons of oil, valued at about $2,254,000. A Newfoundland authority, in summing up the whaling industry of the world, says that 20,000 whales are killed every year. During last year this enormous total was increased by 2,500, the total of that year's kill of cetaceans being 22,500, yielding 2,620,000 barrels of oil, valued at between $12,500,000 and $15,000,000. Still enormous as these figures are, they are not nearly as great as those of the number of these mighty fish killed annually in other times. United States records show that in 1846 that country alone had no fewer than 722 vessels engaged in the whale fishery, which brought home products valued at $31,000,000, and as some of the prices for whale products at that time were much lower than they are to-day, these figures would represent a proportionately greater catch than if measured by modern rates. The chief whaling grounds are in the neighborhood of the Faroes, Iceland, off the coast of Norway, off Shetland, and the Hebrides, the west coast of Ireland, Newfoundland, New Bedford, South Georgia, South Shetland, Grahamland, Falkland Islands, off Chili and Galapagos, off the west coast of Africa and the east coast of South America. The results in the Southern seas are now much greater than in the Northern. In South Georgia alone 7,000 whales were brought in last year, yielding about 200,000 barrels of oil. In the South Shetland, another dependency of the Falkland Islands, 3,500 whales, yielding 100,000 barrels of oil, were captured, while the whalers of South Africa accounted for 4,000 whales, giving 120,000 barrels. The total catch in the Southern hemisphere was about 17,500 whales, yielding about 500,000 barrels of oil, representing a gross value of about $8,650,000. The total value of the catch of the whole whaling industry for a year thus amounts to about $13,375,000.

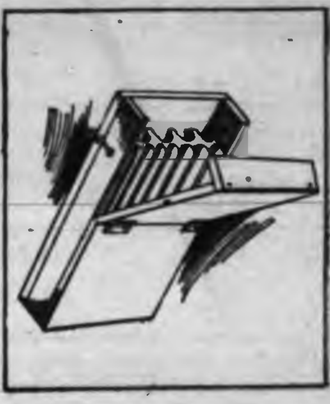
GOOD TOOL HOLDER

Grooves Keep Bits or Chisels of Various Sizes Apart

This convenient box for holding tools will keep separate a number of bits or chisels of different sizes, and each can be selected and removed in a twinkling. The box is a flat, rectangular affair, with a lid that consists of half of the top and one end, as the cut shows. The inside of the box is divided into two by a lengthwise partition, with different size grooves on both sides. This partition terminates within a few inches of the open end of the box so that when the lid is opened the ends of the tools project beyond it and make them easily accessible. With each tool separate, as in this receptacle, the nicking of points and edges, as happens when they are jumbled up together, is obviated.



EASY TO SELECT TOOL.

THE RECIPE BOOK

Soup With Noodles—Vegetable or meat soup with noodles is relished occasionally. For noodles, beat one egg, and add a pinch of salt and flour enough to make a stiff dough. Roll out in a thin sheet, dredge with flour to keep from sticking. Next, roll up this thin sheet as you would a jelly cake and slice very fine. One half hour before the soup is served add the noodles.

Canned Rhubarb—Rhubarb may be canned in cold water. Fit freshly cut stalks into a clean jar. Let the water run full force into the jar for 15 minutes till air is excluded. Screw on the top while the jar is still under water. Be sure that it is perfectly air-tight. The contents should keep and be just like fresh rhubarb.

Stuffed Potatoes—Bake the potatoes. When they are done, take out of the oven, cut in halves and scoop out of their jackets. Mash with butter until they are smooth; pepper and salt. Put them back again into their jackets. Put them into the oven for a few minutes to heat and brown on the top.

Baked Hominy—Mash enough leftover hominy to fill an ordinary baking dish, after all lumps are eliminated. Add two eggs, one tablespoonful of flour, with one teaspoonful of baking powder, salt, pepper and about half a cupful of milk, to make a stiff batter. Put all this in a dish and bake three-quarters of an hour.

Bread Pudding—Pour two cupfuls of boiling milk over half an ordinary loaf of stale bread. Mash this mixture until smooth and add one tablespoonful of butter. Add three well-beaten eggs, when this is cold, one half cupful of white sugar, a little nutmeg, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one cupful of mixed citron, seeded raisins and currants. Bake or boil about three-quarters of an hour. Serve hot, with or without hard sauce.

CAPTURED A LION

Feat of a Daring Hunter in Colorado State

An immense mountain lion, the largest ever captured in Colorado, was caught in a most sensational manner by Uri Hotchkiss, the famous hunter and trapper of Colona, six miles east of that place. Hotchkiss climbed a tree, in which the lion was crouching, unarmed except for a rope. The lion chased him down the tree several times, but finally Hotchkiss got within about three feet from him and threw a rope around his neck. The men on the other end of the rope attempted to pull the lion out of the tree, but were unable to do so. Hotchkiss worked around behind the lion, and twisted his tail until they jarred him loose. After getting the lion down they threw another rope around his leg. Hotchkiss then placed him on the saddle, fastening his feet and head to the horn, climbed on behind, and brought him into Colona.

Wild Man of the Woods

Joseph William Coppin, aged thirty-two, won for himself the name of the "wild man of the woods" before being sentenced to a month's imprisonment for vagrancy at Henbury Sessions. At Mammore Cover, on the outskirts of Bristol, Coppin built a hut for himself of brushwood and rushes. He wandered about the district, but slept on the highway, and often [illegible] by the roadside.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

No one has risen to remark that Thaw might at all events have waited until January.

It seems to be the fate of Canada to get a big dose of Harry Thaw. What have we done to deserve such punishment?

The end of the baseball season is near and we are glad of it, because something like normal English will make its appearance on the sporting pages of the newspapers.

The Winnipeg wheat prices still persist in staying some fifteen cents higher than the Minneapolis markets which is a trifle hard on our Liberal friends.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier announces that he is forcing the Government to the country on the naval question. Certainly. If they won't go when he wants them to, he'll make them go when they're ready. He will be obeyed.

THE ORIENTAL MARKET

Hon. George E. Foster, on his return from a visit to the Orient, looks for a steady advance in trade between Canada and Japan. This trade has been of very slow growth. The habits and customs of the two countries are so different and their economic standards so widely separated that common ground of commerce has been difficult to find. But there is no doubt that many things are produced in Japan, not produced in Canada, which it would be of advantage to us to import. While, on the other hand, Canada has stores of wealth for which a demand will grow in Japan.

The trade is as yet of very meagre proportions, but markets may be made by an educative process. It is not easy, for instance, for those accustomed to the use of a very soft cereal like rice to assimilate hard grain, although it may be very much more nourishing if properly assimilated. Both the Japanese and the Chinese, however, have been betraying a desire for wheaten bread made from the soft wheats grown on the Pacific slope, and Mr. Foster is quite correct in assuming that the oriental market will continue to grow, if not with the rapidity to which we are accustomed in the West, at least with the steadiness with which we are accustomed to connect oriental peoples.

IMMIGRATION FROM THE UNITED STATES

The immigration from the United States maintains its volume, and its character, consisting as it does, to a large extent, of prosperous farmers possessed of capital and experience, says the Winnipeg Tribune. There is no amount of advertising or solicitation which could keep up this type of immigration. What brings these farmers here is the fact that those who have preceded them have done well. That is, after all, the great advertisement which Western Canada has received.

In almost every case where there is a considerable immigration from one portion of the country, it is because some venturesome individual from that part has been able to send back reports of success, and has thus stirred his neighbors to emulate his example.

In precisely the same way, while the limitations of booming are soon reached, the reality of achievement provides an ing are soon reached, the reality of achievement provides an advertisement and an attraction which deliberately concocted stories of adverse conditions, not in existence, cannot combat. We are apt to be angry when we see these frightful perversions of the truth published broadcast among our neighbors to the south, but, after all, they have very little effect on counteracting the operation of the economic law through which American farmers are coming to Canada in such large numbers.

ANOTHER RUMOR IS DEMOLISHED

London, Aug. 27.— In reply to an inquiry regarding the report that Prince Arthur would succeed the Duke of Connaught in the Governor-Generalship, Captain Rivers Bulkeley the Duke's Equerry, telegraphs your correspondent from Bagshot Park, "Not a word of truth in statement."

Strengthens The Throat Assists Public Speakers

Catarrhozone is the Greatest Invention of the Age for Weak Throat, Hoarseness, &c.

Strongly Endorsed by the Clergy.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer, you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the "Progress" a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your God-sent invention, Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merit of Catarrhozone, I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me, and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some from suffering, and I will always remain,

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering from throat weakness or catarrh.

Two months' treatment (large size) $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

CARING FOR RUGS

Suggestions for Sweeping and Cleaning Soiled Spots

Greatest of care should be taken in sweeping or wiping thick piled carpets and rugs. They should always be swept the way of the pile or grain, and a carpet swept against the grain soon loses its bright sheen or color and looks rough and ill used.

Wiping the rug or carpet thoroughly after sweeping is an excellent way of keeping the colors perfect. Wring a soft flannel cloth dipped in warm water with ammonia in proportion of one-half cup of ammonia to two quarts of water. Do not dip the cloth into all the water. After once wiping the rug use a little at a time, so each part of the rug may have clean water and ammonia.

Sugar or candy spots may be removed by using clear, warm water. If varnish has been spilled on the rug or carpet cut it at once by applying turpentine, then wash the spot carefully with warm soap suds, rinsing thoroughly and not allowing the space to be walked upon until perfectly dry.

A Bulgarian Costume

The young girl has taken very quickly to Bulgarian designs and for one who is slender the Oriental sash, tied about the hips, worn with an Oriental turban in the hair, makes a very charming costume, provided the young lady has dark eyes and hair. Premet of Paris designed such a model of flowered chiffon with an embroidered silk sash, draped shawl fashion about the hips. If you can have many evening dresses, one would be very pretty like this.

Care of Brooms

Buy brooms in pairs. You will save money by so doing. Give one a bath and allow it to rest a day and see how fresh and new it seems. Dip the broom into hot soap suds. Try it on wash day. Dip it in until the suds are clear. Then dip the broom into clear hot water and hang it in a draught to dry. Wash the broom handles. You will be surprised at the amount of dirt you will find. Be sure there is a hook or screw eye screwed into the end of the handle to hang up the broom. More "one-sided" brooms are made from standing on the floor in a corner than from being worn by sweeping. Do not use the same broom for all parts of the house. One that has been used in the dining room may be in such a condition as to ruin a valuable rug.

No Club for Lady Cop

In Chicago, where they have ten women police, the suffragist leaders asked that every appointee have the following qualifications:

She must be "husky."

She must have nerve.

She must have had experience in social service.

She must understand young people.

She must have common sense.

She must have ideals.

All the suffragists agreed that she should have a star. The more militant believed she should carry a revolver, but none took kindly to the idea of a policewoman swinging a club.

Packing Silverware

If silverware, not in general use, is, after being cleaned, wrapped in dark blue paper sprinkled with powdered camphor, it will remain in perfect condition.

Odor of New Linoleum

To a great many persons, sensitive persons, an odor which prevails any great length of time is very disagreeable and some odors are very obstinate. In order to get rid of the odor of new linoleum the following recipe is given in a recent issue of La Nature: Mop the linoleum with a sponge or a piece of old carpet wetted with diluted Javelle water (1 to 10). Leave over night, closing all doors and windows; next morning air thoroughly, and over the dried surface pass lightly a mop wet with water containing 10 per cent. sodic bisulphide. Leave again over night with doors and windows closed. Next morning wash several times thoroughly with water.

KITCHEN KEYNOTES

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed, the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

When washing pudding cloths, throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean looking.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

Save all odd bits of twine, knot them together, then knit with steel needles into pieces about a foot or more square. These make excellent dishcloths for saucepans and pie dishes.

Before putting curtain hooks in curtains in damp weather, rub the pins with a clean, oily rag. It prevents them rusting and tearing the curtain, and they can be taken in and out more easily.

Use For Sour Cream

When cream is only slightly sour it may be made delicious to serve with puddings, etc., in the following way. Put it into a basin with the juice of a lemon and a tablespoonful of sugar, and whip until quite stiff. This treatment makes it excellent, and increases the quantity at the same time.

Mending Window Blinds

If you want to patch your window blinds, don't sew on the patches. Instead, paste them on with hot starch and press down with a warm iron. They will look neater than if sewn, because the stitches would be apparent, whereas a pasted-on patch is almost invisible.

Give Nature a Chance

Man spends about one-third of his time in bed! Nature uses the sleep hours to effect her best recuperative work. Like man, Nature works very inefficiently in foul air. How necessary it is, then, to have pure air in the sleeping room. Give Nature a chance to do its best work!

To Bleach Faded Frocks

The colored frock or blouse that has become faded with frequent launderings or from wear in the sun may be bleached to a clear white by boiling in cream of tartar water. The correct quantity to be used to make the garment a pure white is a teaspoonful of the powder to a quart of water.

Cleansing Gas Range

A gas range may be kept black by wringing out a sponge (kept solely for the purpose) in warm water and rubbing well with soap, washing the stove while it is warm. If this is done just after the cooking is over the stove may be kept black and free from grease spots.

Keep an eye on the way you stand and sit. Remember the muscles which keep man in an upright position are on the back of the calf of the leg the back of the trunk and the back of the neck. The more they are trained to hold up the body the easier it will be.

Remember "all work and no play made Jack a dull boy." Plan your resting time so that it will be a real means of rebuilding your health and enlivening your mind.

WHAT WRINKLES MEAN

They Afford a Good Clue to Character and Disposition

Two sharp, vertical indents on the forehead, just at the top of the nose, are a sign that the wearer is given to deep and serious thought.

A wrinkle each side of the nose, and extending from thence to the corner of the mouth, is indicative of a sarcastic and sneering disposition, whilst those who show one or more "cuts" at the corners of the mouth are usually of a cheerful disposition, amiable, and anxious to please.

Wrinkles at the corners of the eyes denote the jovial nature of an easy-going, careless person, fond of good things and of getting their own way, and—sometimes—rather indifferent to the feelings of others in attaining their own comfort.

Crowsfeet—the name given to those small wrinkles under the eyes—are almost invariably a sign of worry, trouble, dissipation, or ill-health, and are often accompanied by lack-lustre eyes and a tired [illegible] expression of the countenance in general.

A number of horizontal wrinkles on the forehead denote a fretful, petulant, worrying disposition, but one given to consideration for the feelings or sufferings of others. People whose brows are marked in this manner are usually good parents and staunch friends, though somewhat fussy and trying to the tempers of others.

Softening Gloves

If black kid gloves or calf kid boots have become hard, put the gloves on the hand and apply in that position (as if washing the hands) as much camphorated oil as the leather will absorb; then take off and hang to dry and also allow the camphor to evaporate. With boots rub in well with the hand the same kind of oil. This gives the original suppleness to the leather.

Stockings should be washed in a fresh lather of tepid water; if washed in water previously used for other garments, stockings have bits of fluff sticking to them almost impossible to shake off when dry.

To keep the cut edge of cheese from hardening one need merely smear a little butter over it and so keep it from the air.

HOW TO FIGHT CONSUMPTION

The Grand Duchess of Hesse has hit upon a novel scheme for propagating the knowledge of how to fight consumption. On her recent visit to a hygiene exhibition at Darmstadt she saw some match boxes with printed instructions on the reverse side what to do and what not to do in order to avoid the spread of tubercular contagion. The boxes were samples. Several billion had been made to the order of some South American government. The Grand Duchess has now succeeded in inducing all the match manufacturers of the Grand Duchy to place these instructions on the back of every box they sell, the price to remain the same.

SWIMMING.

Boston, Aug. 26.—Harold Baker, brother of "Snowy" Baker, who has succeeded Hugh McIntosh as the leading fight promotor in Australia, is in this city and is anxious to meet any swimmer in a race or series of races from 100 yards to 500 yards. Baker has been in New York, St. Louis and Chicago, and his efforts to secure a match have proved fruitless. Baker is champion at the named distance. Should Baker fail to get a match in this section he will begin training at Revere beach next week to make the Battery to Sandy Hook swim in New York harbor. Baker is a cousin of Annette Kellerman and will make his try on Sunday, Sept. 7. Miss Kellerman and "Bakie" Kellerman, brother of the great swimmer, will accompany Baker part of the way. Baker is under the management of J. A. McMann. The latter is well known having been a trainer of running horses. Baker announced that his brother "Snowy" is expected in the country within a few weeks. "Snowy" is looking for attractions for the big stadium, he having taken the management when McIntosh was forced out.

Boston, Aug. 26.—The long orduous swim from Baker's island in Salem harbor to Salem Willows, a distance of five miles, was accomplished yesterday by 19-year-old Frances Klink of Marblehead in exactly four hours. Veteran swimmers declared her performance a noteworthy one on account of the low temperature of the water and the roughness of the waves. A friend of Miss Klink, Mrs. Elso Southwood, tried to duplicate the feat, but was taken from the water almost exhausted after she had covered half the distance. Miss Klink and Mrs. Southwood dived from the motor boat Dixie, owned by Edward Page, at 11.20 yesterday morning. The yacht then accompanied both swimmers and took Mrs. Southwood on board when she gave up the attempt.

OLD QUEBEC DAYS

Bostonnais Invasion Recalled by Finding of Rebel's Expense Book

Mr. Thomas O'Leary, assistant librarian at the Chateau de Ramezay, Montreal, unearthed a very interesting document, the "Expense Book of John Halstead, Commissary under Benedict Arnold, before Quebec, [illegible] 76." It consists of the manuscript expense book of the Commissary under Benedict Arnold when in command at Quebec after the death of Montgomery. It is a pocket memorandum, measuring three and one half by four, and one half inches. The entries commence 8th February, 17[illegible] and end May 17th, 1776. They go to show that large sums of money were disbursed for the purchase of b[illegible] and other supplies, and that, to give the invader his due, he paid his way to this extent at least, and did not live at the expense of the inhabitants as it may possibly have been assumed.

The little book is in excellent condition, when it is remembered that it was with difficulty that the American soldiers at Quebec took even their bodies back. The wonder is that the book should have survived the perils and dangers of that unfortunate expedition. But more wonderful is the fact, that the book should have found its way back to the very locality of Quebec, where it had been in 177[illegible] and then to the Chateau de Ramezay the headquarters of the Continental army in 1775-76.

Although this account of purchases of provisions for "Les Bostonnais," is nameless as to signature, it can be no other but that of John Halstead, a Quebec rebel. It gives the names of his comrades who were no doubt chased out of Quebec with him by Lieut.-Governor Cramahe and General Carleton.

According to Historical Document No. 8, of the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, John Dyer Mercier and John Halstead, two citizens of Quebec, purchased in the year 1774, a water lot on the river St. Lawrence, under Cape Diamond at Quebec. On this they constructed a wharf 130 feet long, and in the fall of 1775 put up the frame work of a strong warehouse. The invasion of the Bostonnais stopped the work of construction by the hurried flight of Messrs. Mercier and Halstead, who were rebels. The former seems to have been a particularly trusted friend of Arnold, who sent him a letter on the 10th October, 1775, from Dead River by the hands of an Indian named Aeneas, informing Mercier of his coming with 2,000 men to attack Quebec, and requesting him to forward provisions and supplies to the Chaudiere river. Fortunately this letter was delivered to Lieut.-Governor Cramahe.

This probably accelerated Mercier's exit from Quebec, if Cramahe's proclamation of 13th September had not already done it. However, nothing more was heard of Mercier until the end of the war, when he petitioned the Governor through his agent, Deschenaux, for the return of his property.

Nothing was heard of the two rebels until 1784, when they jointly laid claim to their property, demanding from the Government rent for its use since they abandoned it; also compensation for the frame work of the store which Carleton had used for construction of batteries, etc., behind the Hotel Dieu, St. John's and St. Louis gates.

They claimed $1,300 damages from the Government but the final award made after a long delay in 1797, was $4,425, from which the Government deducted the total cost of the improvements to the property, $3,985, leaving to Halstead and Mercier, a balance of $440.

Starving in Big City

Starving to death, Napoleon Lemay a 19-year-old lad, was discovered in a box car in the Montreal railway yard. He was in a pitiable state of wretchedness and almost dead. An officer saw him enter the car, where the boy said he expected to die. His parents live in the United States.

In the police court he told a terrible tale of suffering to Judge Lanctot. He said he could find no work and had been living on bread crusts. But for two days he had been unable to find a single scrap of food. "Do what you will with me," he cried, "only give me a bite to eat."

The old judge was much affected by the sight. There was only one things he could do and he fined the lad one dollar or two days in jail.

Snails for Food in Favor

Snails are not as a rule looked upon as luxuries outside of France. The average Englishman regards garden worms with repugnance. Yet in Bristol there is a large and growing trade done in edible snails, and shellfish dealers are clamoring for more than they can possibly obtain. There are between thirty and forty shops in Bristol where cooked snails may be bought, but such is the demand that in the near future snails may become the luxury of the rich. Of course, the eating of snails is an acquired taste, but the habit of eating them, according to Bristol folk, seems to grow rapidly once the repugnance to making a beginning is overcome.

The Message of Moles

Have you a mole on your face? The belief that moles "mean something" is worldwide. Investigation has proved that the following qualities and blessings seem almost invariably to belong to the possessors of moles.

A mole on the forehead betokens that wealth will be yours, and that you have the gift of gaining the affection of many people. The unmarried, if a trifle fearful of matrimonial risks, need not worry if they have a mole on the upper lip. Lifelong connubial bliss will be their portion. A mole on the right cheek is a sure sign that the happy possessor will come into great wealth.

A mole on the neck indicates in a man prudence and foresight; but, in the case of a woman, a weak judgment.

A mole on the chest, however, indicates a brave disposition, and affection and loyalty to one's friends.

A mole on the left shoulder is unlucky. The possessor must expect sorrow and a life of really hard work.

Moles on the left side, men or women, fortell danger.

Men with moles on the eyebrow are often inconstant. In the case of a woman, such moles betoken great marital happiness.

SAW HIS MISTAKE

How Scion of Rich Family Discovered That Money Would Not Purchase Everything.

By GEORGE MUNSON.

Though his family and friends had disowned Richard Brewster when he was sentenced to serve five years in the Alabama penitentiary for forgery, he had still enough influence to have his escape made easy for him. At twenty-five, the second son of old Peter Brewster, the millionaire, he suddenly found himself bereft of everything that meant life to him. For three years he clerked in the warden's office, dreaming of the time when he would be free once more. He would obtain money from his puritanical old father who had disowned him, in spite of his threats; he knew that he could blackmail him for twenty thousand by threatening to publish certain facts in the old man's early history. For although Peter Brewster was the squarest man in Alabama, once, when he was a young man—well, Richard had discovered that slip, which had made the millionaire indulgent to his son's weaknesses until he crowned them with forgery. Peter had never stolen or forged; still, he could be made to yield up twenty thousand, Richard knew, for silence.

After three years the Brewster influence had waned with the change of governors, and Richard was taken out of his easy berth and shipped off to labor in the turpentine camp at Parsing. There the horror of his position moved unwise friends of his father, who, acting without the old man's knowledge, approached the head warden with bribes. The only result was that a fifty pound weight was attached to Richard's leg by a chain. But others were more venal; and so it came about that Richard Brewster found himself alone in the woods, with two hours' grace, and only a mile to travel to the motor boat which lay awaiting him, hidden in the mangroves, with five hundred dollars under the seat and a key that would unfasten the padlock of the chain.

"A Convict."

That mile meant hard traveling, when one weighed fifty pounds above his norm, but Richard made it. Through swamps and over fallen trunks, and plunging into rotten timber, he pressed forward, to emerge at length, bleeding and torn, at the head of the little bay. It was late afternoon; a cottage stood on the bank not fifty yards distant; and the boat just showed among the mangroves. Brewster crept cautiously toward it. He pulled it from its place into the shallow water.

Then he discovered that, with the chain and the ball, he could not enter it. He could not lift his leg from the swampy bottom of the bay; nor, had he done so, could he have climbed in without upsetting the craft.

Under the seat, as he had been advised, he saw the little oilskin package containing the money and the key. But he could not reach so far. His finger tips stopped short a full foot; to stretch further mean to upset the little craft. He struggled till the sweat poured down his face, Then, turning, he became aware that a small child was watching him, a girl about five years old, evidently from the cottage.

"Come here," said Brewster hoarsely, and the child obeyed. "Do you see that package under that seat? Could you get it for me?"

The child stood watching him, finger in mouth, half frightened, half interested. It was evident that she had no intention of doing what the strange man told her. Brewster resolved to try the effect of fear.

"Marjorie! Marjorie!" called a clear voice from the cottage.

"Come here!" cried Brewster in a hoarse, angry whisper. "Climb in there at once and get me that package!"

Terrified, the child began to cry. Brewster lost control of himself and she set up a scream. Then the mangroves parted and a clear-eyed, indignant young woman, perhaps Brewster's own age, confronted him.

"What are you doing with Marjorie?" she cried. "Do you think we are afraid of tramps here? Off with you, or I'll set the dogs on you." Then her eyes fell on the ball and chain and she recoiled a step, but still stood facing him, one hand holding Marjorie tightly to her.

"A convict," she said, and only half veiled her terror.

"Yes," said the man. "I'll make a clean breast of it. I'm Brewster—Richard Brewster. I see you know who I am. There is a package under that seat with a key that will unlock this padlock, and five hundred dollars. I can't reach it with this attachment. Get it for me and I'll divide the money with you."

"We don't help convicts here," answered the girl, watching him steadily. She half turned, still clutching the child.

"I'll give you all," shouted Brewster. "Five hundred. Good Lord! I could buy your crazy cottage for that—and you too."

She turned on him. "I guess that's where you're wrong," she answered bitterly. "Some folks can't be bought. If they could my folks would be richer than they are. Perhaps you know my father, Herman Grace," she added.

"Grace! The head warden!"

"I thought you did. If he had taken that five thousand dollars your folks offered him to let you escape, we wouldn't be living in this 'crazy cottage,' as you call it."

"Then you won't get that package for me?" he demanded.

"No, nor I won't lift a finger against you, either. Go your own way. I've heard of you and your doings. You poor creature, what sort of happiness have you found in your life, you who think everybody is for sale?"

The thought was new to Brewster. "Why I—I haven't had much," he stammered.

"How long have you to serve?"

"Nearly two years."

"Two years!" she echoed. "So you are willing to purchase two years of liberty by a life of ignominy, hunted everywhere, hiding from all, trusting none, always expecting to hear the step of a detective at your heels? You poor fellow!"

He hung his head. "I don't—know!" he stammered. "Nobody ever put it to me in that way before. I've never met a girl like you. I thought they were all out for the money. Say!" he went on rapidly, "that little daughter of yours ought to be proud—"

"My sister," said the girl, smiling for the first time. "I'm not married—yet!"

Brewster took a step forward and stood before her, the ball clanking on its chain behind him. In his eyes was a light that had never shone there before.

"Miss Grace," he said, "if I go back—if I serve my time—if I try to live a decent life afterward, and I have wanted to sometimes, only I never had any encouragement—if I do all these things, will you let me come to you the day I am set free and ask you to help me? Just to tell me what to do? So that I can feel that I have a friend, besides money?"

"Yes," she answered impulsively. "Yes. And I shall tell my father what you have told me."

Brewster turned and plunged back through the mangroves toward the convict camp, the ball jangling behind him.

BALBOA DESERVES ALL HONOR

Deeds of Great Spanish Adventurer Never Can Be Forgotten in the History of the World.

In the list of heroes dear to the normal boy who loves courage and adventure, will be found those intrepid forelopers, Columbus and De Soto and Balboa—Columbus, finder of America; De Soto, discoverer of the Mississippi, and Balboa, who, from that lone peak in Darien, looked down upon the Pacific, and later claimed it in the name of his Spanish master. That was on September 26, 1513, and on September 25, 1913, the four hundredth anniversary of the event, it is proposed to have the first ship enter the Panama canal. If this original trip can be prolonged for four days—for it may well be both pageant and voyage—the craft will reach the Pacific on the anniversary of the day, according to the annals, when Balboa strode down the shining sands and waded into the surf, waved his sword over the sea as a symbol of its future vassalage to King Ferdinand.

A wild and dashing cavalier was this Balboa a swashbuckler of his time, an adventurer of many hairbreadth escapes, and finally the victim of an unjust persecution. The envious nobles who encompassed his downfall are forgotten, the king he honored is rarely recalled, the Spanish dominion has passed from the great ocean, but the name of the daring pioneer, the resolute soldiers, the fearless leader, lives on in history and story, and will, if all goes well, be fittingly linked with the completion of that masterpiece of engineering which joins ocean and ocean—the ocean which he sailed and the ocean which he found.

Religious Chickens.

My little boy, Frank, four years, likes to lock the chickens in their coop at night. Lately he has had me go with him, as he is a little timid about going out of doors after dark. One night last week he had driven the chickens into the coop, and the little chicks in settling down for the night were peeping. Frank said: "Oh, mamma, aren't the chickens good, just listen to them saying their prayers."—Exchange.

Scientific Speech.

"I will now proceed to add to human knowledge," said one scientist.

"How will you do it?" asked the other.

"By taking some short word in popular use and causing several syllables to grow where there was but one."

WHO WAS "TOMMY ATKINS"

How the Soldiers of Great Britain's Army Came by the Name

Questions are sometimes asked as to the origin of the expression "Tommy" or "Tommy Atkins" as applied to a soldier in generic form. Mr. J. H. Leslie explains in Notes and Queries that its origin dates from the year 1815, when the "Soldier's Account Book" was called into use by a War Office circular letter of August 31, 1815. Sample forms of the book (for cavalry and infantry) accompanied the circular letter, and in every one of them the name "Thomas Atkins" is used as a specimen name. Atkins evidently could not write, as in the several places where his signature occurs it is given as "Thomas Atkins X his mark." This, Mr. Leslie adds, surely disproves that "Thomas Atkins" was suggested by the Duke of Wellington in 1843 as being the name of an especially brave soldier in his own regiment—the 33rd.

Parasolettes are made for automobilists. They fold compactly into little leather tubes which can be stowed inconspicuously in door pockets or on the floor of the car. The parasolettes when open, are found to be fluffy with silk pinked ruffles. They are made with plain and strong wooden handles. With these and with a tight fitting hat such as all motorists now wear, and with a comfortable, all enveloping coat to ward off dust, cold and dampness, the woman motorist is no longer the inappropriately dressed person she was when motor cars first came in. Then women used to go for long spins with big hats perched uncertainly atop elaborate coiffures, with no protection to the face against dust or wind, and without the sensible coats which cover chest and throat that are now worn.

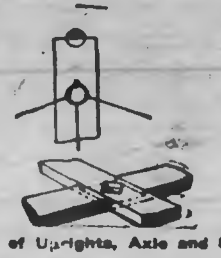
JOY FOR KIDDIES

Real Ferris Wheel Will Give Them Lots of Exercise and Fun

Anyone who wants to amuse the children with a really simple bit of mechanical construction can do so at the expense of very little time, money or labor, and any child would be delighted with a Ferris wheel.

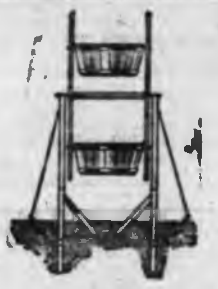
This wheel has four spokes and four baskets which can be made from half barrels or from heavy clothes baskets, provided the baskets are strong enough to carry passengers.

Uprights of 2x4 timbers 10 feet long are sunk 3 feet in the ground 4 feet apart. These are braced inside with stout short posts and outside with strong wire cable. The wire bracing is attached to a ring that is fastened near the top of each post with a suitable staple. There are three wires for each ring. One of these is fastened to a peg driven deeply into the ground about two feet from each upright on each side, and the others are carried to the front and rear as far as necessary and also attached to pegs driven into the ground.



Details of Uprights, Axle and Spokes

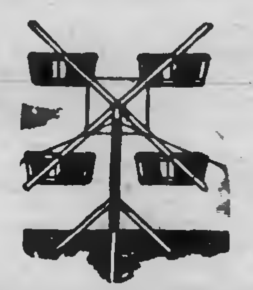
The shaft for the wheel is a square piece of 2½ inch timber 4 feet long. A semicircular depression is cut in the top of the uprights large enough to receive the ends of the shaft, which is rounded at each end to as large a diameter as possible. Blocks are fastened over the shaft when it is put in place.



End Elevation

The spokes of the wheel are made of four pieces of timber, two on each side, 1 inch thick, 4 inches wide and 13 feet long. Before mounting, square holes should be cut in the center of each piece to fit on the square part of the shaft. The spokes should be notched in the center so that when each pair is crossed they will fit together. These are then fastened together and attached to the shaft which is then placed in position on the uprights. The spokes are braced with stout wire.

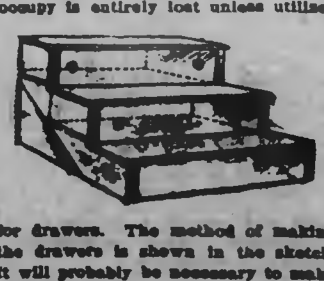
Holes are bored 2½ feet from the ends of the spokes, and the barrels or baskets are attached. Care should be used to attach them securely. With this arrangement, and a bit of soap or tallow applied to the bearings, the Ferris wheel is all ready for the youngsters who wish to ride.



Completed Wheel With Baskets Attached

Utilizing Space Under the Stairs

There is a lot of space wasted in most houses in the cellar and kitchen stairs that can be put to use by an ingenious person. The stairs have got to be there and the room they occupy is entirely lost unless utilized for drawers. The method of making the drawers is shown in the sketch. It will probably be necessary to make supports for the drawers along the stair framework, but this can easily be done and the storage space thus secured will more than pay for the trouble.



Silver From Sweepings

In the manufacture of silver wares the loss of silver in floor sweepings would be great were it not for the methods of recovery. The smelting of sweeps requires a special plant which but few concerns can afford to have, therefore most of them prepare this material so that it can be sold. The most satisfactory method is to grind the sweeps to a fine powder, so that a fair sample can be obtained for assay. One assay of the material may then be made by the purchaser and another by the seller. Unless the sweeps are ground very fine, however, and then mixed thoroughly, there is but little chance of agreement between the two assays, as coarse material is filled with fine shot silver, which, when samples are made, is not evenly distributed.

WON A BIG PRIZE

A Natural Born Artist, Gene Savage Should Have Great Future

When Eugene Savage found himself making $50 or $60 per week in Chicago by working a few hours a day drawing fashion cuts, he was fairly well satisfied for he had come from a small country town but a short time before and was glad at first to get an occasional order from the big department stores for pictures. He could draw from babyhood almost, and naturally took to painting in colors, but no one was more surprised than Savage himself when he was awarded the Grand Prize of Rome for a picture entitled "Morning" which he submitted to the committee. The prize meant a three years' course in the Academy of Rome—scholarship practically—with a beautiful studio and nice home thrown in. Gene will now work no more as an illustrator for commercial concerns; he will not have to, as his picture "Morning" made him famous.

EUGENE SAVAGE

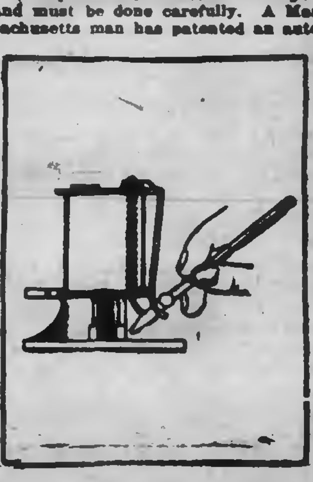
When the Clyde Wanted Water

In the days when the Clyde was navigable to Glasgow for only small vessels a steamer stuck in the mud near Renfrew and the skipper was not sparing in strong language. While waiting for the rising tide he saw a little girl approaching the river with a bucket to fetch some water. This was too much for the poor captain, and, leaning over the side, he thus addressed her: "If you tak' ae drap o' water oot here till I get afloat, I'll warm yer ear for't."

DRAWING PEN FILLER

Tiny Tube Discharges Ink into Space Between Pen Blades

Those of us who have ever had to fill mechanical drawing pens, whether we are draughtsmen or merely dabbled in mechanical drawing at school, know that it is a rather tedious operation, that requires the use of another pen, and must be done carefully. A Massachusetts man has patented an automatic filler that seems to meet the requirements in a most satisfactory way. A reservoir for the ink has a small discharge tube at the bottom. Flow of ink through this tube is regulated by a valve, which in turn is operated by a lever that hangs from the top of the well and also acts as a guide for the pen. To fill the pen, place it against the guide, with its point below the tube, and press down on the guide, or lever. This opens the valve and the ink runs down between the blades until they are filled.



GUIDE KEEPS PEN STRAIGHT

Modern Rifle Wounds

Wounding an enemy in war is better than killing him, for, says Popular Mechanics, unless he is captured it imposes on his side the burden of taking care of him. The Balkan war has again proved that the bullet of the modern high-power rifle, with its terrific speed, will go straight through a man, penetrating the most vital organs, without killing him; and it has even been found to go through from four to six men, one behind the other. This puts them out of the fight, but at the same time it is a good thing for the fighter, for it gives him a far better chance for his life.

A Lucky Shot

One of his Grace of Norfolk's favorite relaxations is wild duck shooting. Not so long back he was indulging in this sport with a house party beside a stretch of river adjoining Arundel Woods. The Duke brought down a bird with what seemed to be extraordinary cleverness. The Duchess, standing near the guns, was delighted. "Bravo! Capital shot!" exclaimed she.

"Yes, it might have been worse," said the Duke, with twinkle in his eye; "only it was not the one I aimed at."

Hard on the Bridegroom

"Girls," says a writer in a ladies' journal, "should not rush into matrimony in a hurry. Let them make up their minds to marry the best man." But, asks a cynic, isn't this a little hard on the bridegroom?

FORTY THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborers' Excursions — This Year's Wheat Crop Will Be The Largest in The History of Canada.

The wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that forty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $10.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from Winnipeg up to MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton.

"Return Trip East," $18.00 to Winnipeg, plus half-cent per mile from all points east of MacLeod, Calgary or Edmonton to Winnipeg.

GOING DATES.—AUGUST 18th—From all stations Kingston to Renfrew inclusive and east thereof in Ontario.

PERFECT SAFETY LAMP

Medal Awarded to Electrical Wizard for Safeguarding Miners

Thomas A. Edison is the champion life saver!

The American Museum of Safety gave the electrical wizard this title by awarding him the Rathenau medal for producing a safety miners' lamp.

A German scientist named Rathenau presented the museum authorities with a sum of money to become a medal fund—a medal to be awarded each year to the person who had done the most toward the production of an appliance tending to make human life safer. This applied to every kind of device. The first medal was given to Edison because he invented a lamp for miners that is absolutely safe.

SAFETY MINER'S LAMP INVENTED BY EDISON

Thousands of lives have been lost because of explosions caused by miners' lamps and thousands of dollars have been spent in a search for a miner's lamp that would not ignite the gases. But there was always something the matter with the lamps—until Edison came along with his.

His lamp is absolutely safe. It is operated from a storage battery that is either directly attached to the lamp or hung from the belt of the miner.

NEEDLE THREADER

Acts Automatically as Needle is Drawn Through Slot

A little device which will save many women time and eye strain has been patented by an Indiana woman. It is a needle threader, and its action is practically automatic. In connection with it a thimble is used or to be more exact, the threading device is mounted on the thimble. It consists of a flat, narrow strip of metal with a central transverse eye and inwardly inclined end walls. The head of the needle passes through this eye and the thread is brought around the end walls and wrapped once around it. As the needle is drawn through the eye the thread is hooked into its own eye through the lower end, which is open. The free part of the eye, however, is resilient and opens only at the pressure from without that is exerted by the thread sliding through it.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

HOW TO REMOVE OBJECTIONABLE HAIRS

At last there has been discovered a painless and reliable method for removing objectionable hairs from lip or cheek. This consists of a paste made with powdered delatone and water and applied to the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, after which it is removed and the hairs come with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone and it will be firm and spotless. This method rarely calls for the second application.

WOMEN RUN A BANK

They Made a Big Success of it in London

The possibilities of work in a bank as a career for women have been demonstrated by Farrow's Bank for women, which was inaugurated in London a couple of years ago, and which, after being managed entirely by women, proved so successful that it was transferred to enlarged premises in the very heart of the West End.

"Our success is largely due to the hearty support we have received from women," said Mrs. Kate Reilly, the manageress.

"The eagerness with which women of all classes and from all parts of the Empire took up the idea of an institution devoted entirely to their needs was in itself a proof that Farrow's novel departure was fulfilling a long-felt want. Our bank gives women the privilege of consulting one of their own sex over their business affairs.

"The business transacted is exactly the same as that transacted by any other joint stock bank, and the fact that all our staff consists of women is good evidence that one sex is not more gifted than the other in accuracy and a head for figuring."

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Torn music can be mended easily by the use of transparent sticking tape which is sold on spools.

Do not use the attic as a storehouse for rubbish. When you are through with an article give it to somebody who will benefit by it; or if it is useless, burn it.

Do not use washing-powder or soda when washing gilded china as these cleansers will soon remove the gold. A mild white soap is preferable.

To laugh instead of cry run your horseradish roots through the meat grinder instead of grating them.

If castors slip out of the furniture, wrap the shanks with elastic bands before returning them to their places.

An old chair may be converted into a comfortable seat for a baby. Saw the back off, turn the chair upside down and place a soft quilt inside for baby to sit on. A few clothespins to stick on the rounds of the chair will afford much amusement for the little one.

When sheets wear thin in the middle, cut them in half down the middle and sew the outside edges together; they will wear twice as long.

When a kettle is badly burned, do not fill it with water, but set it aside to cool, then put in a handful of washing soda and water and allow it to boil for an hour or more.

To absolutely prevent wrong bottle tragedies, tie a little brass bell around the neck of every bottle containing poison.

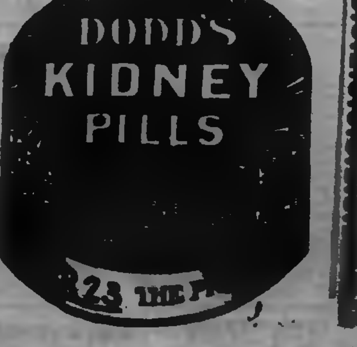
A new use for a medicine dropper is that of using it to evenly distribute hair tonic. Fill the dropper with the tonic, and parting the hair at close intervals, press out the liquid and then rub.

Nosegays for Place Cards

Have you tried the nosegay place cards? They are so easy to make, so dainty and so individual. Buy a dozen of the tiny paper-lace doilies. Make miniature, old fashioned bouquets of fresh flowers in several colors—sweet Alyssum, forget-me-nots, rosebuds, sweet peas and bachelor's buttons are a good combination, says Good Housekeeping.

Tie the stems of each bouquet to a small stick and place in a glass of water in a cool, dark place until just before the meal is served. Then make a hole in the middle of each doily, put the little posy through it, and fold the lace up around the flowers and wrap the stems in tin-foil.

Then with a bit of narrow ribbon corresponding to the color scheme of your table tie a little name card to each nosegay. If a pin is put in each bouquet guests may then wear the nosegays as boutonnieres.



SEEN AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

Fire Proof Builders' Supplies.

Just to the rear of the stock sheds in the East end of the Toronto Exhibition Grounds, The Metal Shingle & Siding Company, of Preston, Montreal, Saskatoon and Calgary, have erected a new steel-trussed barn 36 by 56 feet in size. This is the newest and latest improved idea for farms and was erected complete in one day. This Company's Steel Garages in Colonial designs are of great interest to automobile owners. They are very attractive, fireproof, easily erected, and very economical.

Architects and contractors are specially invited to get off the street car at King and Dufferin streets, just two blocks from the main entrance to the Fair grounds, to visit the new plant of the A. B. Ormsby Co. Ltd., of Toronto and Winnipeg, now nearing completion. This Company is associated with the Metal Shingle and Siding Company and their new factory will be the most modern of its kind on the continent, the buildings having a floor space area of 160,000 square feet. Special representatives will show to all interested their newest fire-proofing lines, including Underwriters' Hollow Steel Interior Trim, Copper and Iron Covered Interior Trim, Exterior Window Frames and Sash, Folding Doors and Revolving Doors. If you are an Architect, Builder or Contractor, or if you figure on putting up a new building of any kind, you should not miss this opportunity of seeing the newest products in these lines.

Puncture Proof Tires.

At the East door of the Transportation Building of the Toronto Exhibition is being shown one of the greatest conveniences for motorists ever invented. This is the Simplex Self-Healing Puncture-proof Tube for automobile or auto-cycle tires. This Tube has been thoroughly tested both off and on autos. You can drive nails through it and the punctures are automatically sealed, preventing the loss of air. The Simplex Sales Company, 559 Yonge Street, Toronto, control this invention and, to prove its efficiency, offer to place a Simplex Puncture-proof tire, which has been punctured over a hundred times, in any tire it will fit and drive you fifty miles without any appreciable loss of air. That is a demonstration which proves the Company's claims. Autoists should insist that Simplex Puncture-proof Pneumatic Inner Tubes are included in their 1914 cars, and dealers and agents everywhere should get into touch with the Company at their office or at the Exhibition.

O. H. John's Glass Blowers.

For eleven years O. H. John's Glass Blowers have been drawing crowds at Toronto Exhibition. This is the first show as you enter Midway and exhibits glass blowing in all its branches. Only experts are engaged here and every visitor is given a souvenir. Admission 10 cents.

Newcombe Pianos.

Anyone thinking of purchasing a piano should be sure to see the display of Newcombe Pianos in the Manufactures Building at Toronto Exhibition. The Newcombe is the only piano awarded a GOLD METAL at Paris Exhibition in 1900 and has been particularly successful at every Exhibition where shown. The Newcombe Piano Co. now occupies its new Toronto showrooms, at 359 Yonge Street, and show here a duplicate of their Exhibition display. The Newcombe is the only piano equipped with Howard's Patent Straining Rods, which ensures purity and stability of tone. For beauty of design and general value it is hard to equal the Newcombe and visitors are invited to compare these instruments with any and all others on the market. The City showrooms will be open every evening during Exhibition and every effort will be made to allow visitors to see and test the good points of the Newcombe.

Pember's Hair Goods.

When fair visitors visit Toronto Fair they should not forget that the Pember Store carries the finest assortment of styles in human hair goods in Canada. Ladies are invited to make the Pember Store, 127 Yonge Street, their headquarters in Toronto.

Ostrich Feathers and Plumes.

"Aren't those feathers simply gorgeous" is the expression a reporter heard a lady use as she looked at the beautiful display made in the Manufacturers Building by the London Feather Co. of 144 Yonge St., Toronto. This Company is the largest in Canada, having retail sales parlors in Toronto, Montreal or Winnipeg, and a large factory in Toronto. Every lady visiting Toronto should see this exhibit and should also call at the city sales parlors, 144 Yonge street to see the beautiful ostrich features, willow plumes, ospreys, aigrettes, etc. Every visitor is cordially welcomed whether she comes to view the stock or to purchase. New illustrated catalogue of millinery and plumages will be sent to any lady on request.

Luxfer Prisms.

The Luxfer Prism Co., 100 King St. West, Toronto, is making, in the Process Building, a fine showing of sidewalk and window Prisms, as well as two beautiful stained glass memorial windows. In addition to these lines this Company makes all sizes, shapes and patterns in store fronts and office canopies in fancy glass and metals. Special designs are made up and submitted to prospective customers. Every man wha wants to improve the appearance of his place of business should visit the firm or write for illustrated catalogues, estimates, etc.

A full course dinner with well cooked hot meats, fish, vegetables and deserts for 35 cents is what visitors to Bird's Dining Hall get during Toronto Exhibition. Make a note of Bird's Dinin- Hall 35 and 50 cent meals and be sure to go there when at the Exhibition.

CHARMED BY BLACK MAGIC

Englishman Said a Neighbor Cast Spell Over Him

A man applied to the magistrates at Union Hall, England, for redress of various injuries inflicted upon him by a person who, he said, had long held him in subjection by the power of witchcraft. The person complained of had for some time been his opposite neighbor, and although it had been his constant study not to offend him, being well aware of the influence he possessed with the powers of darkness, yet he had, in some way or other, been so unfortunate as to incur his displeasure, and severely he had suffered for it both in person and property, as the wizard had at different times destroyed his clothes, tainted his provisions, prevented the smoke from ascending the chimneys, soured the liquor in his cellar, and on various occasions, when the complainant had been under the necessity of going out to business, had so fascinated his powers of vision that on his return home all his efforts to discover his own door had proved ineffectual, and he had frequently been under the necessity of applying to his neighbors to conduct him home.

Local Citizens Did Noble Work in Rescueing Dead and Injured, Building Falls After Hundreds of Citizens Prophesied a Coming Fatality--Two Coming October Brides Numbered Amongst the Dead--Police and Firemen Control Situation Most Admirably

Yesterday Peterborough was visited at 9.20 a.m., by the most awful calamity in her history. It is generally known that extensive improvements have been in progress for a fortnight past on the North West corner of George and Simcoe streets, recently vacated by Thos. Barrie & Co., and the premises occupied by Mr. Fred Might, operating under the business title of J. C. Turnbull & Co., were in process of reconstruction. The underpart had been removed, and the three storey building, as far as the casual observer could notice, were supported mainly be leaning poles from George and Simcoe Sts. For the past week hundreds of citizens passing north or south on George street, have feared to pass on the west side of our main thoroughfare near the Turnbull premises evidently realising the danger that threatened. It would be unjust at present, in the face of so awful a calamity, to attempt to face the blame for this catasthrophe until the coming inquest fixes the responsibility, still there must be an awful burden of responsibility resting on some one's conscience.

Police Officer Patterson was standing at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets when the catastrophe happened.

"The building seemed to puff out at the second storey, as if it were shooting into Simcoe street," he said "and then it fell heavily into the street, crumbling the wall of the lower storey and taking with it the upper storey. The building seemed to bulge out at the second storey and then sagged like a house of cards."

As soon as the building fell an alarm was sent in from Box 23, and immediately the Brigade were on the spot. Chief Howard asked for the roads to be roped off, and then he, with his staff, were quickly removing heaps of debris to locate any persons that might be buried. Not five minutes had passed before the firemen carried out a limpless burden. Harry Manley, a carpet layer, residing on Edinburgh street, had been working on the top floor and had fell with it and his main injuries were two broken legs and cut face. He was at once removed to the hospital in an ambulance.

Miss Tucker, with serious injuries to her face was next brought out. Then the public realizing possibly that the fire brigade were doing splendid work, but handicapped for numbers rushed to the recue. As many men, from all classes of the community, as could do the work of rescue, did so. A telephone pole was guyed from the south and a block and tackle quickly was attached from its top. With these ropes beams and boards were quickly pulled from the floor. The limp and silent female remains of what an hour before, had been two women enjoying life, were brought out dead. Black cloths were placed over their faces and they were tenderly and respectfully carried to the waiting ambulance. Then another body, not then recognized, was added to this monument to some one's blunder.

During the afternoon the search was renewed for the body of Miss Dorothy Sisson, only to result in the sad discovery that this popular saleslady was numbered among the dead.

THE MAYOR'S WORK.

His Worship, Mayor Bradburn, was in his office when the cannon like roar of the falling building made him realize that the people, who as Chief Magistrate, he rules wisely, had sustained an irreparable loss. The Mayor did all in his power to assist in the gallant work done by his fellow citizens.

THE CONTRACTOR ESCAPES

The contractor in charge of the building operations, fortunately escaped. Ald. Johnston, who was carrying on the work, was on Simcoe street when the doomed building began to collapse. He rapidly crossed the street, and arrived in safety just as the falling debris strewed the street.

OUR HEROES.

to name those who acted yesterday as heroes. It might suffice to say from merchant, Salvation Army captain, professional men down to the humblest day laborer, any man able to work, who could get the opportunity, pitched in and accomplished a gallant fight.

A SAD FEATURE.

Among the dead are two engaged brides-to-be, who were to have been married in the beginning of October. They are Miss Lily A. Boddison, saleslady at Turnbull's, whose silent form now rests temporarily at Belleghem's undertaking establishment, bruised and disfigured; and Miss Dolly Sisson, another saleslady in the former named establishment. It is understood that their wedding was to have been celebrated on the same day. Our most respectful sympathy is extended to all concerned in this bereavement.

THE WRECK.

Where stood one of Peterborough's prominent stores, the property of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., is now a mass of shattered debris.

THE DEAD.

Alfred Cull, bricklayer, Braidwood Avenue.

Miss Lily A. Boddison, saleslady, J. C. Turnbull & Co., 274 William Street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, 264 Hunter Street.

Miss Dorothy Sisson, 287 Park Street, saleslady, J. C. Turnbull & Co.

Mrs. Kelly, Norwood.

INJURED.

Miss Agnes Tucker, clerk.

Mrs. Sidney Middleton, Smith Tp.

Harry Manley.

TRENT CANAL WORK.

Superintendent J. H. McClellan, of the Trent Canal, sent all the men available from the Canal, to assist the willing workers at yesterday's dire accident.

UNKNOWN DEAD IDENTIFIED.

The unidentified dead woman who was supposed to be a woman from Tweed, was last night identified as Mrs. Kelly, of Norwood, an aunt of Mrs. James Lynch of this city, wife of the Hunter street druggist.

INQUEST OPENS ON LAMENTABLE CALAMITY HERE YESTERDAY

Last night, at 8 o'clock, Coroner Dr. Greer, with County Attorney Wood present, opened the formal inquest on the bodies of those who perished in yesterday's awful calamity. The inquest is held to place responsibility where it belongs for the terrible accident, whereby five local citizens went to their death and to ascertain cause of deaths.

As the law provides only for one inquest on one body, the name of Miss Dorothy Sisson was taken, "et al."

The following jury was sworn in; viz.: Messrs. J. J. Lynch, J. W. Carey, Wm. Fleetwood, A. J. Carruthers, W. M. Carter, E. Waterman, Wm. Langford, jr., W. S. Merrill, Andrew Robson, Frank Clarke, Arch. Weir and Jos. Kelly. The body of Miss Sisson was, as is required by law, viewed by the jury.

On suggestion of the Coroner, and by acquiesince of the County Attorney, the inquest was adjourned until 7.30 p.m., September 4th, in the Council Chamber.

TWO TORONTO MEN RISK LIVES IN EBB TIDE TO RESCUE GIRL

Mr. Dick Fudger and Billy Blackstock, With Wives Spending Summer at Bexhill on Sea England, Praised For Plucky Work

London, Aug. 28.—A party of Canadian visitors spending the summer at Bexhill-on-Sea, a popular Sussex holiday resort had an exciting experience to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fudger, a son of Mr. Fudger, of the Robert Simpson Company, and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Blackstock, all of Toronto, were on the Beach contemplating taking a bath.

As the water was too rough, the ladies decided to abandon the idea. Fudger and Blackstock, already prepared, were standing out on the shore, when they saw a young lady, a stranger, in the trough of the sea apparently in difficulties. The under current was very strong, just at the ebb tide. The surf was extremely high.

Mr. Fudger shouted to the girl to know if she was all right. She replied "No."

Instantly she dashed in to the rescue, followed immediately by his friend, Blackstock. The force of the waves knocked both men over before they were waist deep. The girl meanwhile was completely past helping herself but had sense enough not to grasp the men. With considerable difficulty the rescuers seized the girl and endeavored to make head way against the strong ebb tide. The position of the trio became extremely precarious. Fortunately one of the crowd of spectators ashore meanwhile had run for a rope at the bath house, close by, and with the aid of this the party reached shore utterly exhausted.

Had it not been for the quick work of the men the girl would undoubtedly have perished. The men, too, by their plucky action, placed their own lives in jeopardy. The incident created much excitement at Bexhill. The local coastguard expressed admiration for the gallantry of the rescuers

FORTY ESCAPED FROM BURNING SKIRT FACTORY

Premises of Seigel Company on Hagerman Street Gutted This Afernoon

Toronto, Aug. 28.—Forty employes of the Seigel Shirt Factory on Hagerman street, escaped from the building this afternoon when it caught fire and was gutted. There iwere some narrow escapes, but no one was injured. The cause of the fire and its quick spread is a mystery. The factory was a two-storey building, and it blazed fiercely notwithstanding the efforts of the firemen. Many of the small houses in the neighborhood, which is the heart of "The Ward," were endangered, and the occupants got out their belongings preparatory to flight. At present no estimate can be made of the probable loss.

The flames spread to F. Breslin's shirt factory on Foster place, which is a total loss, with no insurance. Seigel's bottle factory on Foster place, at the rear of the garment factory, also caught fire and was destroyed.

The loss will likely amount to about $15,000, the Seigel places being covered by insurance.

PROPOSED RATES NEVER IN EFFECT

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—The Railway Commission to-day suspended the proposed railway tariff in Eastern Canada increasing the rates on grain and grain products in less than car load lots. The increases varied from 1 to 6 cents per hundred weight and were to be effective September 1st. The millers protested and before the ratings are authorized the Commission called on the companies to show cause and justify the proposed increase.

$1,000 FOR POMERANIAN

Toronto, Aug. 28.—An action over an alleged Pomeranian dog was launched at Osgoode Hall this morning, when Mildred M. Rogers issued a writ against Alice M. Wylie for the recovery of $1,000 said to have been paid for the dog.

The writ asks for an order setting aside the sale of the dog to Miss Rogers, claiming that it was made by "fradulent misrepresentations," for the return of the $1,000, and damages for "breach of warranty of said dog."

LAURIER ATTACKED CLOSURE WHERE LEMIEUX DEFENDED IT

Evidence Produced by Minister of Public Works That Laurier Government Had Prepared Closure Bill to Stop Debate Without Notice

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his recent St. Hyacinthe speech attacked bitterly the closure measure. He seems to forget that all his own old ministers have at one time or another strongly supported closure. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux speaking at St. Hyacinthe on August 13, 1911 from the very same platform as Sir Wilfrid Laurier made the following strong statement in support of closure:

> "In the regular order of things the present parliament should not have been dissolved until 1913. The liberty of speech is one of our most prized bequests, but the abuse of the liberty, that is obstruction, is a vice and should be extirpated from our political life and when returned to power Sir Wilfrid Laurier will introduce a law providing for the exercise of closure in parliamentary debates."

Prepared a Bill

That the Liberals actually had gone so far as to prepare a bill was shown by Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works in addressing a big Conservative meeting at Vancouver last Saturday. Mr. Rogers produced a copy of a closure bill which has been prepared by Sir Allan Aylesworth.

The Conservative closure safeguards the right of free speech while preventing abuse of the power of obstruction. The proposed Liberal measure was a guillotine of the worst description being even more arbitrary than that now in use in the British parliament. The Laurier-Aylesworth measure required no notice of closure and gave power for any member to demand closure and if thirty-six of those present voted in favor debate would be at once strangled.

CHINESE CLASHED WITH GERMANS

Berlin, Aug. 28.—The cammanding officer of the German East Asiatic cruiser squadron reports to the government that the Chinese rebels in the fort near Wuhu recently fired on the cruiser Emden with both rifles and cannan. The Emden immediately answered with 25 shots, silencing the fort.

Advices received a week ago by the German foreign office indicated that trouble was ompending between the German warships and the southern revolutionaries. The rebel leader, in a letter to the German consul at Nankin, declared that the Emden had bombarded the rebel positions on Lion Hill, and he announced his intention of retaliating on the German cruiser and the consulate.

GREATEST SHIP IS FIRE VICTIM; TWO OF CREW DIE

Imperator's Second Cabin Apartments Badly Smudged and Blackened by Blaze

New York, Aug. 28. — The steamship Imperator, the largest vessel afloat, was swept by fire early today as she lay at her dock in Hoboken, wuth her crew and 1,131 steerage passengers aboard.

Second Officer Gobrecht, who led the crew into the hold to fight the flames, was cut off from his men, enveloped in a cloud of smoke and suffocated. His body was found an hour later, untouched by fire, and brought ashore.

Seaman Otto Stumps, one of the party who went down with Gobrecht into the bowels of the vessel, was missing at roll call. He undoubtedly perished too.

Great Vessel Lists Badly

A fleet of fire fighting craft, augmented by appartus on shore, surrounded the ship and poured tons of water into her hold. When the fire was checked at 8 o'clock the great vessel had listed fifteen degrees.

The small army in the steerage, aroused from their sleep by the crackling of flames, rushed panic-stricken for the pier. Most of them returned to the ship for their clothing when re-assured by the ship's officers.

WHITE SLAVE FUEL CASES MOVED TO TRIAL

San Francisco, Aug. 28. — The Western Fuel cases, in which are involved eight officers, directors and employes of the Western Fuel company, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by manipulating weights, were called in the United States District court before Judge Murice Dooing to-day. These are the cases that came into prominence with the Diggs-Caminetti white slave cases when formea District Attorney McNab resigned and declared he was being hampered by the Department of Justice at Washington.

He declared that the department had ordered him to postpone the Western Fuel cases and the Diggs-Caminetti cases.

The defendant who appeared are John L. Howard, president of the Western Fuel company; James B. Smith, vice-president, general manager and director; Joseph L. Schmitt, treasurer and director; Robert Bruce, director; Sydney V. Smith, director; Fred C. Mills, superintendent; Edward J. Smith, weigher, and Edward H. Meyers, weigher.

MOVE CAMENETTI TRIAL

San Francisco, Aug. 28. — The second of the now nationa'ly known Diggs-Caminetti case, the trial of F. Crew Camenitti, who must face the charge of violating the Mann white slave act under which his companion Maury I. Diggs, was convicted, began to-day in the United States District court before Judge William C. Van Fleet.

The same witnesses who testified at the trial of Diggs last week appeared at the federal building and notwithstanding it was well understood that no testimony would be introduced today, as the time will be given over to selecting a jury, a large crowd assembled.

The same methods that were pursued in the examination of the talesmen at the Diggs trial were repeated this morning. It was important both to the defense and to the govment to learn whether talesmen under examination were married or single men and whether they were men of family. The government, as was the case at Diggs' trial, showed by the questions asked that it will try the case before a jury of men married and with families.

STRONG MEN EAT NO MEAT

Chicago, Aug. 28.—The three Saxon Brothers, the world's strongest men, recently gave out to the representatives of a physical culture magazine the fact that they were vegetarians, smoked in moderation, but abstained from anything alcoholic. Arthur, the oldest brother, weighs 215 pounds, and can lift 321 pounds above his head with one hand. Lying on his back with a plank placed as a seat upon his upheld feet, he can support fifteen men. He has never had a sick day in twenty years, and has eaten no meat since childhood.

A cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffeine—a poisonous drug.

Five grains of caffeine is enough to kill a rabit. Of course that much wouldn't kill a man.

But continual tea and coffee drinking usually produces biliousness, headache, dullness, sleeplessness, irritability and heart agitation. Many people have gotten rid of these troubles by quitting tea and coffee and, using

Instant Postum

It is pure and made entirely of Northern wheat and the juice of the Southern sugar-cane. Postum is a genuine food-drink—rich in Nature's phosphates, and contains no drug whatever.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled.)

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water with cream and sugar to taste.

Experiment until you get it to suit your taste, then have it always that way. Made right, Postum has a delightful flavor.

If tea and coffee don't agree, suppose you leave them off ten days and try Postum.

Drink it instead of tea or coffee.
